Aaron Moorehead enters his seventh campaign as the Philadelphia Eagles' wide receivers coach after originally joining the team in 2020.

Over the past four years, Moorehead has supported one of the most productive wide receiver duos in the NFL in A.J. Brown and DeVonta Smith, who are the only teammates to rank among the league's top 15 players in both receptions and receiving yards in that span. Brown (second, 92.5) and Smith (ninth, 85.7) are also the only teammates with top 10 rankings in Pro Football Focus offensive grade since 2022 (min. 3,000 snaps). Under Moorehead's mentorship, the pairing became the first 1,000-yard receiving duo in Eagles history, achieving the feat three times (2022, 2023 and 2025).

Moorehead navigated Smith to a team-leading 1,008 receiving yards in 2025, including the most third-down yards (423) and fifth-most yards per route (1.95) in the NFL (min. 500 routes). He also helped Brown (1,003) post his fourth 1,000-yard season with the franchise, setting a club record.

In 2024, Moorehead directed a wide receivers room that played a key role in Philadelphia winning the Super Bowl LIX Championship. Voted a second-team All-Pro despite missing three games due to injury, Brown finished with the highest PFF offensive grade (91.2) among NFL wide receivers (min. 600 snaps) after leading the Eagles with 1,079 yards on 67 catches with seven touchdowns. In addition, Brown produced a league-best 16.1 receiving average (min. 60 receptions) while finishing third in receiving yards per game (83.0) (min. 13 games). Smith, who became the franchise's all-time leader in postseason receiving yards (665), paced Philadelphia with 68 receptions for 833 yards and a career-high eight touchdowns (team high).

Moorehead assisted Brown to second-team All-Pro and Pro Bowl accolades in 2023, when he amassed the most catches (106) by a wide receiver in Eagles history for the fifth-most receiving yards (1,456) in the league. Furthermore, Brown set an NFL record during Weeks 3-8 when he registered 125-plus receiving yards in six consecutive games. Smith also hauled in 81 passes for 1,066 yards and seven touchdowns that season.

In 2022, Moorehead oversaw record-breaking performances by Brown and Smith, who were each essential in the Eagles advancing to Super Bowl LVII. In his first year in Philadelphia, Brown earned second-team All-Pro and Pro Bowl honors after finishing fourth in the league with a career-high 1,496 receiving yards, breaking a 38-year team record, while adding a career-high 11 touchdowns. Moreover, Smith ranked eighth leaguewide at his position with a career-high 1,196 yards and seven touchdowns on 95 catches.

During the 2021 season, Moorehead guided Smith to an Eagles rookie record in receiving yards (916), in addition to producing team highs in both receptions (64) and receiving touchdowns (five).

Prior to the Eagles, Moorehead spent the 2018-19 seasons as Vanderbilt's wide receivers coach. In 2018, Kaliya Lipscomb logged 87 catches for 916 yards, both of which are among the top figures in school history.

Moorehead participated in the NFL's Bill Walsh Diversity Coaching Fellowship with the Indianapolis Colts during the 2019 offseason, when Eagles head coach Nick Sirianni was a member of the Colts' staff.

Before his stint at Vanderbilt, Moorehead tutored the wide receivers at Texas A&M from 2015-17. In 2016, he directed a group led by Christian Kirk and Josh Reynolds, who combined for 144 receptions, 1,967 yards and 21 touchdowns. Kirk earned All-SEC honors with a career-high 83 catches for 928 yards, while Reynolds tallied 1,039 yards on 61 receptions.
