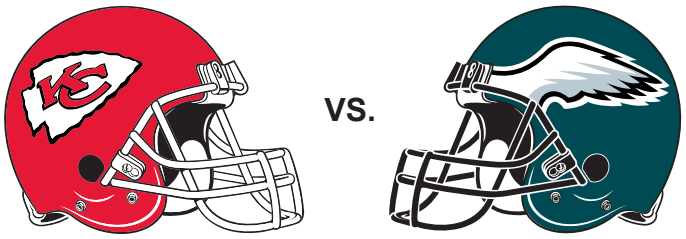
GAME NOTES

CHIEFS TRAVEL TO PHILADELPHIA TO FACE EAGLES



Kansas City Chiefs (1-2) at Philadelphia Eagles (1-2)
Sunday, October 3, 2021 • CBS • 12 p.m. CT
Lincoln Financial Field • Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

For just the second time in his tenure with Kansas City, Head Coach Andy Reid and the Chiefs will travel to Philadelphia to face the Eagles at Lincoln Financial Field. Kickoff on Sunday is slated for 12 p.m. CT. The Chiefs last visited the City of Brotherly Love on Sept. 19, 2013, defeating the Eagles 26-16. Reid is 2-0 against his former team and is looking for his 100th career win with KC (regular and postseason), which would make him the only head coach in NFL history to win 100+ games with two teams.

Under Reid, KC has qualified for the postseason seven times in eight seasons and has won 10+ games each of those seven years. Reid owns 239 career victories (regular and postseason combined). He ranks fifth on the NFL's all-time wins list. In nine seasons with the club, Reid has tallied 92 regular season wins.

The Chiefs are looking to bounce back after last week's 30-24 loss to the Chargers. QB Patrick Mahomes eclipsed the 15,000-yard passing mark in the contest. In just 49 career starts, Mahomes has accumulated 15,092 passing yards and 123 touchdowns. He moved past PFHOF QB Kurt Warner (14,372) for most passing yards in a player's first 50 career starts. With 123 career touchdown passes he moved past PFHOF QB Dan Marino (116) for most passing touchdowns in a player's first 50 career starts. He's notched 28 300+ passing-yard performances.

TE Travis Kelce will face off against his brother Jason Kelce on Sunday. Travis owns 27 games with 100+ receiving yards and has caught at least one pass in 113 consecutive games. Kelce has five-straight seasons of 1,000+ yards. Since entering the league in 2016, WR Tyreek Hill is first among all NFL pass catchers with 69 receptions of 25+ yards. Defensively, Chiefs S Tyrann Mathieu has 12 interceptions in his three years with the club, tied for second-most in the NFL over that timespan. He has two INTs this season, including one returned for a TD. On special teams, K Harrison Butker has made 124 of 137 field goal attempts (90.5%), the second-highest make percentage among kickers with 100+ attempts since entering the NFL in 2017.

The Chiefs are welcoming many new faces in 2021 including a bolstered offensive line that now includes T Orlando Brown and G Joe Thuney. KC drafted LB Nick Bolton, C Creed Humphrey and G Trey Smith among others, all who have contributed this season. In free agency, the Chiefs also signed DT Jarran Reed. With KC's coaching staff remaining intact from 2020, the club will look to compete for the franchise's third Super Bowl title. In 2020, the Kansas City Chiefs secured the number one overall seed in the AFC, finishing the season with a franchise-best 14-2 record. The Chiefs are looking to defend their stretch of back-to-back AFC titles and five-straight AFC West Division championships. KC has appeared in back-to-back Super Bowls, defeating the 49ers 31-20, then falling 31-9 against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers last season. The Chiefs have hosted three-straight AFC Championship Games at GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium (2018-20).

CHIEFS MEDIA WEBSITE INFORMATION

The Kansas City Chiefs 2021 Media Guide is available on the Chiefs media information website, NFLOMG.com. In 2015, the club introduced an improved interactive online media guide that features an in-game statistics monitoring platform, in addition to the weekly press materials such as transcripts, weekly releases, bios, additional stats and more. The club's guide is updated weekly throughout the season to reflect the most up-to-date information. Media members can also access the Chiefs credential application through the site. To login, the username is chiefsmedia and the password is chiefs.

DID YOU KNOW?

Chiefs QB Patrick Mahomes' next victory will be the 40th regular season win of his career. If the Chiefs can get a victory over the Eagles this Sunday he would reach 40 wins in 50 games as the team's starter. Only two other QBs in league history would have reached that milestone faster (D. Lamonica - 45, O. Graham - 49, K. Stabler - 50)

CHIEFS VS. EAGLES SERIES HISTORY

• Sunday will mark the ninth time the Chiefs and Eagles have faced-off in the history of the two franchises. The all-time series is knotted up at 4-4 as Kansas City aims for its third-consecutive victory over Philadelphia, dating back to 2013.

• This marks the third time Chiefs Head Coach Andy Reid has matched up with his former team. He enters the game with a 2-0 receord against the Eagles.

• This will be Chiefs QB Patrick Mahomes' first career game against Philadelphia.

• In the last meeting between the two teams in 2017, the Chiefs defeated the Eagles, 27-20, behind the ninth of TE Travis Kelce's 27-career 100-yard receiving performances. This will be the second game Kelce has played against his brother, Eagles C Jason Kelce.

CHIEFS HEAD COACH ANDY REID

Reid enters his 30th NFL season, 23rd as a head coach and ninth with the Chiefs. In his first eight seasons with the club, Reid tallied 91 wins, more victories than any other head coach in franchise history in that timeframe. In 2019, Reid led the Chiefs to their first Super Bowl appearance and victory in 50 years, bringing the Lombardi Trophy back to Kansas City for the first time since 1969. Additionally, the Chiefs 35-24 victory over the Tennessee Titans in the AFC Championship Game brought the Lamar Hunt Trophy to Kansas City for the first time ever. Under Reid, the Chiefs have made the playoffs seven of eight seasons, including a franchise best 14-2 record in 2020. Reid has led the Chiefs to back-to-back Super Bowl appearances (LIV and LV).

The Chiefs have now played in three-consecutive AFC Championship home games. The club has earned five-straight AFC West titles (2016-20) for the first time in franchise history. In 2015, the Chiefs won their first playoff game since 1994, defeating the Texans 30-0. The team finished 11-5 after a 1-5 start in 2015. It was the greatest turnaround in a single-season in NFL history. In 2013, Reid led the Chiefs to an 11-5 record marking the greatest single-season turnaround in franchise history after the team finished 2-14 in 2012.

Prior to joining the Chiefs, Reid led the Eagles to a 130-93-1 (.583) regular season record during his 14 seasons as head coach. He led the Eagles franchise to one Super Bowl appearance. When you include his time as an NFL assistant coach, his teams have made the playoffs 22 times (26-20 record), and he has coached in five Super Bowls, eight NFC Championships and three AFC Championships. Reid spent seven seasons as an assistant coach with the Green Bay Packers under Head Coach Mike Holmgren. Prior to joining the NFL ranks, Reid's final collegiate stop was the University of Missouri (1989-91). Prior to his stint with the Tigers, Reid spent two years working with the offensive line at the University of Texas – El Paso, and before that, he held the same position with Northern Arizona. In 1983, Reid took the position of offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at San Francisco State (1983-85). A tackle/guard at Brigham Young University from 1979-81, Reid entered the coaching ranks as a graduate assistant at BYU in 1982.

EAGLES HEAD COACH NICK SIRIANNI

Nick Sirianni was named head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles on January 24, 2021, following a productive, three-year stint as the Indianapolis Colts' offensive coordinator from 2018-20. In that span, the Colts combined for a 28-20 (.583) record and made two playoff appearances.

Prior to joining the Colts, Sirianni spent five years (2013-17) as a member of the Los Angeles/San Diego Chargers' coaching staff, working his way from offensive quality control coach (2013) to quarterbacks coach (2014-15) to wide receivers coach (2016-17).

Sirianni began his NFL coaching career with the Kansas City Chiefs (2009-12), serving as wide receivers coach (2012) and offensive quality control coach (2009-11) while also working with the quarterbacks for one season (2010).

Before entering the NFL coaching ranks, Sirianni spent five years at the collegiate level as wide receivers coach at Indiana University of Pennsylvania (2006-08) and as defensive backs coach at Mount Union (2004-05), his alma mater, where he helped the Purple Raiders capture a national title during the 2005 season.

A native of Jamestown, NY, Sirianni was a three-year starter at wide receiver at Mount Union (Alliance, OH), winning three NCAA Division III National Championships (2000-02) and earning All-Ohio Athletic Conference honors as a senior after catching a career-high 13 touchdowns. He also played one year in the Atlantic Indoor Football League with the Canton Legends while coaching in 2005.

CHIEFS VS. EAGLES CONNECTIONS

Professional

• Eagles Defensive Coordinator Jonathan Gannon was a Pro Scout for the St. Louis Rams from 2009-11 at the same time that Chiefs Defensive Coordinator Steve Spagnuolo was Head Coach of the Rams. In those four seasons in St. Louis, Gannon also worked with Chiefs Run Game Coordinator/DL Coach Brendan Daly, OLBs Coach Ken Flajole and LBs Coach Matt House.

• Eagles LB Eric Wilson was teammates with Chiefs CB Mike Hughes (2018-20), RB Jerick McKinnon (2017) and OL Mike Remmers (2017-18) on the Minnesota Vikings.

Former Eagles

• Chiefs Head Coach Andy Reid previously served as Head Coach for the Eagles for 13 seasons from 1999-2012. Reid is Philadelphia's all-time leader in regular season (130) and postseason (10) wins. During his time in Philadelphia, Reid led the Eagles to six division titles, nine playoff appearances, five NFC Championship Games and an appearance in Super Bowl XXXIX.

• Kansas City General Manager Brett Veach (2007-12), President Mark Donovan (2003-08), Asst. Head Coach/Special Teams Coordinator Dave Toub (2001-03), Defensive Coordinator Steve Spagnuolo (1999-06), Vice President of Sports Medicine and Performance Rick Burkholder (1999-2012), Strength and Conditioning Coach Barry Rubin (2008-12), Statistical Analysis Coordinator Mike Frazier (2003-12), Tight Ends Coach Tom Melvin (1999-2012), Asst. Offensive Line Coach Corey Matthaei (2008-12), RBs Coach Greg Lewis (2016) and OLBs Coach Ken Flajole (2016-20) also spent time on Philadelphia's staff prior to joining the Chiefs.

Former Chiefs

• Eagles Head Coach Nick Sirianni began his NFL coaching career with the Kansas City Chiefs (2009-12), serving as WRs Coach (2012) and Offensive Quality Control Coach (2009-11). Sirianni also spent time as the Chiefs Asst. QBs Coach in 2010 and helped QB Matt Cassel receive his first-career Pro Bowl accolade.

• Eagles Passing Game Coordinator Kevin Patullo started coaching in the NFL with the Kansas City Chiefs, where he spent two seasons (2007-08) as an Offensive Assistant and Quality Control Coach, including a stint with the team's wide receivers. In 2008, Patullo helped wide receiver Dwayne Bowe eclipse 1,000 yards (1,022) for the first time in his career after leading all rookies in receptions (70) and receiving yards (995) the previous season.

• Eagles Offensive Quality Control Coach Alex Tanney spent the 2012 season with the Chiefs as a QB.

Personal

• Chiefs TE Travis Kelce is the younger brother of Eagles C Jason Kelce. Both brothers were drafted by Andy Reid.

College

• Eagles QB Jalen Hurts was teammates with Chiefs OL Creed Humphrey at Oklahoma in 2019, when they helped the Sooners to a Big 12 Championship and an appearance in the College Football Playoff.

• Chiefs CB L'Jarius Sneed (2016-19) was teammates with Eagles RB Boston Scott (2013-17) and DT Milton Williams (2017-20) at Louisiana Tech.

• Eagles QB Joe Flacco (2005-07), Chiefs WRs Coach Joe Bleymaier (2002-05) and Chiefs General Manager Brett Veach (1998-01) all played college football at the University of Delaware.

Hometown

• Chiefs General Manager Brett Veach (Mount Carmel) and Vice President of Sports Medicine and Performance Rick Burkholder (Carlisle) are Pennsylvania natives.

WHAT TO WATCH FOR...

• As a unit, the Kansas City Chiefs aim to achieve the franchise's sixth-consecutive AFC West Division title in 2021, potentially extending a club record for consecutive division titles since the team's inception in 1960.

• This season, the Chiefs aim to become the first team in NFL history to host four-consecutive conference championship games.

• The Chiefs look to become the fourth team in NFL history to make three-consecutive Super Bowl appearances, joining the Miami Dolphins (3, 1971-73), Buffalo Bills (4, 1990-93) and New England Patriots (3, 2016-18).

• Head Coach Andy Reid (222) needs five more victories to pass PFHOF head coach Curly Lambeau (226) for the fifth-most regular season wins all-time.

• With 140 total wins with the Philadelphia Eagles and 99 total wins with the Kansas City Chiefs, a win against his former team on Sunday would make Reid the first head coach in NFL history to reach 100 total wins with two different franchises.

• QB Patrick Mahomes aims to extend his streak to 29-consecutive games with a passing touchdown. His current streak of 28-consecutive games is the longest streak in franchise history and the longest active streak in the NFL.

• Mahomes needs one game with a 100.0+ passer rating to pass PFHOF QB Len Dawson (30) for the most such games in franchise history.

• Mahomes looks to extend his franchise record of 28 games with 300 or more passing yards. Since entering the league in 2017, Mahomes' 28 300-yard performances rank second in the NFL, trailing only QB Matt Ryan (29).

• TE Travis Kelce aims for his third-consecutive game with at least 100 receiving yards. Kelce's 27 games of 100+ receiving yards are a franchise record and the third-most by a tight end in league history, trailing only TE Rob Gronkowski (29) and Gonzalez (31).

• Kelce looks to extend his streak to 114-consecutive games with a reception, the second-longest streak in franchise history and third-longest active streak in the NFL. Kelce ranks second in franchise history with 632 career receptions.

• WR Tyreek Hill needs one touchdown to tie WR Otis Taylor (60) for the fifth-most total touchdowns in franchise history. Hill needs two touchdowns to tie RB Larry Johnson (61) for the fourth-most in Chiefs history.

• Hill needs one receiving touchdown to tie WR Stephone Paige (49) for the fifth-most touchdown receptions in franchise history.

• With 100 receiving yards against the Eagles on Sunday, Hill would tie WR Eddie Kennison for the fifth-most games with 100 or more receiving yards in Chiefs history.

• K Harrison Butker aims to extend his streak of 13-consecutive made field goals. Butker needs to make four more consecutive field goals to move into sixth-place for the longest streak in franchise history.

COURTESY OF MATT "STATS" MCMULLEN

Travis Kelce continues to make history: Despite the loss on Sunday, Travis Kelce had another terrific game. Kelce hauled in seven catches for 104 yards, marking his second-consecutive 100-yard performance. In fact, it was the 33rd 100-yard game of Kelce's brilliant career, which matched the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' Rob Gronkowski for the most such games by a tight end in NFL history (including the playoffs). Additionally, three of Kelce's seven receptions occurred on third down. The All-Pro tight end has five catches for 73 yards and a touchdown on third down this season.

Clyde Edwards-Helaire bounced back in a big way: Edwards-Helaire was resilient on Sunday despite fumbling early in the contest, as he bounced back to tally 109 yards of total offense and a touchdown. The former first-round pick recorded exactly 100 of those yards on the ground, notching the third game of his young career with 100 rushing yards. Additionally, Edwards-Helaire forced six missed tackles in the game, according to Pro Football Focus. That was tied for the second-most of any player in Week 3.

Spreading the ball around: Quarterback Patrick Mahomes has connected with seven different pass-catchers this year for touchdowns – the most of any team in the NFL. Travis Kelce (3), Clyde Edwards-Helaire (1), Tyreek Hill (1), Mecole Hardman (1), Demarcus Robinson (1), Byron Pringle (1) and Jody Fortson (1) have all caught a touchdown pass this year.

Home games in bold; all kickoffs are Central Time.

"Flexible scheduling" will be used in Weeks 11-18. Additionally, in Weeks 5-10, flexible scheduling may be used in no more than two weeks. In Weeks 5-17, the schedule lists the games tentatively set for Sunday Night Football on NBC. Only Sunday afternoon games are eligible to be moved to Sunday night, in which case the tentatively scheduled Sunday night game would be moved to an afternoon start time.

For Week 18, two Saturday games and the Sunday night game will be announced no later than six days prior to January 9. The schedule does not list Saturday games or a Sunday night game in Week 18, but games with playoff implications will be moved to those time slots. Flexible scheduling ensures quality matchups in all Sunday time slots in those weeks and gives "surprise" teams a chance to play their way into primetime.

Flexible scheduling will not be applied to games airing on Thursday or Monday nights.

2021 OFFSEASON NOTES

CHIEFS RESHAPE THE O-LINE

The Kansas City Chiefs acquired offensive tackle Orlando Brown via trade with the Baltimore Ravens. The Chiefs traded this year's first-round pick (31st overall), third-round pick (94th overall) and a fourth-round pick (136th overall), along with a 2022 fifth-round pick in exchange for Brown, a second-round pick in 2021 (58th overall) and a sixth-round pick in 2022.

"I'm excited we were able to come to an agreement with the Ravens to acquire Orlando Brown, one of the best offensive tackles in the National Football League," General Manager Brett Veach said. "He's certainly a special kid. This guy is a Pro Bowl player with tremendous size, quickness and power. Not only is he physically talented, but he's incredibly bright and will fit in well in our offensive line room. We're thrilled to get him in a Chiefs uniform."

Brown (6-8, 345) originally entered the NFL as the third-round pick (83rd overall) of the Baltimore Ravens in the 2018 NFL Draft. In three seasons with the Ravens, he played in 48 games (42 starts), starting four postseason games with the club. Brown was selected to two Pro Bowls while in Baltimore (2019, 2020).

The Kansas City Chiefs signed free agent guard Joe Thuney this offseason as well.

"We're very excited to add a proven player like Joe to our roster," GM Brett Veach said. "He has a great deal of experience, including championships. He's been a highly durable, impact player, as both a pass protector and run blocker. He'll bring leadership and a different perspective to the offensive line group. I'd like to thank Joe and his agent, Mike McCartney, for their effort in getting this deal done. We look forward to welcoming Joe into Chiefs Kingdom."

"I'd like to congratulate Brett and his team on getting this deal done with Joe and his representatives," Head Coach Andy Reid said. "Joe is an impressive player. He's everything you want in an offensive lineman with his toughness and work ethic. He's also very intelligent and you can see that translate on the field. I know he's ready to get to work and we're happy to have him."

Thuney (6-5, 308) originally entered the NFL as a third-round pick (78th overall) of the New England Patriots in the 2016 NFL Draft. He played five seasons with the Patriots, starting all 80 games (78 at left guard and two at center).

He started 10 postseason games and was the first player in NFL history to start three-consecutive Super Bowls to begin his career (LI, LII, LIII). Thuney is a two-time Super Bowl champion and earned All-Pro honors following the 2019 season. He's allowed only 7.5 sacks in five NFL seasons.

The Kansas City Chiefs also signed free agent guard Kyle Long, adding more depth to the offensive line.

"We had an opportunity to meet with Kyle yesterday, and what really stood out was how much he loves the game and his drive to get back on the field," General Manager Brett Veach said. "He's in great shape, a three-time Pro Bowler and a really smart player with an incredible football pedigree. We're happy he chose to come here to Kansas City."

Long (6-6, 332) originally entered the NFL as a first-round pick (20th overall) of the Chicago Bears in the 2013 NFL Draft. He spent seven seasons with the Bears (2013-19), playing in 77 games (76 starts) before electing to sit out the 2020 season. Long earned three-consecutive Pro Bowl selections from 2013-15, was second-team All-Pro in 2014, and in 2013 he earned a spot on the PFWA's All-Rookie Team.

The Kansas City Chiefs continued to reshape their offensive line, signing veteran center Austin Blythe.

The six-foot-three, 298-pound Blythe entered the NFL as a seventh-round pick (No. 248 overall) of the Indianapolis Colts in 2016. He appeared in eight games with one start for the Colts that season, but after being waived by Indianapolis that ensuing offseason, Blythe found a home with the Rams and was a regular on their offense in the four seasons since. He appeared in 63 games (48 starts) for Los Angeles since 2017 and also saw action in six playoff games with five starts.

Blythe has started 47 of 48 possible games over the past three seasons, establishing himself as a reliable and consistent contributor along the Rams' offensive line. In fact, Blythe played every offensive snap for Los Angeles in two of the last three seasons (2018 and 2020). His 1,120 offensive snaps in 2020 ranked third among all centers, trailing only the Chargers' Dan Feeney (1,174) and the Eagles' Jason Kelce (1,126).

CHIEFS BOLSTER THE D-LINE

The Kansas City Chiefs signed free agent defensive tackle Jarran Reed, adding more talent to the defensive line.

"We are fortunate to be able to acquire a talent like Jarran and add him to our defensive line room," said General Manager Brett Veach. "Jarran is an extremely gifted three-down player and will be a difference maker for us. We are certainly happy he chose to come to Kansas City."

Reed (6-3, 306) joins the Chiefs after five seasons with the Seattle Seahawks (2016-20). He originally entered the NFL as a second-round selection (49th overall) of the Seahawks in the 2016 NFL Draft. He's played in 72 games (63 starts). Reed's career numbers include 194 tackles (100 solo), 22.0 sacks (-139.0 yards), 22 tackles for loss, 58 pressures and three forced fumbles.

2021 KANSAS CITY CHIEFS DRAFT CLASS

LB Nick Bolton was selected in the second round by the Chiefs with the 58th overall pick of the 2021 NFL Draft. The six-foot-tall, 232-pound Bolton was a star for the Missouri Tigers, starting 22 games over the last two seasons. Bolton notched 16.5 tackles-for-loss and three sacks in that time. He earned First-Team All-SEC honors in each of the last two years and garnered Second-Team All-America recognition in 2020.

C Creed Humphrey was taken in the second round by the Chiefs with the 63rd overall pick of the 2021 NFL Draft. Humphrey appeared in 39 games (37 starts) during his three-year career with the Sooners, tallying 2,488 snaps in that time. Humphrey was recognized with All-America honors in both 2019 (Second Team) and 2020 (Third Team). He was the Big 12 Offensive Lineman of the Year in each of the last two seasons, winning the honor outright in 2020 after sharing it in 2019.

DE Joshua Kaindoh was chosen by the Chiefs in the fourth round (No. 144 overall) of the 2021 NFL Draft. The 22-year-old spent five seasons in Tallahassee, appearing in 13 games with 6.5 tackles-for-loss and four sacks during his freshman campaign in 2017. He tallied 4.5 tackles-for-loss and 3.0 sacks as a sophomore, but an injury sidelined Kaindoh after a strong start.

TE Noah Gray was selected by the Chiefs in the fifth round (No. 162 overall) of the 2021 NFL Draft. The 22-year-old saw action in all four of his seasons - appearing in 26 games between his freshman and sophomore seasons. In total, Gray notched 948 receiving yards and eight touchdowns across 48 games (22 starts) during his time in Durham. He finished his career as Duke's all-time leader in receptions by a tight end (105).

WR Cornell Powell was taken by the Chiefs in the fifth round (No. 181 overall) of the 2021 NFL Draft. The receiver exploded onto the scene last season, and as a fifth-year senior, he racked up 53 grabs for 882 yards and seven touchdowns, averaging 16.6 yards-per-reception. In total, he finished his college career with 93 receptions for 1,211 yards and 10 scores. Powell was placed on the practice squad on September 2, 2021.

OL Trey Smith was chosen by the Chiefs with the No. 226 overall pick. The Tennessee native Smith appeared in 42 games (41 starts) across four years in Knoxville, starting 12 contests during his first season on campus and earning Freshman All-America honors. Smith was forced to miss the final five games the following season due to blood clots in his lungs, but he bounced back in a big way as a junior by earning First Team All-SEC honors in 2019.

CONTINUITY IN THE KINGDOM

The Kansas City Chiefs returned over half (13-of-22) of their starters from last season's AFC Championship team for the 2021-22 season.

The five returning starters on offense are: QB Patrick Mahomes, RB Clyde Edwards-Helaire, WR Tyreek Hill, TE Travis Kelce and T Mike Remmers.

The eight returning starters on defense are: DT Chris Jones, DT Derrick Nnadi, DE Frank Clark, LB Anthony Hitchens, CB Charvarius Ward, CB Rashad Fenton, S Daniel Sorensen and S Tyrann Mathieu.

CHIEFS HALL OF FAME INDUCTEE - TIM GRUNHARD

Kansas City Chiefs Chairman and CEO Clark Hunt announced that former center Tim Grunhard will be the 2021 inductee into the Chiefs Hall of Fame. Grunhard is the 50th individual and 46th player to earn this coveted honor. The official enshrinement ceremony into the Chiefs Hall of Fame will be held during Chiefs Alumni Weekend at GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium.

"We are excited to welcome Tim as the newest member of our Chiefs Hall of Fame," Chiefs Chairman and CEO Clark Hunt said. "In 11 seasons with the club, Tim was a stalwart on one of the most talented offensive line groups in franchise history. Known for his toughness and grit, Tim helped pave the way for Marty Schottenheimer's physical running attack that was a staple of Chiefs football in the 1990s. Off the field, Tim showed a commitment to serving the community throughout his career, and his dedication to Kansas City has continued well after his playing days. We look forward to adding Tim's name to the Ring of Honor at GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium this fall."

Grunhard spent 11 years with the Kansas City Chiefs (1990-2000), appearing in 169 games with 164 starts, including a streak of 120 straight starts from Sept. 5, 1993 - Oct. 29, 2000, the fourth-longest starting campaign in franchise history. His 164 starts with the team are the fifth-most among any player in Chiefs annals. Grunhard took over the role of starting center for the Chiefs during just his third game of his rookie year in 1990 and was rewarded with a nomination to the PFWA All-Rookie Team alongside teammate Dave Szott.

Grunhard was drafted by the Chiefs in the second round (40th overall) of the 1990 NFL Draft after an illustrious career playing under legendary head coach Lou Holtz at Notre Dame where he was a four-year starter and All-American. During his junior and senior campaigns, the Fighting Irish tallied a 24-1 record and brought home a National Championship in 1988.

NEW TO THE KINGDOM

Since the beginning of 2021, the Kansas City Chiefs signed a number of players to bolster the roster heading into the regular season.

THE BEST IN CHIEFS HISTORY

Now in his ninth season as head coach in Kansas City, Andy Reid is the club's third-longest tenured head coach trailing only Pro Football Hall of Fame Coach Hank Stram (15 years) and Marty Schottenheimer (10 years). In his first nine seasons as Head Coach of the Chiefs, Reid has coached the team to a 92-39 record in 131 regular season games. His 70.2 winning percentage is the top mark in franchise history for any coach in his first nine seasons leading the club. Marty Schottenheimer is second on that list, leading his Chiefs teams to a 94-49-1 (65.6%) record in his first nine seasons. In Reid's 131 total games with the Chiefs, he has registered a 48-18 (72.7%) record at home and a 44-21 (67.7%) record on the road.

Amongst active NFL head coaches with their current team, Reid is the sixth-longest tenured coach and his 70.2 regular season win percentage is second only to NE's Bill Belichick (72.3%) amongst head coaches with at least three seasons at the helm.

HE WINS AT HOME AND ON THE ROAD

No matter where his team is playing, home or away, Chiefs Head Coach Andy Reid is consistent. Through 23 seasons and 355 games, Coach Reid has a similar record on the road as he does at home.

HEAD COACH ANDY REID NOTES

REID CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

• Career record of 222-132-1 in the regular season, as well as a 17-15 postseason record. Reid's 239 combined wins rank fifth-most in NFL history and second among active coaches in regular season and postseason wins. He has defeated all 32 NFL teams as a head coach. Reid owns a .627 regular season winning percentage.

• His 91 regular season wins in his first eight seasons with Kansas City are more than any other head coach in franchise history. The Chiefs have now won five-straight AFC West titles (2016-20) for the first time in franchise history. In 2019, KC finished with a 12-4 record for the second year in a row – earning the number one seed in the AFC Playoffs in 2018 and the number two seed in 2019. The Chiefs defeated the Colts, 31-13, on Jan. 12, 2019 to advance to the AFC title game in 2018. The Chiefs defeated the Texans, 51-31, on Jan. 12, 2020 to advance and host the AFC title game for the second year in a row for the first time in franchise history. KC defeated the Titans on Jan. 19 to advance to Super Bowl LIV. The Chiefs defeated the 49ers in Super Bowl LIV for Reid's first Super Bowl victory as a head coach and KC's first SB victory in 50 years. KC earned the number one seed in 2020, finishing with a franchise-best 14-2 record. He became the first person to coach in three-straight home AFC Championship Games.

• The Chiefs finished 12-4 in 2016, earning the number two seed and a first-round bye in the playoffs. Reid guided Kansas City to it's first playoff win in 22 years in 2015. The club finished 11-5 after a 1-5 start, the greatest turnaround in a single season in NFL history. The 2013 Chiefs, led by Head Coach Andy Reid, orchestrated the greatest single-season turnaround in franchise history after an 11-5 finish. In 2012, the team finished 2-14, a +9 turnaround in his first season with the club.During Reid's 14 seasons in Philadelphia, his teams made the postseason nine times, which ranked third in the NFL behind Indianapolis' 12 and New England's 10.

• Including his time as an assistant coach, Reid's teams have now made 22 playoff appearances, as well as five Super Bowl appearances after playing in a combined eight NFC Championships and three AFC Championships. He won Super Bowl XXXI as an assistant in Green Bay and Super Bowl LIV as the head coach in Kansas City. Reid owns three NFC titles, two AFC titles and 14 division titles in his career dating back to his days as an assistant. He mentored Hall of Fame quarterback Brett Favre while with the Packers along with QB Donovan McNabb with the Eagles.

CHIEFS GENERAL MANAGER BRETT VEACH

QUICK FACTS ON CHIEFS GM BRETT VEACH

• Brett Veach was named the seventh general manager in Kansas City Chiefs history on July 10, 2017. Veach is entering his fifth season as an NFL general manager and his 15th year in the National Football League. Prior to being elevated, he previously served as the Chiefs Co-Director of Player Personnel.

• In his first four seasons as the GM, Veach helped the team earn a Super Bowl victory in Super Bowl LIV, two AFC Championships and AFC West titles in 2017, 2018, 2019 and 2020, as well as the number one seed in the AFC in 2018 and 2020, and the number two seed in 2019. The Chiefs defeated the Colts, 31-13, to advance to the AFC title game in 2018. KC defeated the Texans, 51-31, to advance and host the AFC title game for the second year in a row in 2019. The Chiefs defeated the Titans on Jan. 19, to advance to Super Bowl LIV. KC has now hosted three-straight AFC Championship Games (2018-20), advancing to back-to-back Super Bowls for the first time in franchise history. Veach reports directly to Chiefs Chairman & CEO Clark Hunt, who had this to say upon hiring him; "Brett has a sharp football mind, a tremendous work ethic and a keen eye for finding talent. He's played a critical role in building our football team."

• He is in his ninth season with the Chiefs after originally joining the club in 2013. He was promoted to Co-Director of Player Personnel prior to the 2015 season after serving two seasons as the club's Pro and College Personnel Analyst (2013-14).

• The Mount Carmel, Pennsylvania, native served as a Southeast Regional Scout for the Philadelphia Eagles (2011-12) after originally joining Philadelphia's Player Personnel Department as a Pro and College Scout in 2010. Prior to entering the scouting department, Veach was the Assistant to Head Coach Andy Reid for three seasons in Philadelphia (2007-09).

• Before joining the Eagles, Veach was the Supervisor of Intercollegiate Athletic Events at his alma mater, the University of Delaware (2005-06). He was a four-year letterman as a wide receiver for the Blue Hens, catching 99 passes for 1,470 yards (14.8 avg.). He left Delaware as the school's all-time leader in kickoff return yards with 1,558 yards. He was a standout running back for Mount Carmel High School. Wife - Alison; Children - twin sons, Elijah and Wylan, and a daughter, Ella.

CHIEFS CHAIRMAN AND CEO CLARK HUNT

• Clark Hunt has been the driving force behind the resurgence of the Chiefs, transforming the iconic franchise into one of the most successful teams in the NFL.

• Hunt has been Chairman of the Chiefs since 2005, and since taking over an expanded role as both Chairman and CEO in 2010, the Chiefs have earned six AFC West Division Championships, including five straight between 2016-20 under Hunt's leadership. The club has qualified for the playoffs eight times and hosted three-consecutive AFC Championship Games, becoming the first team in the AFC and second team in NFL history (2002-04 Philadelphia Eagles) to host three-straight conference title games.

• Hunt once again hoisted the award that bears his father's name - the Lamar Hunt Trophy - in 2020 as the Chiefs claimed their second-straight AFC Championship. The Chiefs made consecutive Super Bowl appearances for the first time in franchise history and their fourth overall Super Bowl appearance.

• Hunt reorganized the leadership structure of the Chiefs in 2013 so the head coach, the general manager and the team president would all report directly to the Chairman and CEO for the first time in team history. As part of the restructuring, Hunt hired Andy Reid as head coach in 2013, and in the eight seasons since, the club has won 92 regular season games, which ranks second in the NFL over that time.

• Hunt promoted Brett Veach to General Manager in 2017 and during the 2020 season, he extended the contracts of both Reid and Veach, solidifying the leadership of the club's football operation for many years to come.

• Hunt graduated first in his class at Southern Methodist University in 1987, earning a degree in business administration with a concentration in finance. He was a team captain and four-year letterman on the Mustangs' nationally ranked soccer team. He received the SMU Distinguished Alumni Award in 2020 for outstanding leadership in philanthropy, business, and civic life, and currently serves on the SMU Board of Trustees.

• Clark and his wife, Tavia, are actively involved in numerous philanthropic initiatives in both Kansas City and Dallas. The couple has three children - Gracie, Knobel and Ava.

HUNT'S LEADERSHIP AT THE NFL LEVEL

In addition to returning the franchise his father founded to national prominence, Clark Hunt is a leading voice among National Football League owners.

In 2019, Hunt was named Chairman of the Finance Committee after serving as a member for seven years. Hunt is a member and former Chairman of the International Committee and serves on the Management Council Executive Committee (CEC), the Personal Conduct Committee and Commissioner Roger Goodell's Chairmen's Committee. In addition, Hunt was one of six members on the NFL Committee on Los Angeles Opportunities.

In 2006, still early in his role as Chairman of the Chiefs, Hunt served on the NFL's Commissioner Search Committee which recommended Roger Goodell as the successor to then-Commissioner Paul Tagliabue. Hunt was appointed to the NFL's Digital Media Committee in 2007 and served until it was restructured in 2019.

Beyond his service on various league committees, Hunt has served a key role in securing the ongoing labor peace between the National Football League and the NFL Players Association over the past decade. He was appointed by Goodell as one of 10 NFL owners to negotiate the NFL's new Collective Bargaining Agreement in 2011, and again in 2020, Hunt was an integral member of the NFL's negotiating team that helped deliver a new Collective Bargaining Agreement a full season ahead of the deadline.

CARRYING ON THE OFF-FIELD LEGACY

As the son of legendary American sports pioneer and Chiefs Founder Lamar Hunt, Clark Hunt has built upon his father's legacy by ensuring the Chiefs organization remains focused on its core mission: Honor Tradition, Unite Our Community, Win with Character and Inspire Our Fans.

This commitment included a $125 million contribution from the Hunt family as part of the $375 million renovation of Arrowhead Stadium which was completed in 2010, as well as upgraded stadium technology, new seats, and additional stadium infrastructure measures. This commitment to the community extends beyond the field, with more than 50 pieces of art on display as part of the Arrowhead Art Collection, which combines two pieces of the cultural fabric of Kansas City – sports and the arts.

Hunt and his family steward a number of initiatives that were established under Lamar and have continued to grow over the years. The Chiefs Charity Game has raised more than $14.7 million dollars for multiple youth-focused charities since its inception in 1985. Red Friday, the club's annual city-wide season kickoff raised $1 million from flag sales in 2020 alone for the Ronald McDonald House Charities of Kansas City. The team's Kickoff Luncheon serves as a way to welcome the players and coaches back to Kansas City with fans and members of the business community. Finally, the Hunt Family Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization which was established in 1983 as the Chiefs Children's Fund, prioritizes youth-based charities, hunger relief, health and wellness, as well as children and families in crisis through philanthropy, programming, and volunteerism.

• The Chiefs are 15-6 in games that Hill records a play of 50+ yards.

• Hill has had one game with two plays of 50+ yards both resulting in touchdowns. In the club's 2018 season opener at Los Angeles, Hill recorded a 91-yard punt return and a 58-yard TD reception. Hill joined Pro Football Hall of Famer Bob Hayes (December 8, 1968 vs. Pittsburgh) and Tavon Austin (November 10, 2013 at Indianapolis) as the only players in NFL history to record a 50+ yard touchdown catch and a 90+ yard punt-return touchdown in a single game. (Credit NFL Stats)

• His 95- and 91-yard punt returns rank first and fourth, respectively, in franchise history. Hill's four career punt return TDs (all were 50+ yards) rank tied for second place in franchise history.

MAHOMES' SPOT IN NFL RECORD BOOKS

After finishing 2018 with 5,097 passing yards and 50 passing TDs, the signal-caller entered the 2019 season and picked up right where he left off. He made history again in 2020 becoming the fastest QB in the NFL to reach 10,000 passing yards (34 games) and fastest QB to 100 TDs (40 games). In Week 3 of the 2021 season, Mahomes became the fastest QB in league history to reach 15,000 passing yards (49 starts).

OWNERSHIP OF 60+ YEARS

The Chiefs are one of only five current NFL franchises that have been owned by the same individual family for over 60 years.

Ownership	Franchise	Years
Halas Family	Chicago Bears	100
Bidwill Family	Arizona Cardinals	89
Rooney Family	Pittsburgh Steelers	88
Hunt Family	Kansas City Chiefs	62
Adams Family	Tennessee Titans	62

THE FIRST LADY OF FOOTBALL

Norma Hunt continues to play an integral part of the Chiefs in Kansas City. She owns the distinction of being the only woman known to have attended all 55 Super Bowls and was selected to preside over the coin toss at Super Bowl XLI along with Pro Football Hall of Fame quarterback Dan Marino. She is involved in numerous philanthropic and civic efforts in Kansas City and Texas. Her late husband, Lamar Hunt, was the guiding force behind the formation of the Kansas City Chiefs and the American Football League and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1972. He, with the help of his family, coined the term “Super Bowl.”

Hunt, along with her daughter-in-law Tavia Hunt and granddaughters Gracie and Ava Hunt, all participate in the NFL Women’s Apparel advertising campaigns among other ventures. The Hunts have been featured alongside other female NFL leaders such as Charlotte Jones Anderson (Dallas Cowboys Executive Vice President/Chief Brand Officer and NFL Foundation chair), Suzanne Johnson (wife of New York Jets owner Woody Johnson) and Tanya Snyder (wife of Washington Redskins owner Dan Snyder).

CHIEFS FANS SET WORLD RECORD

On Monday, Sept. 29, 2014, Kansas City defeated the New England Patriots 41-14, and Chiefs fans set a Guinness World Record for Loudest Crowd Roar at a Sports Stadium (Outdoors). Chiefs fans reached a peak decibel reading of 142.2 as Guinness World Records adjudicator Philip Robertson monitored the sound levels. The mark was set early in the contest while the club was on defense. The Arrowhead Stadium record passed the old record of 137.5 decibels and broke Seattle's record of 137.6. The Chiefs still hold the record seven years later.

THE ARROWHEAD ADVANTAGE

"The fans, they're phenomenal. 142.2 decibels, I never thought I would be fired up (for) decibel levels but I'm fired up for them. My ears are still ringing, I mean it was loud, loud down there. Like incredibly loud."
- Chiefs Head Coach Andy Reid

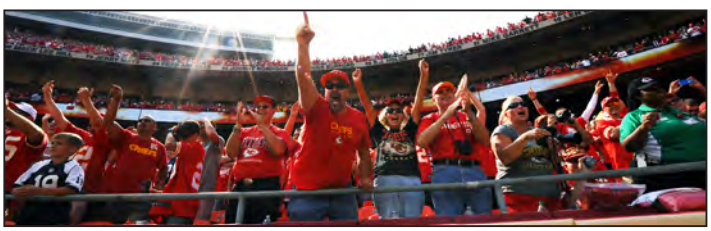
"One hundred percent. Whenever you can go out in pregame warmups and feed on the energy because the fans are there packing the stadium that early, it truly is special. We feed off that the entire game. There's not an empty seat in the stands and I know there won't be an empty seat in Arrowhead this week. I'm excited just to be in front of that crowd playing this AFC Championship."
- Chiefs QB Patrick Mahomes

"A legendary environment like that at Arrowhead Stadium is something else. We're excited about it, we respect it, we realize that the environment is an issue and an element of play and it's something that we need to be prepared for and ultimately combat."
- Steelers Head Coach Mike Tomlin

"I thought the fans were excellent. Nobody left and everybody stayed, and they were loud and that definitely helped. Like I mentioned, they were able to get a punter to bobble the ball. That's an attribute to them and the energy they were delivering there, but we appreciate every bit of that, and like I mentioned last night, my hat goes off to them. They're the best in the NFL. It's great to be a part of."
– Head Coach Andy Reid

"Yeah, listen, it was loud down there—very, very loud. You guys were there, so you know. It was that kind of atmosphere. I think you watched all the college games and you felt that. Arrowhead is loud anyways—how you load this thing up and you say you can't come here for a year you know, and you just open the gates."
– Head Coach Andy Reid

"Yeah I think it's kind of what I said it's the belief we have in each other. We believe as an offense that the defense is going to get a stop when it comes to it and the defense believes that we're going to go down there and find a way to score. So, I think that belief in each other and going out there and battling is good for our football team. What I think made it feel like a playoff game was our crowd. I mean it was insane, probably one of the best crowds I've seen since I've been here. I think that was a momentum swing in the game that kind of got in our favor."
– QB Patrick Mahomes



THE ORIGIN OF SUPER BOWL & SUPER BOWL IV

Lamar Hunt left an indelible mark on professional football. While Hunt made many lasting contributions to the game, part of his legacy will be his "accidental" naming of pro football's most important contest, the Super Bowl. As the story has been told and retold over the years, some of the facts have gotten lost along the way. Here are some of the most important elements of the tale in how the Super Bowl got its name...

- After the AFL-NFL merger was announced in June of 1966, Commissioner Pete Rozelle appointed a committee consisting of himself, Lamar Hunt (Kansas City), Tex Schramm (Dallas) and two other owners from each league (AFL & NFL) to firm up the details of the merger agreement.

- At one of those initial merger meetings, there was a discussion about the date of the game. As the committee discussed the championship game (which ultimately became referenced as the Super Bowl), there was some confusion on whether the parties were discussing the respective AFL and NFL title games or the game between the two leagues. It was then that Hunt first recalled saying, "You know, the last game, the final game . . . the Super Bowl."

- The "inspiration" for Hunt's whimsical suggestion was the high-bouncing "Super Ball" produced by the Wham-O company. Lamar's wife, Norma, had previously purchased one for each of the Hunt children (Lamar Jr., Clark and Sharron) and the toy had become somewhat of a craze in the Hunt household and many other homes across the country.

- Hunt was later quoted as saying, "Nobody ever said let's make that the name of the game. Far from it, we all agreed it was far too corny to be the name of the new title game."

- In a letter from Hunt to Rozelle on July 25, 1966, Hunt urged the commissioner to "coin a phrase" for the title game between the two leagues. In the letter, Hunt said, "I have kiddingly called it the Super Bowl, which can obviously be improved upon."

- Rozelle agreed with Hunt's suggestion since he had a particular disdain for the term "super." According to longtime NFL executive Don Weiss, Rozelle was a former PR man who had a keen appreciation of grammar. In Rozelle's book, "super" was the equivalent of "gee whiz" or "neat." He believed that the term "Super Bowl" had no sophistication whatsoever.

- Rozelle was initially inclined to call the game the "Pro Bowl," but that moniker was already assigned to the NFL's annual all-star contest.

- In the years leading up to the merger, many members of the media had billed a possible championship match-up between the two rival leagues as a "World Series of Football," but Rozelle clearly did not want to have his game associated with baseball.

- After much consternation and debate, Rozelle eventually dubbed the title contest between the two leagues as "The AFL-NFL World Championship Game." However, Hunt's whimsical, off-the-cuff comment had taken root. In the weeks leading up to the game, headline writers had already adapted Hunt's two-word title over the much more verbose official moniker for the game. The TV networks billed the game as "Super Sunday" and even NFL Films tagged their film reels as being designated for the "Super Bowl."

- After the first two "AFL-NFL World Championship Games," the term "Super Bowl" was officially adopted by Commissioner Rozelle and the NFL. The first game to officially be designated as the Super Bowl at the time it was played was Super Bowl III between the AFL's Jets and the NFL's Colts. The first two championship games were retroactively named Super Bowls I & II.

CHIEFS HOFERS FROM SB IV

Prior to Super Bowl LIV, it had been 50 years since the Kansas City Chiefs played in a Super Bowl (IV). That game served as the final AFL-NFL World Championship Game in the history of professional football. The spectacle at Tulane Stadium in New Orleans, La., helped pave the way for the eventual AFL-NFL merger later that year (1970).

In all, 17 members from both the Chiefs and the Vikings that took part in Super Bowl IV were later inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, including both head coaches, Hank Stram and Bud Grant, as well as Chiefs Founder Lamar Hunt and Vikings General Manager Jim Finks. For the Chiefs, 10 members of the Super Bowl IV Championship were later enshrined into the hallowed halls in Canton.

NORMA HUNT FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The Kansas City Chiefs are proud to introduce the Norma Hunt Training Camp Fellowship Program beginning in 2021. Named after the matriarch of the team and the only known woman to attend all 55 Super Bowls, the fellowship opportunity is part of the Chiefs commitment to diversity and inclusion.

The positions will actively expand NFL front office career opportunities for women by annually hiring female candidates into the club's personnel department.

The Norma Hunt Training Camp Fellowship Program will include exposure in pro and college scouting, free agent tryouts, salary cap and contracts, team operations, player engagement and other departments within football operations.

CHIEFS ANNOUNCE NAMING RIGHTS PARTNER

On March 4, 2021, the Kansas City Chiefs and GEHA (Government Employees Health Association, Inc., pronounced G.E.H.A.) jointly announced a historic naming rights agreement that made the nonprofit medical and dental plan provider the first - and exclusive - naming rights partner for Arrowhead Stadium. Beginning with the 2021 season, the home of the Chiefs became GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium.

The announcement expanded on an already robust partnership between GEHA and the Chiefs, which had grown significantly since the relationship was first announced in July 2019, when GEHA became the club's Exclusive Health, Dental and Vision Plan Partner. The agreement also highlighted the commitment of both GEHA and the Chiefs to ensuring Arrowhead Stadium remained part of the identity of the stadium.

"We are extremely proud and excited to announce our naming rights agreement with GEHA. When we set out to find a partner for the field at Arrowhead, it was critical to identify a national leader that shares our core values, as well as a deep connection to the local community and respect for Chiefs Kingdom," Chiefs President Mark Donovan said at the time of the announcement. "Our relationship with GEHA over the last few years has only served to reinforce the alignment between our two organizations and proven their strong, long-standing relationship with the local community. This expanded partnership will continue to build lasting health and wellness programs that support the team, GEHA and our community."

GEHA is a national leader in providing medical and dental plans to more than 2 million federal employees, retired military and their families worldwide. Both GEHA and the Chiefs are deeply committed to promoting their missions of driving and supporting health and wellness and this naming rights agreement provides a highly visible platform to support GEHA's efforts to empower its members to be health and well.

"Expanding our commitment to the team and community with naming rights for GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium is the natural extension of the partnership we first put in place with the Chiefs in 2019," Shannon Horgan, GEHA's chief growth officer, said at the time of the announcement. "Through our relationship with the Chiefs, we have been able to accelerate awareness of GEHA's mission, the breadth of our provider networks, and the quality of our health plans. The opportunity to grow our brand helps us reinvest in the families and individuals we serve and will be an invaluable benefit to current and future GEHA members. Expanding this partnership will help GEHA do what we do best – serve those who serve us."

Throughout the 2021 offseason, team and stadium staff worked with GEHA and Kansas City-based architecture and design firm Populous on the development of a signage package and plan that would ensure that both temporary and long-term GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium branding and logo assets would be in place by the kickoff of the 2021 Chiefs season - the 50th season for the Chiefs in the iconic stadium.

> "We were looking for the right partner. We were looking for someone who has a base and an impact in this community. We found a company in GEHA who not only had been here longer than us, were bigger than anyone knew, and no one knew about them. And then they have a story that is so Kansas City. To be about to partner with that company, to use our assets to build their brand, you don't really find that very often.

THE STADIUM'S LAST 15 YEARS AT A GLANCE

The stadium opened its doors for the first time on Aug. 12, 1972 as the Chiefs hosted the St. Louis Cardinals in front of 78,190 fans for a preseason game. Since that initial contest, much has changed at the iconic venue through multiple renovation projects and and upgrades to the facility. While many modernizations have taken place, the spirit of the stadium remains the same as it was for that first preseason football game in 1972.

2006: On April 4, 2006, Jackson County, Mo., taxpayers approved a 3/8 cent sales tax that was expected to raise $425 million for improvements to the Sports Complex, including $212.5 million for Arrowhead. The State of Missouri also contributed $37.5 million. In addition, the Hunt family contributed $125 million to the project.

2010: Upgrades were officially done prior to the start of the 2010 season and included Founder's Plaza, the Ford Fan Zone, the Chiefs Sports Lab, the Chiefs Hall of Honor, the Founder's Club, the CommunityAmerica Club Level and a new team store. Other improvements included an upgraded sound and scoreboard system, a 360-degree video ribbon board and concourses that were doubled in size.

2013: The club introduced a stadium-wide Wi-Fi network, installing 600 high-density wireless access points as part of a seven-figure investment to create a more fully integrated mobile experience for Chiefs fans. Arrowhead Wi-Fi changed the way fans consumed Chiefs content in-stadium and also changed the way fans interact with the team and each other. The Wi-Fi network received additional upgrades in 2017 and 2018.

2019: Prior to the 2019 season, the Chiefs committed more than $10 million in upgrades to the stadium, including concrete repairs and new waterproofing measures in the stadium's upper level. In addition, the club replaced nearly all seats in the upper deck. The club also upgraded the technology in the west scoreboard to state-of-the-art LED technology that offers an enhanced screen image for fans in-stadium. The team introduced the GEHA Drum Deck, moving the club's pregame drum tradition from field-level to a more prominent location in the upper deck in the west endzone.

2020: In the week following Kansas City's AFC Championship victory on Jan. 19, 2020, the club announced multiple offseason projects for the 2020 season, including new seats in the lower bowl; a technology upgrade to the east end zone scoreboard; enclosing multiple open-air field box suites; and an expanded Team Store.

2021: The club finished the third phase of the three-year seat replacement project by installing all new seats on the CommunityAmerica Club Level. The team also completed a massive renovation to the home locker room complex inside the stadium, including not only the Chiefs locker room, but the equipment room, athletic training room and the coaches' locker rooms. After a decade as the preeminent space dedicated to Chiefs and AFL history, the Chiefs Hall of Honor on the lower level concourse of the stadium received a substantial upgrade, providing a more upscale, fully enclosed, temperature-controlled museum experience while creating a new special events space.

To this day, GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium remains one of the most iconic stadiums in the NFL, and these improvements ensure it is not only one of the nation's top venues for fans to experience the excitement of the NFL, but is also a year-round entertainment destination serving the entire Midwest region.

YEAR TWO OF KINGDOM UNITED

As part of the club's ongoing efforts to Inspire Change in Chiefs Kingdom, the Kansas City Chiefs, along with players and community partners, have launched the second year of "Kingdom United" – the club's youth-focused diversity and inclusion initiative.

"The Chiefs are committed to uniting the community, and the goal of Kingdom United is to help young people appreciate those around them and embrace the diversity that exists in our country," Chiefs Team Clinician Dr. Shaun Tyrance said. "Through this initiative, elementary school students get the opportunity to have meaningful discussions about equity and inclusion, as well as learn the power of kindness and compassion. Kingdom United has the potential to have a long-term impact on the greater Kansas City area and beyond."

The Kingdom United program is in 12 elementary schools in 2021 after launching in five pilot elementary schools in 2020 and aims to promote unity among students throughout Chiefs Kingdom and beyond by providing strategic educational books and multi-media resources to teach the next generation about race, diversity, inclusion and acceptance.

In addition, two active Chiefs players – DE Alex Okafor and CB Charvarius Ward – have elected to sponsor Kingdom United at their own elementary schools. This is the second year Okafor has sponsored the program at Spring Hill Elementary in Pflugerville, Texas, and this marks the first year that Ward has adopted the program for Otken Elementary in McComb, Mississippi.

"After an abundance of positive feedback in its first year, I felt it was necessary to bring back the Kingdom United reading program for another year [at Spring Hill Elementary in Pflugerville, Texas]," Okafor said. "Social justice isn't an issue that we attack when it's convenient or fresh on our mind. We have to consistently be mindful of these issues if we want to make real change."

"McComb, Mississippi, and Otken Elementary played a major role in helping me get to where I am today," Ward said. "And I think Kingdom United gives me a great opportunity to give back to the community and help educate young people on the importance of valuing and accepting others."

The 2021 roster of Kingdom United school includes:

- *Whittier Elementary in Kansas City, Missouri, a City Year Kansas City school
- *University Academy in Kansas City, Missouri
- Eastwood Hills Elementary in Kansas City, Missouri
- Ervin Elementary School in Kansas City, Missouri
- John Fiske Elementary in Kansas City, Kansas
- *Wolf Springs Elementary in Overland Park, Kansas
- Pleasant Ridge Elementary in Easton, Kansas
- *Hillcrest Elementary in Lawrence, Kansas
- Spring Hill Elementary in Spring Hill, Kansas
- Royal Valley Elementary in Hoyt, Kansas
- *Spring Hill Elementary in Pflugerville, Texas, adopted by Chiefs DE and former student Alex Okafor
- Otken Elementary in McComb, Mississippi, adopted by Chiefs CB and former student Charvarius Ward

CHIEFS HOST VIRTUAL Q&A FOR FLAG FOOTBALL TEAM

As part of the Chiefs celebration of Latinx Heritage Month, the Chiefs along with TICO Sports hosted a virtual huddle featuring female athletes from our Chiefs Flag Football partner league located in Mexico City, Affexmex Flag Football. Included on the call was former Chiefs Punter and current Ambassador Louie Aguiar and current Chiefs Punter Tommy Townsend. During the virtual huddle call, the youth athletes asked questions to gain some insight from Aguiar and Townsend as well as the TICO Sports team.

"The biggest thing to remember is football is just a game and to just have fun with it," said Townsend. "Just go out and have fun with your friends and try to do the best you can do."

Chiefs Flag Football is the only youth football program where players wear official Chiefs gear and get exclusive Chiefs perks and support throughout the year. With over 15,000 participants and 50 co-ed playing locations, there is a Chiefs Flag league to fit any age and skill level. Affemex Flag Football joined Chiefs Flag in 2020 and has several middle school female teams participating this fall in Mexico City.

CHIEFS ANNOUCE COACHES OF THE WEEK

The Kansas City Chiefs have announced their Coach of the Week honors for the third week of the season. The awards went to Odessa High School coach Mark Thomas (Missouri) and Basehor-Linwood High School coach Rod Stallbaumer (Kansas).

The Odessa Bulldogs have won 28-straight games going back to the start of the 2019 season.

"I want to thank the Kansas City Chiefs and the National Football League for this award and also thank them for what they do for high school football in the Kansas City area and across the country," Thomas said. "Receiving this honor is quite humbling because there are so many great coaches and programs in the Kansas City metro. I would like to receive this honor on behalf of our team and coaching staff. Their commitment and hard work has made this award possible."

Basehor-Linwood moved to 3-0 with a win over Center High School.

"I am very humbled to accept this award on behalf of our coaching staff, our players, administration and our community," Stallbaumer said. "Our players have bought into the four-year process, year-round dedication to self-improvement and hard work and the Basehor-Linwood community is extremely supportive. We appreciate the Kansas City Chiefs organization for recognizing our community and our team's efforts."

In its 25th season, the 2021 High School Coach of the Week is a joint initiative of the Kansas City Chiefs and the National Football League. This program is designed to recognize and reward Kansas City area high school coaches for superior performance on a weekly basis while honoring individuals who are shaping today's youth and tomorrow's leaders.

CHIEFS CLAIM LAMAR HUNT TROPHY, SUPER BOWL BOUND… AGAIN: For the second-consecutive year, the Chiefs secured the Lamar Hunt Trophy as the AFC champions. In doing so, Kansas City advances to the Super Bowl for the fourth time in franchise annals and earns back-to-back appearances for the first time in team history.

REID MOVES UP POSTSEASON WIN CHART: With today's AFC Championship win vs. Buffalo, Head Coach Andy Reid accumulated his 17th career postseason victory, tying PFHOF coach Joe Gibbs for the fourth-most career postseason wins by a head coach in NFL history. He now owns 238 career combined victories (regular and postseason), which is the fifth-highest total in NFL history.

Tonight's game marked Reid's eighth conference championship appearance as a head coach, surpassing Pro Football Hall of Famers Chuck Noll (seven) and Don Shula (seven) for the third-most appearances by a head coach since 1970. Only New England's Bill Belichick (13) and Pro Football Hall of Famer Tom Landry (10) have more.

MAHOMES MAKES POSTSEASON HISTORY: With his start in tonight's game, Mahomes became the 12th quarterback since the 1970 merger to start in three-consecutive conference championship games and the first to accomplish the feat prior to his 26th birthday. He is also the first quarterback ever to accomplish the feat in his first four seasons in the league. With their starts in today's game, Kansas City QB Patrick Mahomes (25 years old) and Buffalo QB Josh Allen (24) became just the second pair of opposing quarterbacks under the age of 26 to start a conference championship game, joining Vince Ferragamo (25 years old) of the Los Angeles Rams and Doug Williams (24) of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the 1979 NFC title game.

MAHOMES SETS POSTSEASON QB RECORD: Chiefs QB Patrick Mahomes completed 29-of-38 passes (76.3%) for 325 yards with three passing touchdowns, good for a 127.6 passer rating. With three touchdown passes in tonight's game, Mahomes passes Seahawks QB Russell Wilson (16) for the most postseason passing touchdowns by a player in his first four seasons in NFL history. His 2,054 postseason passing yards are the third-most by any quarterback in their first four seasons in the NFL.

KELCE LAUNCHES INTO THE ENDZONE…TWICE: Chiefs TE Travis Kelce scored two receiving touchdowns in tonight's game, giving him nine career postseason receiving touchdowns. Kelce's nine postseason touchdowns are the most postseason receiving touchdowns in Chiefs history and the second-most overall touchdowns in the postseason. His nine postseason receiving touchdowns are the second-most by a tight end in playoff history, passing TEs Dave Casper (seven) and Vernon Davis (seven) and trailing only Tampa Bay TE Rob Gronkowski (12). With his two touchdown receptions tonight, Kelce now owns 54 career postseason points, the third most in franchise history.

RECORD WATCH – PHILADELPHIA EAGLES

TEAM

The Chiefs have scored in 133 consecutive games dating back to Week 16 of 2012, the third-best streak in franchise history. Putting points on the board in Sunday's game would give the Chiefs 134 straight games scoring points.

The Chiefs have scored a touchdown in 57 consecutive games dating back to Week 12 of 2017, the third-best streak in franchise history. Scoring a touchdown on Sunday would give the Chiefs 58 straight games scoring a touchdown. With a touchdown in eight consecutive games, the club's active streak would become the second-longest streak in franchise history, passing a streak of 64 consecutive games from 1997-01.

Under Head Coach Andy Reid (since 2013), the Chiefs are 23-7 (.767) in the month of September.

Kansas City has won a franchise-record five-consecutive division titles (2016-20), tying for the longest streak of division titles in AFC West history (Oakland, 1972-76; Denver 2011-15). With a sixth-consecutive division title in 2021 the Chiefs would become the first team in the history of the AFC West to win six consecutive division championships.

The Chiefs own 496 regular season victories in franchise history, ranking 14th in NFL history. The club needs four more victories to cross the 500-win plateau and would become the 14th NFL team to accumulate 500 franchise victories.

The Chiefs have hosted three consecutive AFC Championship Games at GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium. The club is looking to become the first team in NFL history to host four-consecutive conference championship games.

HEAD COACH ANDY REID

With a win on Sunday, Head Coach Andy Reid will accumulate his 240th overall victory (regular and postseason), the fifth-most career wins by a head coach in NFL history. Currently he only trails New England's Bill Belichick (312) among active head coaches. Reid and Belichick are the only two active NFL head coaches with 200 or more wins. His 222-career regular season wins (130 in Philadelphia, 92 in Kansas City) are the sixth most regular season wins in NFL history.

Andy Reid owns 92 regular season wins as head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, ranking as the third-most regular season victories by a head coach in franchise history. He needs eight victories to become the third coach to reach 100 career regular season wins with the Chiefs (Hank Stram, 124; Marty Schottenheimer, 101). He needs 10 wins to pass Marty Schottenheimer (101) for second-most regular season wins in franchise history.

PATRICK MAHOMES

In four seasons QB Patrick Mahomes has thrown for 15,092 passing yards, the fifth-most passing yards in Chiefs history. He needs 2,186 passing yards to pass QB Bill Kenney (17,277) for fourth and needs 2,517 yards to pass QB Alex Smith (17,608) for third. Mahomes became the fastest quarterback in NFL history to reach 15,000 passing yards, doing so in just 49 career starts. He outpaced QB Matthew Stafford and PFHOF QB Kurt Warner who both crossed the 15,000-yard plateau in their 53rd start.

Mahomes' 28 300+ yard games in his career are the most in franchise history. His 28 games with 300+ passing yards are the second-most by any quarterback since he entered the NFL in 2017, trailing only Atlanta QB Matt Ryan.

Mahomes has thrown 205 20+ yard passes during his career, ranking third in Chiefs history. He needs 11 more 20+ yard passes to pass QB Alex Smith (215) for second-most in franchise history.

Mahomes has delivered a 100.0+ passer rating in 30 games in his career in Kansas City, tied with PFHOF QB Len Dawson (30) for the most such games in franchise history. He needs just one more 100.0 rating performance to pass Dawson for the franchise record for most such performances in team history. His 30 career games with a 100.0+ passer rating are tied for the ninth most performances by an NFL quarterback since 2017.

Mahomes owns a 108.9 career passer rating, the highest in Chiefs history.

Mahomes has thrown 123 passing touchdowns, ranking as the second-most TD throws in franchise history. He now trails only PFHOF QB Len Dawson (237) for first.

Mahomes has compiled a 66.30 career completion percentage, the highest in franchise history.

Mahomes' 8.39 yards career passing average is the highest in Chiefs history.

With just 27 interceptions thrown, Mahomes owns a 1.50 interception percentage, the second-lowest in franchise history behind QB Alex Smith (1.35).

Mahomes has thrown a touchdown pass in 28 straight games dating back to Week 5 of the 2019 season, extending the franchise record for the most consecutive games with a touchdown pass. His streak of 28-consecutive games with a touchdown pass is the longest active streak in the NFL.

Mahomes has completed 1,192 passes in his career, the fifth-most in franchise history. He needs to register 139 more attempts to pass QB Bill Kenney (1,330) for fourth-most attempts in franchise history.

Mahomes has attempted 1,798 passes in his career, the fifth-most in franchise history. He needs to attempt 633 more passes to move past QB Bill Kenney (2,430) for fourth.

Mahomes has rushed for 874 yards in his career, the third-most by a quarterback in Chiefs history. He needs 380 rushing yards to pass QB Len Dawson (1,253) for the second-most rushing yards by a quarterback in team history.

Mahomes owns seven rushing touchdowns in his career, tying with Mike Livingston for the third-most rushing touchdowns by a quarterback in franchise history. He needs one to move past Livingston for third-place outright, and four to move past PFHOF QB Len Dawson (9) and QB Alex Smith (10) for the most rushing TDs by a QB in franchise history.

Mahomes is 11-2 as a starter in the month of September, completing 328 of 481 passes (68.2%) with 41 touchdowns and three INTs for a 121.5 passer rating.

TRAVIS KELCE

TE Travis Kelce owns 632 career receptions, second-most by a tight end and also by any pass catcher in franchise history. He became only the second Chiefs tight end to record at least 600 career receptions.

Kelce has a reception in 113 consecutive games, the second-best mark in franchise history. His 113 consecutive games with a pass reception sit as the third-longest active streak in the NFL.

Kelce owns 8,170 career receiving yards to rank second among all tight ends and second among all pass catchers in franchise history. He is just the second TE and second overall player in franchise history to reach 8,000 career receiving yards.

Kelce's 8,170 receiving yards rank as the eighth-most by a tight end in NFL history, becoming just the eighth tight end in NFL history to record 8,000 receiving yards. He, TE Rob Gronkowski (8,668) and TE Jimmy Graham (8,350) as the only three active tight ends with more than 8,000 receiving yards. He became the quickest tight end to reach the 8,000-yard plateau, doing so in just 113 games, outpacing the previous mark of 120 games set by TE Rob Gronkowski.

Kelce ranks fourth in franchise history for most yards from scrimmage in a career with 8,176. He became the fourth player in franchise history to record more than 8,000 career scrimmage yards. He needs 272 scrimmage yards to pass RB Priest Holmes (8,447) for third place on the list and needs 1,544 scrimmage yards to pass RB Jamaal Charles (9,717).

Kelce owns 115 career receptions of 20 or more yards, the second most in franchise history. He needs 16 receptions of 20+ yards to pass TE Tony Gonzalez (130) for the top mark in team history.

Kelce owns 51 career receiving touchdowns, the fourth-most receiving touchdowns in franchise history. He needs five more to pass TE Chris Burford (55) for third-most in franchise history and needs seven more to pass WR Otis Taylor for second place.

Kelce recoded a touchdown reception in six straight games from Dec. 6, 2020 vs. Denver through Sept. 19, 2021 at Baltimore to rank second in franchise history for most consecutive games with a touchdown reception. His six straight games with a touchdown reception tied for the second-longest streak of consecutive games with a touchdown reception by a tight end in NFL history, trailing only Antonio Gates who recorded nine consecutive games with a receiving touchdown from 2009-10.

Kelce has 27 career games with 100 or more receiving yards, passing PFHOF TE Tony Gonzalez (26) for most 100-yard receiving performances in franchise history.

Kelce's 27 career games with 100 or more receiving yards are the third-most 100-yard outings by a TE in NFL history. He needs three more 100-yard games to pass Rob Gronkowski (29) for second and needs five to pass Tony Gonzalez (31) for most such games by a tight end in NFL history.

TYREEK HILL

WR Tyreek Hill owns five-career special teams touchdowns (4 punt returns, 1 kickoff return), ranking third in team history. He needs four to pass WR Tamarick Vanover (8) for second place on the all-time list. His four punt returns TDs leave him one shy of tying for most punt return touchdowns in team history with WR Dante Hall (5).

Hill has 1,009 career punt return yards to rank fifth in team history. Hill's 13 punt return yards in the game versus Baltimore (12/9/18) moved him past 1,000 career punt return yards and made him only the fifth player in franchise history to record 1,000 career punt return yards. He needs 21 more punt return yards to pass CB Javier Arenas (1,029) for fourth-most punt return yards in Chiefs history.

Hill owns 90 career receptions of 20 or more yards, the fourth most in franchise history. He needs 12 more 20+ receptions to pass WR Dwayne Bowe (101) for third place.

Hill owns 48 career receiving touchdowns, the sixth-most in Chiefs history.

Hill has tallied 16 career 100-yard receiving games to rank sixth in team history, needing one more such game to tie WR Eddie Kennison for fifth (17), two more to tie WR Carlos Carson for fourth (18) and three to move into sole possession of third-place.

HARRISON BUTKER

K Harrison Butker owns 13 made field goals of 50+ yards for his career, passing PFHOF K Jan Stenerud (12) for the second-most field goals of 50 or more yards in franchise history. He needs to make eight more 50+ yard field goals to pass Nick Lowery for most in franchise history.

Butker has 569 career points, the third-most points all-time in Chiefs history.

Butker has 124 made field goals in his career, the third-most in Chiefs history.

Butker has attempted 137 field goals in his career, the fourth-most in Chiefs history. He needs to attempt 11 more field goals to pass Ryan Succop (147) for third-most attempts in franchise history.

Butker owns a 90.5 career field goal percentage, the highest in Chiefs history. His 87.7 career field goal percentage at GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium is the second highest in franchise history only behind K Pete Stoyanovich (88.1).

Butker has attempted 210 extra points in his career with Kansas City, the third-most in franchise history.

Butker has made 197 extra points in his career with the Chiefs, ranking as the third-most in team history.

Butker has made 13 straight field goals dating back to Nov. 29, 2020 (at Tampa Bay) and needs to make four more consecutive field goals to move into sixth-place in franchise history.

Chiefs reach naming-rights deal for Arrowhead Stadium with Lee's Summit-based GEHA

Herbie Teope

March 5, 2021

KC Star

Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium has a new name effective for the 2021 NFL season.

Lee's Summit-based Government Employees Health Association (GEHA) will have its name highlighted at 1 Arrowhead Drive as the stadium's first sponsor, the team announced Thursday.

The stadium's full name will now be GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium.

The Chiefs' 76,416-seat stadium, renovated in 2009, plays host to the team's home games.

Financial terms of the agreement with GEHA (which is pronounced G.E.H.A., as letters, like NFL or NCAA) were not disclosed. But the contract runs through the end of the Chiefs' current stadium-lease agreement, which expires in 2031, with the Jackson County Sports Complex Authority.

Many teams around the NFL have had sponsorship deals for their respective venues for years. But Thursday's announcement marks the first time in Chiefs history that the organization has sold naming rights to its tradition-rich venue since construction began in 1968.

The stadium opened for its first full season of games in 1972.

"We are extremely proud and excited to announce our naming rights agreement with GEHA," Chiefs president Mark Donovan said in a statement. "When we set out to find a partner for the field at Arrowhead, it was critical to identify a national leader that shares our core values, as well as a deep connection to the local community and respect for Chiefs Kingdom.

"Our relationship with GEHA over the last few years has only served to reinforce the alignment between our two organizations and proven their strong, long-standing relationship with the local community. This expanded partnership will continue to build lasting health and wellness programs that support the team, GEHA and our community."

The Chiefs and quarterback Patrick Mahomes already had a relationship with GEHA. The parties signed a partnership deal in 2019. In addition to being the Chiefs' exclusive partner for health, dental and vision plans, the Chiefs also held two season ticket-holder fan events presented by GEHA during their 2020 training camp at Arrowhead.

Thursday's deal further cemented the strong association already in place.

"It's something that's actually worked out very well for both sides because we've got a really good understanding of each other," Donovan told The Star.

GEHA, which was founded in 1937, is a provider of health, dental and vision plans to federal employees, retired military members, families and dependents, according to the organization's website. The company employs about 1,200 people in Eastern Jackson County and counts in excess of 2 million clients.

"Expanding our commitment to the team and community with naming rights for GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium is the natural extension of the partnership we first put in place with the Chiefs in 2019," GEHA chief growth officer Shannon Horgan said in a statement. "Through our relationship with the Chiefs, we have been able to accelerate awareness of GEHA's mission, the breadth of our provider networks, and the quality of our health plans.

"The opportunity to grow our brand helps us reinvest in the families and individuals we serve and will be an invaluable benefit to current and future GEHA members. Expanding this partnership will help GEHA do what we do best – serve those who serve us."

Donovan, who has been with the Chiefs since 2009, said that the Chiefs organization has had its share of potential suitors over the past years. But the team's desire to find a local partner that understood the longstanding tradition of Arrowhead Stadium and the team's fan base, referred to as "Chiefs Kingdom," proved essential in any potential deal.

With GEHA's ties to the city, it didn't take long for the Chiefs to grasp that they found the right partner.

"We knew we were in a good place with GEHA when in the very first meeting they told us that if they were going to actually execute this that they would demand that Arrowhead stay part of the name, because they understand that," Donovan said. "They understand the importance of that."

Horgan agreed.

"The Arrowhead name means so much to the Kansas City community," Horgan told The Star in a telephone interview. "And frankly, we employ 1,500 people in the local K.C. market, as well, so it means a lot to our employees and fans alike.

"The starting point in this deal was really how can we maintain that Arrowhead name and brand, and just be part of it. That's where we landed with GEHA Field at Arrowhead Stadium."

According to the Chiefs' announcement, stadium staff members will begin integrating GEHA branding and logo assets throughout the stadium in coming months. New stadium signage is scheduled to be place when the Chiefs kick off the 2021 regular season, the Chiefs said.

With the Chiefs' home stadium name now sponsored, there are only four remaining NFL stadiums without a corporate naming-rights partnership: Lambeau Field in Green Bay, Wisc.; Bills Stadium in Orchard Park, N.Y.; Paul Brown Stadium in Cincinnati; and Soldier Field in Chicago. Bills Stadium was previously known as New Era Field from 2006 to 2020.

The Chiefs' neighboring professional sports venue at the Truman Sports Complex, the Kansas City Royals' Kauffman Stadium, is one of just 10 Major League Baseball stadiums without naming rights. That ballpark opened as Royals Stadium in 1973 before being renamed for franchise founder Ewing Kauffman in 1993.

In downtown Kansas City, the T-Mobile Center, formerly known as Sprint Center, typically plays host to an assortment of sports and entertainment events, including the Big 12 Men's Basketball Tournament set for March 10-13.

And in Independence, just east of the Truman Sports Complex down Interstate-70, the Kansas City Mavericks minor-league hockey team plays at Cable Dahmer Arena, formerly known as Silverstein Eye Centers Arena.

Midwest Dairy, Harvesters and the Chiefs Provide New Equipment to Local Food Pantries

Midwest Dairy chose to reallocate their partnership activation funds with the Chiefs toward new refrigeration units for 10 local food pantries

Matt McMullen

July 31, 2021

Chiefs.com

The pandemic hindered any sense of normalcy throughout the football season last year, from the protocols on the field to outreach events in our community, but as we saw time and time again, those hurdles – while often difficult to navigate – couldn't stop those in a position to help from making our town a better place to live.

That was certainly the case for the folks at Midwest Dairy, who chose to repurpose their partnership activation funds with the Chiefs this past year – which were originally intended to hold school assemblies and other various events – to instead purchase refrigeration units for 10 local food pantries in the Kansas City metro.

They could have rolled the funds over into the 2021 season or simply allocated them somewhere else, but without any fanfare or celebration, they chose to simply help those in need by combining their activation budget with a Hometown Grant through GENYOUth.

"Dairy is one of the most requested items at food banks, and often times, they don't have the storage space to keep it. They're limited on space, and on top of that, refrigeration units are expensive," said Robyn Stuewe, RD, LD, Manager of Wellness at Midwest Dairy. "We've worked in the food insecurity space for a while now, and it felt like a great opportunity to do something that would really have a lasting effect."

The Chiefs teamed up with Harvesters to identify the recipients of the refrigeration units, which will provide the selected pantries with the ability to store and distribute more perishable products to their network of food insecure families.

"This was a very important opportunity for us, because for several years now, we've really been trying to put a focus on distributing more and more fresh produce, and in order to do that safely, we need to have refrigeration units throughout our agency network," said Sarah Biles, Director of Communications for Harvesters. "Milk is also a very important and in-demand item, particularly for children, and these units will house those products, too."

That enhanced ability is already serving families in Jackson (MO), Wyandotte (KS) and Johnson (KS) counties, including the folks at the Don Bosco Center in downtown Kansas City.

"It was quite a surprise. We were in desperate need for an additional refrigerator – we do a lot of cheese and milk – so it's been quite a blessing," said Anne Miller, Senior Center Director at the Don Bosco Center. "We were having to juggle using a refrigerator down the street in another building, so it's helped in our efficiency in serving our seniors and disabled adults. It's much more convenient."

The 10 selected pantries serve 2,000 households every month on average, and with their new refrigeration units now up and running, that assistance just received some serious reinforcements as facilities like the Don Bosco Center help those facing the most difficult of circumstances.

It's tangible relief that was born out of our collective, pandemic-induced departure from normal life, but as we've seen throughout our nation over the past year, those who want to make a difference will find a way.

"It brings me joy to work for an organization that looks out for others and wants to help people in our community," Stuewe said. "Our great partnership with the Chiefs allows us to do some really fun things, like bringing excitement into schools, but to be able to partner in this way and do something that will benefit many families across the metro is so special."

FMIA: Chiefs' model with Patrick Mahomes sets NFL standard, plus Training Camp Tour observations

Peter King

August 8, 2021

NBC Sports

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Patrick Mahomes, with a throbbing turf toe on his left foot and assorted bruises from the beating he'd just taken from the Bucs, was dispirited walking off the field after the 31-9 Super Bowl loss six months ago. For the first time in 54 NFL starts, Mahomes hadn't led his team to a single touchdown. On this night, the biggest factor wasn't Mahomes stinking it up—it was a cobbled-together offensive line that leaked enough to get Mahomes hit or significantly pressured 29 times, likely the biggest beatdown of a quarterback in Super Bowl history.

One of the first people Mahomes saw post-game was GM Brett Veach.

"Trust me," Veach told him. "We're gonna get this line right."

It's a strange time in the NFL, with angry quarterbacks in Green Bay, Philadelphia and Houston trying to force their way off teams—and another in Seattle possibly on simmer. Tom Brady did the power play, politely, a year ago, and it worked wonders for him. Power to the Quarterbacks!

I thought of all that watching Mahomes and his Kansas City mates practice Thursday and Friday mornings at Western Missouri State University. I looked down from the media perch up a hill from the toasty practice field, and this is the first-unit offensive line I saw shielding Mahomes:

Left tackle: Orlando Brown, acquired in trade from Baltimore on April 23.

Left guard: Joe Thuney, the best guard on the free-agent market, signed March 18.

Center: Creed Humphrey, rookie, drafted 63rd overall on April 30.

Right guard: Trey Smith, rookie, drafted 226th overall on May 1.

Right tackle: Lucas Niang, in his first NFL camp, a COVID opt-out last year as a third-round rookie. (Mike Remmers, out with a back injury, could take this job when healthy.)

Five for five, for now. All new. I don't recall in my 37 years covering the NFL ever seeing a prime Super Bowl contender with a brand-new offensive line—or any major position group with every starter a new import. We'll see if those five guys start five weeks from now in the opener against Cleveland, or if maybe one or two other newbies—Austin Blythe or Kyle Long—win jobs up front.

But that's not the point of this column.

The Lead: Chiefs' model

The point: Veach and coach Andy Reid realize Mahomes, a 25-year-old gift to modern quarterbacking, is the meal ticket for the entire franchise. It's not kowtowing to Mahomes to promise him the GM will fix a woeful line. It's not kowtowing to Mahomes when Reid runs a play Mahomes suggests, and the coach does it often (I've got a one for you later in that category.) It's smart. And I think the Packers can learn from this, and the Eagles and Texans and Seahawks too.

Say what you want about the Packers going 26-6 with a traditional football structure—GMs pick players, coaches coach, players play—and criticize Rodgers for wanting, as he said, "to be more involved in conversations directly affecting my job." But is it really smart to do things that make your best player seethe? Is it really smart to not provide him the best tools, large and small, to help him win? It seems smart to say to your franchise player, "Tell me what you think. Let's talk."

Mahomes, Reid and Veach comprise the modern triumvirate atop a football team, a model for franchises to study. Mahomes knows it.

"The big thing is, they really want to win and so do I," Mahomes told me after practice Thursday, framed by some western Missouri woods, occasionally talking over some cicadas.

"I think whenever you look around the league, every guy that's kind of had some stuff happen this off season, they just want to win," he said. "They want to win Super Bowls. Having coach Reid and having Brett Veach, and knowing the commitment they have for this organization and to win, that's what allowed me to sign the contract that I did. I knew that those guys were going to be around. I had talked to them before that and I knew they were going to surround me with great players and a chance to win every single season. We hold each other accountable. That's why I think that we have this relationship that we have."

Quick rundown of the column before we get back to my primer of the partnership of a quarterback and his team:

- Brandon Staley, a Division III defensive coordinator five years ago today, now has the fate of a Los Angeles sports franchise in his hands. "My path doesn't make a lot of sense to people," he tells me. Staley also introduces me to a new word.
- One heck of a message from the 2026 NFL commissioner, Peyton Manning, Sunday night in his Hall of Fame induction speech. "I'm not done with football," Manning said near the end of it. "I never will be. I am committing to ensuring its future."
- The future of Russell Wilson, who has started all 160 Seattle games since draft day 2012, and updates on other Seahawkisms.
- I get into a new book about communicating with Gen Z players, written by the son of a Pro Football Hall of Famer. The NFL's paying attention.
- Drew Lock and Teddy Bridgewater throw camp incompletions. The Aaron Rodgers Watch continues in Colorado.
- The miscellany: The best HoF speech nugget, Von Miller's cool jacket, the four most infuriating words in travel, the meaning of $2,529,411.76, the versatility of Pat

Surtain, Quandre Diggs gets a memorable FaceTime call from two friendly rivals, the franchise that's gained $740 million in value in COVID times, Jarrett Bell with a gem of a story, I love the HOF Cliffs Notes speeches, and let's all celebrate Diana Taurasi and Sue Bird.

- Mahomes, by the way, on that offensively feeble Super Bowl: "For us to go out there and not be able to get in the end zone at all, it's something that will kind of haunt me for the rest of my career."

Well then.

Camp: Chiefs

At dinner last Thursday night in St. Joseph, Veach brought along one of the stars of "Modern Family," Eric Stonestreet, a two-time Emmy winner, native of Kansas City, Kans., in town to watch camp and worship his lifelong favorite team. As Veach and I were talking about the simpatico Mahomes/Reid/Veach relationship, Stonestreet said something that resonated.

"He's our quarterback," said Stonestreet, 49. "For the first time in my life—for the first time in most of current Kansas City fans' lives—we have our own quarterback. The other guys weren't ours. They weren't permanent. They were band-aids. Not Patrick."

Everything Mahomes does charms the fan base. They liked it last year when he bought a stake in the Royals, they liked it this year when he bought a stake in Sporting Kansas City (the MLS team)—they even liked it when he announced he was bringing his favorite Texas burger chain, Whataburger, to the Kansas City area. They loved it when he committed to the team with a 12-year contract last year. Collectively, Mahomes showed he was putting down serious roots.

I always thought a seminal moment for Mahomes came late in 2018, when Reid fired ace running back Kareem Hunt for not being forthcoming with him on a domestic-abuse issue. The next day, Mahomes, younger than 50 of the 53 players on the roster, asked to speak to the team, and Reid said yes. His message was, essentially: We can be friends with Kareem forever, but we can't let this wreck our season. The franchise knew it had something precocious and special in Mahomes, but that day sealed it. And the franchise has responded in kind.

"He's got a great pulse of the team," Veach said. "Smart players have an innate feel of their responsibility inside the team. He has that, and he's been able to stay humble while becoming a global product. We would be doing a great disservice to the franchise long-term if we didn't engage him on the important issues that affect our team. His play warrants, his impact warrants it."

Mahomes also just gets it. He gets all facets of the organization. After he made his first Pro Bowl in 2018, he inscribed a Pro Bowl jersey for Veach—his biggest pre-2017 draft champion in the organization—with this: "Thanks for believing in me from the beginning! Let's go get some rings!"

I asked Veach about the problems other teams are having with their franchise quarterbacks, particularly in Green Bay, where Rodgers went to the edge of a cliff with the franchise before finally agreeing to report just before training camp.

"I guess to use Green Bay as an example—clearly I don't know the ins and outs of the issues there," Veach said. "But I find it hard to believe that what happened there could happen here."

Brady was 42 when he got his amicable divorce with New England. Rodgers almost got his freedom (and still may next year) at 37. Sometimes players just get sick of their surroundings and want to start over. But it's not just a seniority thing. Deshaun Watson's 25 and desperately wants out of Houston. Carson Wentz basically went rogue late last season in Philly, at age 27, and got himself traded. The disputes can come at any time … if the relationships are not nurtured well.

Reid is the Big Kahuna in Kansas City, of course. Nothing happens without him. But he's also the Big Listener. The biggest play of the team's Super Bowl season came with the Niners up 20-10 with 7:17 left in the game; it was third-and-15 from the Kansas City 35-yard line, and on a replay challenge, Mahomes came to the sidelines to discuss the next desperation play. "Do we have time to run 'Wasp?'" Mahomes said, a quote that is emblazoned on the brain of every Eric Stonestreet in the team's vast fan base. Mahomes thought this play ("Wasp" is the abbreviation) could get Tyreek Hill free against a single safety downfield. "If he feels it, I'm giving it to him," Reid said, and so Mahomes picked the play that turned the game around. The completion went for 43 yards and started the onslaught that led to the first Super Bowl title for Kansas City in a half-century.

The other day, I asked Mahomes to pick a more recent play that illustrated his chemistry with Reid. "I don't know if you remember," Mahomes said. "But early in the season we had that play against the Chargers where Tyreek kind of ran like a triple move and I sprinted out to the right and threw him a [54-yard] touchdown. It actually went off a route that we had ran against the Chargers in the year prior, where he ran a double move and they covered it really well. I went to coach Reid and I was like, 'You think we have time to let him do three moves?'

"I look at stuff that we do in the game, and games prior, even stuff that Alex [Smith] did when he was here. I say, You think we can do it this way or that way?' He [Reid] has no hesitation on trying it. I think that's been the biggest thing. There's some of them that we run that don't work at all that we don't talk about. But he will always give me a chance to try because he feels like if I believe in it, I can make it work."

The play to Hill was in the gameplan already—Mahomes had advocated for it with Reid, and Reid had it in that week. So the fact that Mahomes brought it to Reid, and Reid liked it, and Reid had it in the gameplan … it shouldn't come as a surprise that the coach okayed the QB's idea at a fairly crucial point of the game—KC down 17-9, and struggling, midway through the third quarter.

"I meet with Patrick Fridays and then with the quarterbacks again Saturday, and we rank the plays the way we like 'em," Reid told me. "I say, 'If there's something you don't like, be honest with me, and we'll just get rid of it.' I mean, we got 200 plays. What we want to call in the game we should feel pretty good about. Patrick's good at suggesting things that have a good chance to work."

It's a good partnership. Reid and Veach will be joined at the hip through at least 2025, long enough to enter quarterback-middle-age with their partner, Mahomes. Anyone out there paying attention to how such a partnership should work the right way?

After two days in KC camp…

Mahomes on his surgically repaired turf toe: “This is the best it’s felt since before the playoffs last year. Haven’t had to take any days off or any plays off.” … Yes, Mahomes does want to be part of an ownership group for an NBA franchise in Kansas City. Baseball and soccer, cool. Basketball would be his dream. “He’s been talking about it a lot,” said Tyrann Mathieu … Reid spent chunks of time this offseason dealing with the fallout of his son, former linebackers coach Britt Reid, critically injuring a 5-year-old girl when he struck her family’s vehicle three days before the Super Bowl. Britt Reid has pleaded not guilty to felony DWI charges and awaits trial. “Life’s full of balances,” Andy Reid said. “We all have challenges. I’m sensitive to the little girl and her family. I’m sensitive to Britt and his family.” … Jerick McKinnon made $17 million in San Francisco, but it was one injury after another in three washout seasons trying to be a feature back. He’s wearing number one and looks good here.

‘GEHA Field at Arrowhead’ seeks to align with KC Chiefs’ ‘Patrick Mahomes generation’

Blair Kerkhoff

August 26, 2021

KC Star

For 49 seasons, fans have cheered, jeered and tailgated around the parking lot in the communal setting of Arrowhead Stadium. Officially, that ended on Thursday, a day before the first, and only, home game of this Chiefs preseason.

The cheering and tailgating won’t change. What’s changed in the stadium’s name.

When the Chiefs kick off against the Minnesota Vikings around 7:05 p.m. Friday, they’ll do so at GEHA Field at Arrowhead.

The stadium opened in 1972, a shared space with Royals Stadium, now Kauffman Stadium, at the revolutionary Truman Sports Complex located east of downtown Kansas City. And the Chiefs resisted changing or altering the name of their home venue for nearly a half century.

Starting Friday, fans will enter a stadium named for Government Employee Health Association, a Lee’s Summit headquartered-business that supplies medical and dental plans for federal employees and retirees and their families.

GEHA, founded in 1937 at Union Station, has about 2 million customers.

“We have an excellent product and excellent service and we want to increase our presence and ability to serve additional federal employees and military retirees,” said GEHA CEO Art Nizza.

The length of the deal and financial information weren’t disclosed. But no fan entering or sitting in the stadium will miss the new signage.

The Chiefs had previously considered sponsorship opportunities. Chiefs chairman and CEO Clark Hunt said the timing was right now.

“We’ve been open to having the right partner, and that’s what I would say about GEHA,” Hunt said. “It’s a local company, and truthfully a company we didn’t know much about as an organization.”

That started to change in recent years. In 2019, the company signed a partnership deal with quarterback Patrick Mahomes.

“GEHA, the partnership I’ve had with them has been special,” Mahomes said in a 50-yard-line interview conducted by Chiefs radio play-by-play broadcaster Mitch Holthus. “For them to now be a part of this stadium and it be GEHA Field, it’s just the start of a special relationship they’ll have with the Kansas City community.”

Besides the partnership with Mahomes, GEHA became the presenting sponsor of the Chiefs' digital show "The Franchise," and the stadium's Drum Deck. A naming rights arrangement was reported as a possibility in 2020.

Keeping "Arrowhead" in the stadium name was important, Hunt said.

"One of the important elements is we've retrained Arrowhead in the name," Hunt said. "For many generations of fans the stadium will always be Arrowhead.

"But for a new generation, a Patrick Mahomes generation of fans, it will be GEHA Field at Arrowhead. I think our fans understand how important is is to have great partners like GEHA to help us put a winning product on the field and compete for championships."

The Chiefs are among the last teams in the NFL to arrange corporate sponsorship for naming rights. They played their first two preseason games against the San Francisco 49ers at Levi's Stadium and Arizona Cardinals at State Farm Stadium. Their first regular-season road game, on Sept. 19 will be at Baltimore at M&T Bank Stadium.

Among the earliest examples of stadiums named for companies in sports: Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs, was named for chewing gum magnate William Wrigley in 1926.

In the NFL, one of the earliest examples of selling naming rights was Rich Stadium. In 1972, the Buffalo Bills' new venue was named for a local food products company.

Kansas City Chiefs unveil spectacular renovated Hall of Honor at Arrowhead Stadium

Herbie Teope

September 10, 2021

KC Star

The Chiefs spent the offseason with numerous upgrades and renovations at the team's training facility and Arrowhead Stadium.

The players saw their new locker room in late August, and fans will see new gold seats in the club levels.

But one new standout feature at Arrowhead Stadium is sure to capture imagination and feelings of nostalgia, as the Chiefs on Thursday night unveiled a completely renovated Hall of Honor.

From the big-screen televisions to HD touch-screen monitors on the walls to the bronze head statues and staggered displays of the great players to wear a Chiefs uniform, the Hall of Honor was built to impress.

"This Hall is magnificent," said longtime Chiefs play-by-play announcer Mitch Holthus, who emceed the event. "It is a Hall for the fans, but it is a Hall for every one of you players.

"It is also a Hall to remember the beginnings in what has become in many ways a one-of-a-kind franchise."

Chiefs chairman and CEO Clark Hunt agreed.

"I'm standing here looking at a screen that's got to be 16 to 18 feet across, and it just blows you away," Hunt said. "I mean, it's really, really that special."

Chiefs team president Mark Donovan said on July 26 that the venture to upgrade the Hall of Honor cost "almost $9 million," and the stunning result showed it was worth every penny.

With Chiefs greats Bobby Bell, Jan Stenerud, Will Shields, Willie Lanier, Neil Smith, Christian Okoye and Tamba Hali, among others, present for the ribbon-cutting ceremony, the renovated Hall of Honor links the past to the present.

The team's deep tradition was especially important to the Hunt family.

"We are where we are today because of the contributions of the players, the coaches and administrators who helped build this franchise," Hunt said. "The men showcased in this Hall helped shape the Chiefs. That's why we created the Hall of Honor back in 2010 and why we invested the resources over the last two years to enhance it.

“We are committed to honoring tradition. It is an important part of our mission as an organization. It is important to me and my family that our history is woven throughout the identity of the franchise. We celebrate it and we our fans to enjoy it.”

There were plenty of smiles throughout the space, as distinguished guests made their way from display to display. Numerous former Chiefs players also took a few minutes to watch multiple videos of their greatest plays.

And through it all, there was little doubt the Chiefs accomplished their mission of keeping the memories of the great players and spirit of tradition alive.

“For this great organization, for them to include you in any way, honestly, it’s so humbling, it’s so rewarding for all the hard work you put in,” former Chiefs wide receiver Dante Hall said. “Maybe one day when I’m an old man, I can bring my kids here and be like, ‘Look, your dad did enough that the Chiefs felt like I should be in this beautiful Hall of Honor.’

“And that to me is what I think of. Like, wow, I did enough, they appreciate me enough to add me among all these great players, this great organization. That’s a beautiful thing.”

A conversation with Chiefs QB coach Mike Kafka about coaching Patrick Mahomes and stretching boundaries

Ted Nguyen

June 16, 2021

The Athletic

Mike Kafka started his NFL coaching career as an offensive quality control coach under Andy Reid in 2017, but his working relationship with Reid started well before that. Reid was the head coach of the Eagles when they drafted Kafka in 2010. At Northwestern, Kafka played quarterback in a spread-option system that emphasized the zone read and the quick passing game. While Reid's offense was trending away from the West Coast and to the spread with the Eagles, it was nowhere near the wide-open system with all of the freedom given to the quarterback that it is now with the Chiefs.

"Playing in (Reid's) offense, there wasn't a ton of ability to adjust routes. There were some 'kills' — run to pass or pass to run. There was some of that, but really nothing of what you see in today's offensive systems and what we do with the Chiefs," Kafka said. "You know there's just so much flexibility to adjust routes and plays. I think that it's awesome if the quarterback can handle it, you have to run with it. You have to center around what he's comfortable doing, what the other guys in the huddle are comfortable getting accomplished."

Reid has always been adaptive to the talent he has. When he had Michael Vick with the Eagles, he implemented spread-option concepts in his offense. When he had All-Pro running back Jamaal Charles, Reid found ways to get the ball in his hands. Now, with Patrick Mahomes, Tyreek Hill and Travis Kelce, Reid's offense has evolved into a hybrid of West Coast concepts, vertical concepts and run-pass options.

Kafka, who became the Chiefs quarterback coach in 2018 and added passing game coordinator to his title in 2020, has the task of aiding that evolution through working directly with Mahomes as his position coach and collaborating with Reid, offensive coordinator Eric Bieniemy and the rest of the offensive staff to add concepts and ideas to one of the most distinctive offenses in the NFL through new designs or borrowing from the lower levels. Kafka likes to keep an eye on what college coaches he likes — for example, Steve Sarkisian (Texas) and Marcus Arroyo (UNLV) — are doing. He even mentioned watching high schools in Texas for inspiration. The Chiefs have not been shy about taking concepts from the lower levels and presenting them at the pro level.

"As you continue to evolve with concepts and schemes, I think that's where we've taken steps forward over the last couple years of … I don't want to say being ahead of the curve because a lot of these things are already taking place in college and high school, but sometimes you're first to show it in the league," Kafka said. "Sometimes, it just takes a few years for it to get up all the way up to the NFL. We're not afraid to show those type of things and try it and work it out and just kind of fit it to who we are."

Before the Chiefs unveil these concepts, they have to experiment with them in practice to see how they look, to see if the coaches think it can work in the NFL and if they have to tinker with the ideas. Not everything they try makes it to the game-day call sheet. Some plays end up on the cutting-room floor. Experimentation can cost teams valuable practice time, and I can see why some teams shy away from it, but the Chiefs embrace it. Their willingness to do it keeps them a little ahead of the curve. Also, having Mahomes and the weapons they possess pushes them to rethink what is possible on the field.

Said Kafka: "We give them a huge volume of plays in the offseason, whether it's new ideas or tweaks to certain things that we may have done last season. And so we're always continuing trying to build it out, give us complements, and a lot of times when you run a bunch of new plays in the offseason something happens where maybe a guy messes up on a route, but we might go back there and go, 'You know what, that may be better in the first place.' So it's a constant evolution."

The most obvious example of those designs is "Wasp," one of the most talked-about plays in the past few years. In Super Bowl LIV, the Chiefs were down 10 points against the 49ers and faced third-and-15 with 7:13 remaining in the game. Mahomes suggested the team run "Wasp." The coaches listened, and the rest is history.

"The threat of Tyreek (Hill) right in the middle of the field is huge, and so teams just started to collapse on us a little bit and try and to bracket it in the middle of the field," Kafka explained. The "angle v" route isn't new. Reid used to call it for DeSean Jackson and Jeremy Maclin when he was with the Eagles, but the length of the "Wasp" version and how the Chiefs implemented it as a complement to their deadly four-verticals concept made it that much more effective.

The play was designed to complement their four-verticals concept, with Hill running one of the inside verticals.

The play required Mahomes to take a huge, deep drop with five-man protection and a running back chip. Mahomes had the arm to make the deep throw under duress, and Hill had the speed to run the long route. It's a great play design, one that's hard to stop, but the Chiefs are one of just a few teams with the players necessary to execute this design.

Another remarkable play design that comes to mind is Hill's 54-yard touchdown catch in Week 2 last season against the Los Angeles Chargers. The Chiefs were having a lackluster offensive performance and were down eight points at the beginning of the fourth quarter when they blindsided the Chargers with one of the most spectacular plays of the season.

The play was a boot with an H-back on the play side to block the end, so Mahomes would have the time and space to get outside of the pocket and load up for a big throw. Hill ran a deep post corner route that broke outside around 25 yards downfield. The ball traveled more than 50 yards in the air and hit Hill in the only spot where he could catch the ball against tight coverage. There aren't many coaching staffs that will design a play requiring their quarterback to execute a rollout and throw the ball 50 yards in the air to the corner, but the Chiefs make a concerted effort to push the boundaries of what they can do.

“When we use the speed that we have — we’re lucky to have that — and the skill, you can try and stretch the boundaries as much as we can,” Kafka said. “We’ve gone through and had plays where we were like, ‘All right now, even though we have all this speed, this concept is probably asking too much of them.’ But you don’t know until you try it, right? So you gotta have that ability to at least see it out, try and detail it as best you can, and then go, ‘That didn’t work. Let’s just move on to the next thing.'”

I tried to press Kafka to give me an example of a play that was left on the cutting-room floor. He said there is one, but the Chiefs have revisited and tinkered with it, so we might see it run in an actual game someday. That’s happened before with the Chiefs. They’ve pulled out “failed” plays from their experiments from years ago and tweaked them with different protection or ballhandling, liked how they looked and timed up better, and added them to the playbook.

Coaching a quarterback like Mahomes doesn’t just force Kafka to reevaluate the rules of traditional play design. It also forces him to reevaluate some of the fundamental aspects of quarterback play. For example, Mahomes has a tendency to drift in the pocket, making life harder on his tackles, but at the same time, his natural ability to buy time and hit big plays makes him special. Kafka and the Chiefs staff have to straddle that line between letting him play loose while staying within the structure of the offense.

“You got to allow him to be himself. I know there are times where drifting in the pocket becomes an issue, right? It’s going to put more pressure on your tackles. It’s going to put more pressure on the guards now because now things are getting strung out a little bit, and he realizes that,” Kafka said. “But it’s a fine line, and I try to work within that line of, ‘All right, I understand why you dropped back a little bit longer, but let’s continue to work and push up in the pocket.’ It’s reminders and repping that in practice and getting that ingrained.”

Luckily for the staff, Mahomes is self-aware and will be the first one to acknowledge when he’s drifting or freelancing too much. He knows when he needs to climb the pocket more or take bigger hitches. That makes him coachable and allows the staff to keep things fluid with him, which in turn creates an optimal environment for a player like Mahomes to thrive.

Kafka’s talk about the flexibility of playing the quarterback position is a departure from Reid’s West Coast origins, where every detail of playing quarterback was rigid and mechanical — every drop had to be perfectly synced with the route being run on the play. The view on how to quarterback has changed. Locking quarterbacks into hard-and-fast rules produced robots, and robots have a difficult time adjusting and doing things like throwing off-platform or adapting when a defense does something unexpected. Mahomes might not have had the room to develop into the best passer in the world in the circumstances of Reid’s old offenses. Aside from the physical gifts, Mahomes has a natural feel for playing the game. With the Chiefs, he has the freedom to trust his instincts. Conversely, Mahomes has been a huge influence on Kafka and the coaching staff.

“He’s challenged me in a lot of ways, probably for the better, because he definitely teaches me to be patient, to have an open mind. Early on in his career, we might have been in a different spot with our eyes initially, but being able to take a step back, see what he saw, and go, ‘OK, cool. I like where your eyes are at.’ That’s a good idea and then maybe try and direct them to, ‘Hey, maybe if we’ve got our eyes here a little bit quicker, that might open (this route).’ It’s been a great conversation — we’ve had open conversations about just those types of things.”

Even seemingly small details, such as where a quarterback's eyes should be on certain concepts, might be different for Mahomes, but Kafka is open to working with what Mahomes instinctively wants to do and helping him to refine it. That's adaptive coaching that allows a player to not only be himself but also be a better version of himself.

CBS Sports Ranks Andy Reid as the NFL's Best Head Coach

Reid has tallied 98 victories during his tenure in Kansas City

Matt McMullen

June 30, 2021

Chiefs.com

The folks at CBS Sports ranked every head coach in the NFL earlier this week, considering both past performance and future outlook in their evaluation while identifying the best coaches in the business. They went through all 32 teams in their rankings, with Kansas City Chiefs' Head Coach Andy Reid checking in at No. 1.

Here's what CBS Sports' Cody Benjamin wrote about Coach Reid:

"It seems darn near impossible to think of Reid without Patrick Mahomes, the NFL's model QB and arguably the most naturally gifted passer this side of Aaron Rodgers. But there's evidence for Reid's coaching ability well beyond No. 15: He went 14 strong years in Philadelphia, guiding a whopping five NFC title-game appearances, then instantly coaxed playoff results from Alex Smith in Kansas City, all before completely remaking his own offense to capitalize on Mahomes and his weapons' backyard-ball athleticism. For years, he always approached the big game. Then he won it. Now, as the perfect player-friendly and always-creative overseer of some of the NFL's best talent, he's a perennial candidate to win it all again."

Reid is simply one of the greatest coaches in NFL history, amassing 238 total wins (regular and postseason) during his illustrious career – the fifth-most in NFL history. His 17 career postseason victories rank fourth in league history, trailing only Bill Belichick (31), Tom Landry (20) and Don Shula (19).

Since arriving in Kansas City back in 2013, Reid has led the Chiefs to 98 total victories – the second-most in the NFL during that span behind only New England – while tallying five division championships, three AFC Championship Game appearances, two conference titles and a victory in Super Bowl LIV.

He's simply the best head coach in the business, and as the Chiefs eye a third-straight trip to the Super Bowl this season, Reid is just getting started.

Changes to Chiefs coaching staff could reap big rewards

Dave Skretta

AP

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs have been required to make changes to their coaching staff over the years, the natural byproduct of success, as top assistants such as Doug Pederson and Matt Nagy got hired away for better jobs elsewhere.

This past offseason, though, Andy Reid made some changes that seemed unnecessary at first glance.

It began when running backs coach Deland McCullough left for a job as the associate head coach at Indiana, opening up a job once held by current Chiefs offensive coordinator Eric Bieniemy. Rather than simply hire someone to replace McCullough, Reid decided to move wide receivers coach Greg Lewis into the role — even though his work with Tyreek Hill and the rest of the Chiefs' pass-catching crew has been a big reason for their offensive success.

That began a game of musical chairs, of course.

Joe Bleymaier moved from the quarterbacks room, where he was helping Patrick Mahomes become one of the league's best players, to handle the wide receivers. David Girardi moved into that role as assistant quarterbacks coach, and his spot was taken by Connor Embree, who was working on the defensive side.

So why did Reid agree to so much maneuvering on a staff returning from back-to-back AFC titles relatively intact?

"I want guys to have the opportunity to grow," Reid said.

"Greg actually came to me about wanting the challenge of coaching the running backs," he continued, "and as you guys know about how I feel about Greg, he's very, very intelligent, has a great feel for the game, did a phenomenal job with the wide receivers. And now he's able to learn that other side — the protection side and all that goes into coaching the running backs and the run game, and still give them tips in the pass game to make them even better than what they are now."

It's a position that the 41-year-old Lewis, who spent eight years playing wide receiver in the NFL, has never coached before, and he's taking on the job for a team that once again has Super Bowl aspirations.

No pressure there.

Yet the change could come at the perfect time. Several wide receivers, such as Demarcus Robinson and Mecole Hardman, appeared to stagnate in their development the past couple of seasons. And with the departure of Sammy Watkins in free agency, the Chiefs are desperate for someone to establish themselves as the No. 2 wide receiver.

Just maybe, Bleymaier will be able to pull something out of them.

“It’s a little unique with Greg still being here, Coach Lewis being just down the hall,” Bleymaier said. “I go to him daily for questions, advice, our guys go to him. I’m the new wide receiver coach, but we kind of just gained an extra receiver coach because Greg is still there, and the guys feel free to go talk to him as well. So it’s been seamless at least for me.”

As for the running backs room, Lewis brings a unique skillset that could push Clyde Edwards-Helaire and the rest of his buddies to a whole new level. The Chiefs have always required them to be just as adept at catching the ball as running it, and Lewis should be able to help them with releases, refining their routes and even blocking downfield.

Edwards-Helaire had 36 catches for nearly 400 yards last season, even though he missed three games to injuries. Darrel Williams and current free agent Le’Veon Bell also had roles in the passing game.

“I don’t see it as a challenge. I see all of us as football coaches,” Lewis said as the Chiefs wrapped up camp at Missouri Western State University, and looked forward to their second preseason game in Arizona on Friday night.

“For me,” Lewis said, “it’s understanding the different aspects of the game. ... Obviously, I haven’t played running back, but I understand football and I’ve been around great players, great coaches, and I think I am going to bring some more insight to just help them develop and help us be better as a group.”

Inspired by Chiefs' Derrick Nnadi, pet food company pays adoption fees for dogs at KC shelter

Fox 4 KC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — KC Pet Project is celebrating an amazing Chiefs football season. Even though the Chiefs didn't win Super Bowl LV, there is still a bright side.

The animal shelter says all 88 dogs at its shelter can be adopted for free thanks to Ziwi pets.

Ziwi pets, a pet food company from New Zealand, sponsored the adoptions of the dozens of pets. The company will also give new pet parents a pet pack with treats to take home.

ZIWI says it was inspired to help after seeing the partnership KC Pet Project has with Chiefs defensive tackle Derrick Nnadi. The Derrick Nnadi Foundation celebrated winning the Super Bowl in 2020 by paying adoption fees for more than 100 dogs. He renewed the effort for the past season.

KC Pet Project has two metro locations, one at Zona Rosa and the other at its main campus.

You can also view adoptable pets online on KC Pet Project's website.

A collarbone injury limited Chiefs rookie cornerback L'Jarius Sneed to nine games this season, but he made an impact with three interceptions and two sacks.

Sneed added two more sacks in the playoffs, and caught the attention of national NFL observers.

CBS Sports' Chris Trapasso, an NFL player analyst, redrafted last year's draft, and moved Sneed up a whopping 131 picks. The Chiefs grabbed Sneed in the third round (138th overall pick), but Trapasso's redraft had Sneed going seventh overall.

"Sneed was quite easily the finest rookie cornerback in the NFL last season," Trapasso wrote.

Pro Football Focus rated Sneed as easily the best rookie cornerback in 2020, and Austin Gayle sang his praises:

Nick Shook of the NFL Network wrote, "Sneed has been an absolute steal, filling a versatile defensive back role for the Chiefs." Shook gave the Chiefs overall draft class a B-plus on Wednesday.

Sneed also landed on Shook's list of unsung heroes on each NFL team. He wrote in part: "Sneed posted the fourth-best rate of targeted EPA among all defensive backs with at least 30 targets on the year, trailing only Xavien Howard, Jaire Alexander and Bryce Callahan while taking away 18 total points from opponents this season. Those are names folks are used to hearing, or in the case of Callahan, soon will be, and Sneed played at their level while flying under the radar in 2020."

Pro Football Writers of America had Sneed on its all-rookie team for the 2020 NFL season.

Benjamin Solak of the Draft Network also put Sneed on its all-rookie team.

"Sneed's wicked straight-line explosiveness and long speed allow him to work on the outside and carry routes downfield, but a player with little coverage background shouldn't be so naturally comfortable with his back to the ball working through the catch point. I'm excited to see if he can keep this up in 2021 and beyond," Solak wrote.

15 and the Mahomies providing 30,000 meals to food banks in east Texas

Meals donated for winter storm relief

David Medina

February 24, 2021

Fox 4 KC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes is once again making difference off the field.

15 and the Mahomies, an organization started by Mahomes, is providing 30,000 meals to the East Texas Food Bank in Tyler, Texas, where Mahomes was born and raised.

“The East Texas Food Bank is so grateful to our hometown hero Patrick Mahomes and the 15 and the Mahomies Foundation for their continued support of our hunger-relief work," East Texas Food Bank Chief Executive Officer, Dennis Cullinane, said. "Their recent donation will provide enough food for approximately 30,000 meals total, with 15,000 meals going to our two upcoming drive-thru distributions at Lindsey Park in Tyler."

The efforts by the organization hope to help people affected by last week's winter storm that devastated the state.

Many people in Texas are still recovering from the storm, which left millions without water and power.

The organization will hold food distribution events on Feb. 27 and March 5.

Chiefs' Chris Jones starts charity foundation. Here's why its mission focuses on kids

Sam McDowell

February 24, 2021

KC Star

Back in high school in small-town Houston, Mississippi, Chiefs defensive lineman Chris Jones had a classmate who was unable to play basketball because he couldn't afford a pair of shoes. Jones caught wind of it, and so he offered up his own.

Never mind that they were about five sizes too big. Never mind that they were Jones' only pair.

If you take a trip inside that school, a couple of administrators will still tell you that story. They can't forget it.

Years later, in a better position of means, Jones is still aiming to create the same effect. Jones announced Tuesday the formation of the Sack Nation Foundation, a charitable organization that's mission is "to improve the health and well-being of young people in underserved communities."

You know, like the one from which he came.

"I was actually one of those kids in a poverty community that I wasn't able to play sports early on in my early age because of financial standpoints," Jones said in a Zoom call announcing the foundation Tuesday. "... It resonates with me not only in this situation but throughout my life and how I approach the game and how I go about myself."

When The Star visited Houston in late 2019 to share Jones' story, his mother, Mary Woodhouse, said she couldn't afford to pay for her son's football equipment. Jones got off to a late start on the sport that would blossom into a career paying him handsomely. He didn't have his own bed even, instead sleeping on his grandmother's living room couch, his feet hanging off the edge.

Over the past few years, as he's considered starting a foundation, a "soul-searching" process led him to believe helping kids in similar situations would be its cause.

"I always feel like kids are what keeps the world moving, the youth, the young generation," Jones said. "A lot of kids don't get the opportunity because of their situation at home or their parents can't afford it. For me personally, I just want to be able to help kids, to put them in a position to get noticed or even just be part of a family, be part of a team or be part of something greater than themselves."

The operation began Tuesday with such a donation. The Sack Nation Foundation is providing the opportunity for 300 kids and their siblings to play flag football through the YMCA of Greater

Kansas City. Some of those kids were on the Zoom call Tuesday, and Jones began by taking their questions.

Can you also play basketball?

Does it hurt to tackle?

Can girls play football too?

For the record: One thousand percent; Sometimes, but not if you're tackling a skinny guy; and of course they can.

The organization's plans include future events in Kansas City, during training camp in St. Joseph and back in Jones' Mississippi hometown.

"The sky's the limit here," Jones said.

Last offseason, Jones had been franchise-tagged by the Chiefs, his future in Kansas City uncertain.

This year, he spoke of the security — a multi-year contract — and how it prompted the opportunity to fulfill a dream of a different kind.

"Kansas City embraced me like family. They welcomed me with open arms," Jones said. "They took a chance on me, man. This city took a chance on me. I'm just trying to make the best of it. It's always been my goal to give back."

Patrick Mahomes and his 15 and the Mahomies foundation has become a multi-year partner with the HBCS Legacy Bowl, the Black College Football Hall of Fame announced on Thursday.

The Legacy Bowl is a postseason all-star game that will showcase NFL Draft-eligible players from historically Black colleges and universities.

The first game will be played in February 2022 — the Saturday after the Super Bowl — at Tulane University’s Yulman Stadium in New Orleans.

The NFL Network and Pro Football Hall of Fame also are partners in the game.

Named for the Chiefs quarterback and his uniform number, 15 and the Mahomies was established in 2019 to support charitable causes.

Chiefs find talent, value and durability in drafting Nick Bolton, Creed Humphrey

Nate Taylor

May 1, 2021

The Athletic

When the Kansas City Chiefs called linebacker Nick Bolton, he looked at his smartphone, recognizing the 816 area code, in awe. Twenty minutes later, center Creed Humphrey felt the same emotion.

In the past few weeks, the Chiefs had done plenty of research on Bolton and Humphrey, the two prospects the team selected Friday in the second round of the NFL Draft.

Bolton and Humphrey each had a few videoconference meetings with the Chiefs, and each conversation was positive for both parties. With that understanding, Bolton and Humphrey were still overwhelmed when general manager Brett Veach informed them that they would join the Chiefs' roster. But Bolton and Humphrey also anticipated such a start to their NFL careers. Within seconds of getting off the phone with Veach and coach Andy Reid, Bolton and Humphrey each donned a Chiefs ballcap while being surrounded by joyous family members.

"Playing for the Chiefs is a dream come true," Bolton said. "I knew they liked me. Being at Missouri, they could see me a lot. I want to win. I want to be part of a legacy and leave my mark in the NFL, so I feel like I conveyed that message to them."

In many ways, Friday was a dream scenario for the Chiefs and their two newest players.

The Chiefs, representing Kansas City and the Midwest region, were diligent in scouting Bolton at Missouri and Humphrey and Oklahoma to great lengths, even amid the coronavirus pandemic. The Chiefs also knew that most teams ahead of them when the second round started weren't coveting a linebacker or center. On the Chiefs' draft board, Veach and Reid agreed that selecting a linebacker and center would fill roster needs, both for the upcoming season and in the future.

Although Veach is known for trading up in past drafts to ensure the Chiefs select their desired prospect, he showed proper discipline and patience Friday. Sure, the Chiefs answered phone calls from other teams hoping to execute a trade for the No. 58 pick, but the Chiefs refused those offers. Veach vowed to have the team select the best player available with that pick and the No. 63 pick. The best available prospects on the Chiefs' board each time — Bolton and Humphrey — just happened to play a position where the team needed an influx of youthful production.

"We were extremely excited about him," Veach said of Bolton. "He can play at the Mike position and Will position. He's got sideline-to-sideline range. He's tough, smart and can make all the (defensive) calls. (Middle linebacker) Anthony Hitchens is one of the guys who does a lot for us. But when Hitchens goes down, we're really looking to add depth there."

Veach acknowledged that he was quite surprised that Humphrey was still available with the 63rd pick. Ahead of the Chiefs in the second round, various teams — including rivals such as the Las Vegas Raiders, the Los Angeles Chargers and the Buffalo Bills — selected prospects who were either a receiver, defensive end or a safety.

"We were certainly a benefactor of that," Veach said of Humphrey. "Too good of a player to pass up."

Last week, even before acquiring left tackle Orlando Brown Jr. via a blockbuster trade with the Baltimore Ravens, Veach mentioned that he felt the most valuable picks in the draft could come from teams selecting in the late-second round to the middle of the third round. With the 58th pick, the Chiefs acquired Bolton, who was the 39th-ranked prospect in the draft class, according to Dane Brugler, The Athletic's NFL Draft analyst. Brugler had Humphrey, selected with the 63rd pick, ranked as the 46th-best prospect.

"I've got a special place in my heart for Missouri," said Reid, who was the offensive-line assistant at the school from 1989-91, when discussing Bolton. "Orlando told us to go get Creed when he was here. He goes, 'There's a good one at Oklahoma you need to take a peek at.' We already had our eye on him, but it was neat for Orlando to put it out there to us that way."

When evaluating Bolton and Humphrey's performances in college, the two players shared similar traits and attributes. Veach and Reid each noticed the intelligence that Bolton and Humphrey demonstrated on the field as leaders. The Chiefs are optimistic that both players can compete for a starting role because of their steady production.

As a two-year starter at Missouri, Bolton was a team captain and led the Tigers last season with 95 tackles. He also recorded 7.5 stops for loss, two sacks and five pass breakups. Known for his speed, Bolton was an effective defender in coverage while being a reliable tackler in open space.

"Being smart and instinctual, that's how I play, so I feel like bringing that to an NFL team will put myself in a position to play," Bolton said. "I'm just ready to go out there and have a chance to compete."

Listed at 5-foot-11 and 237 pounds, the Chiefs are expected to pair him in futures seasons with second-year linebacker Willie Gay Jr., whom the Chiefs selected in the second round of last year's draft. Gay used his Twitter account to both predict the Chiefs were going to selecting Bolton and to express his approval of the team's decision. Bolton and Gay have been friends for the past four years since they met at a recruiting camp at Mississippi State.

"What you're going to get with him is just an all-out, aggressive, smart player," Reid said of Bolton. "A great tackler, great ball skills in the pass game and tremendous leadership. We're a little bit short just on bodies at our linebacker spot, so this helps us there."

Humphrey, meanwhile, listed at 6-foot-4 and 302 pounds, was the second-ranked center in the draft class, according to Brugler. In 37 starts as Oklahoma's center, Humphrey didn't allow a sack and he gave up just two quarterback hits, according to Pro Football Focus. Humphrey earned the Big 12 Offensive Lineman of the Year honor as both a sophomore and junior. Known for playing with outstanding strength, Humphrey has used his wrestling background and mental toughness to outwork his opponent.

As a left-handed center, Humphrey is capable of snapping the ball with either hand. He supported star quarterbacks in college, too, snapping the ball to Kyler Murray (the Arizona Cardinals' starter) and Jalen Hurts (the Philadelphia Eagles' starter).

Humphrey smiled after receiving the Chiefs' call for three reasons: 1) He was thrilled to start his career playing for Reid, a future Hall of Fame coach; 2) He thought about playing with superstar quarterback Patrick Mahomes; and 3) He thought about Brown, his former college teammate who advocated to the Chiefs on his behalf.

"I'm so excited, and I'm really close with Orlando," Humphrey said. "He's mentored me a lot. He's a guy that's going to do the work that's necessary to get himself to the next level he wants to be at. When I got to OU, that's something I admired from him. He's such a mean player on the field, too. That's something I've always tried to kind of copy my game after.

"Getting to play with a player like Mahomes is so exciting just because he's so talented. He can change the dynamic of a whole game."

The major theme throughout the Chiefs' offseason has been overhauling their offensive line. The last time the Chiefs played a game, the team suffered a blowout loss to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in Super Bowl LV. One of the biggest reasons for the game's outcome was that the Chiefs' makeshift offensive line struggled. In the past two months, the Chiefs have acquired Brown, Humphrey, left guard Joe Thuney, right guard Kyle Long and center Austin Blythe. After opting out of last season, right guard Laurent Duvernay-Tardif and rookie right tackle Lucas Niang also return to the roster.

Humphrey will compete against Blythe, a six-year veteran, for the starting job in training camp. In 2015, the Chiefs used the 49th pick in the second round to select former center Mitch Morse, who started 15 games that season. The Chiefs hope Humphrey has the talent to have a similar rookie season.

"Austin has shown he can play, but he's on a one-year deal," Veach said of Blythe. "We need to maintain continuity on that offensive line. Hopefully in the future, we can get (an extension with) Orlando done. Then you have Creed now under contract for four years and Thuney under contract for four or five years, so now you have continuity, depth and talent."

Prior to the draft, and in the past two days, the last hurdle for many teams was acquiring the medical information for every prospect who was talented enough to be considered on their board. Early in the offseason, the NFL canceled its annual scouting combine because of the pandemic. Most years, the combine is the place where multiple team physicians, including cardiologists and orthopedists, examine more than 300 prospects in Indianapolis. Without the combine, a number of general managers voiced their concerns about the lack of in-person medical testing. Earlier this month, though, less than 150 prospects gathered in Indianapolis for in-person medical evaluations, as some prospects went through testing, including echocardiograms and MRIs, when necessary.

The Chiefs, however, didn't feel any stress when looking at the medical background with Bolton and Humphrey. Both players started and played through every game during their last two college seasons.

“We had solid medical grades on them,” Veach said of Bolton and Humphrey. “There were a few guys who maybe fell a little bit more in the draft. Some of the dialogue in our room, (we’re) thinking, ‘It’s obvious these guys don’t have a hard medical.’ That could’ve been a factor. It didn’t come into play with our picks, fortunately.”

When the week began, Bolton and Humphrey each realized they could be selected in the second round. The Chiefs felt the same way. With the Chiefs on the clock twice Friday, Veach and Reid looked at the team’s board and did a quick overview of the five main qualities they desire most in a prospect they select: intelligence, durability, production, consistency and leadership.

Bolton and Humphrey both made the choice easy for Veach and Reid. “When I got the call, it was a huge sigh of relief,” Humphrey said. “I got the call from the best organization in the country. I’m so excited, I can’t wait.”

Nick Bolton Of Frisco Lone Star Overcomes Adversity To Get Drafted By Kansas City Chiefs

Keith Russell

May 2, 2021

CBS

FRISCO, Texas (CBSDFW.COM) – When Nick Bolton was taken with pick #58 in the NFL Draft, which was Kansas City's first pick, his loved ones in Frisco and his former coach at Lone Star High School could rejoice because they knew who the Chiefs are getting.

Frisco Lone Star Head Coach Jeff Rayburn says, "The same thing I'm gonna say now is the same thing I told recruiters. If he doesn't play a down for your college program, or he doesn't play a down for Kansas City, he's going to make your organization better."

Nick's younger brother, Jayden, says, "He's done a lot for our family. He's like another father in the family. He's taken care of us."

Before he was the hard hitting linebacker at Missouri and way before he was a play making machine at Frisco Lone Star, Nick Bolton was mature beyond his years.

He had to be, as a kid, when it was discovered that his older sister, Jazmin, had a 3-inch tumor in her brain. The tumor required an 11-hour surgery.

Jayden explains, "When it first happened, it kind of put a few setbacks in the family but Nick just came out strong with it. It left another reason for Nick to play the game and do great things."

And just when Jazmin was getting better and the Bolton family was turning the corner, Nick's mother was diagnosed with breast cancer.

Rayburn promises, "Adversity reveals true character and anytime adversity has hit Nick Bolton, all he's done is use that as motivation."

With motivation like that, it's no wonder Bolton has been able to run circles around opposing offenses — never losing sight of those who come behind him.

Case and point, at Mizzou, taking on a leadership role in the battle against racial injustice. After a peaceful protest march last year, Nick was quoted as saying, "It's important for me as an African American. I got three younger siblings at home, trying to make a correct example for them, knowing one day they're gonna be 18 to 20. I want them to feel safe. So, I'm just trying to find the best way to create an environment for the younger generation."

When it comes to what he represents to the younger generation in DFW, his brother, a wide receiver at Lone Star High School, says, "Another idol for other people to keep working no matter what the situation is."

Rayburn says, “He’s a special young man and a special leader. He’s going to do big things in the NFL and probably further than that.”

Chiefs' Travis Kelce, Operation Breakthrough break ground on new STEM lab

Chris Searcy

Fox 4 KC

May 24, 2021

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Operation Breakthrough's state-of-the-art Ignition Lab, powered by Kansas City Chiefs star Travis Kelce's charitable organization 87 and Running, broke ground Monday.

In just four months the organization will convert an old muffler shop into a new STEM facility.

"It's going to pave the way for higher paying jobs with industry-recognized skills being offered, but also pathways to college. So it gives kids a lot of different choices," said Mary Esselman, CEO of Operation Breakthrough.

The Ignition Lab, set to open this fall, will allow Operation Breakthrough to expand its cutoff age and work with students from 8th grade to high school graduation.

The lab will also allow students to learn new skills while earning certification.

Students say Operation Breakthrough has taught them lessons in and out of the classroom.

"I really learned a lot more to ask for help, and a lot of people here are really very open to help and wanting to help, which is really good, and it makes me feel good," said Semahj Ware, an Operation Breakthrough student.

Kelce was on hand Monday with Operation Breakthrough leaders and students to help get construction underway. After all, when Kelce signed his four-year, $57 million contract extension with the Chiefs, his first purchase was the building that would house the Ignition Lab.

He admits that purchase comes with a lot of bragging rights.

"I'm like, yeah, you know, I am going to a place where Travis Kelce paid personally," Ware said.

Kelce, along with two students, laid concrete and left a handprint to commemorate the special day.

"The minute I walked through the door, I knew that this place was special," Kelce said.

He said it feels good to be able to give back to the city that has given him so much throughout the years.

"You know I just want to show this city as much love as they have shown me because I am definitely fortunate because of them," the Chiefs tight end said.

He said Chiefs players don't just compete on the field. They also compete in the community, driven to see who can make the biggest impact.

"Without a doubt, man, we are trying to get acknowledged for Walter Payton Man of the Year," Kelce said with a laugh. "You know what I mean, it's always a competitive atmosphere in the facility, and you love that. You absolutely love that because you know guys are in it for the right reasons."

Kelce was nominated for the Man of the Year award last season for his work with Operation Breakthrough. Players are nominated for being outstanding community leaders. Although he didn't win the main league award this year, Kelce did win the Charity Challenge.

(Willie Gay)

Promising LB Willie Gay quickly making up for lost time, opportunities in OTAs

Nate Taylor

June 14, 2021

The Athletic

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Although linebacker Willie Gay has been in the NFL for 14 months now, he's still going through experiences that usually happen during a player's rookie year.

This summer has been the first time Gay has practiced with his Chiefs teammates in a more loose setting, one in which a young player can correct his mistakes more quickly because the repetitions are aplenty. And unlike last year, amid the height of the coronavirus pandemic, Gay went through his first voluntary on-field workouts the past three weeks at the Chiefs' training facility as the first phase of his anticipated second season, in which he is expected to be one of the team's starters.

At this time of the year, most second-year players can describe, often in rather great detail, the difference they have in terms of the confidence in their abilities and their knowledge of their team's scheme. Gay, along with all NFL rookies last season, knows that comparing the two years is unreasonable because the pandemic cancelled the Chiefs' on-field workouts last summer.

"It was tough," Gay said after Thursday's practice. "To only see the playbook for the first time during training camp, it was hard. To get that head start right now in OTAs, it's definitely helping a lot. I'm catching on to the things that I didn't catch on to last year.

"I learned the basics. Now it's the small details that make good great."

In the Chiefs' voluntary practices, Gay was been on the field plenty, as the team prioritized passing the ball for its potent offense and pass coverage for its secondary and linebackers. Gay has worked on his footwork, his zone coverage — when observing the opposing quarterback while also being aware of the receivers entering and leaving his area — and his timing when attempting to break up a pass. He has also covered every skill position player available on the opposite side of the line of scrimmage, from running back to fullback to wide receiver.

Those repetitions, and the ones upcoming this week during the Chiefs' mandatory minicamp, are designed to prepare Gay for a larger role in the team's younger defensive unit led by coordinator Steve Spagnuolo.

Last year, the first time Spagnuolo and coach Andy Reid worked with their players on the field after Super Bowl LIV was at the start of training camp. Known as a player's coach, Reid missed not being able to guide his young players, especially the team's rookies, through on-field, instructional workouts.

“(You’re) able to teach Willie Gay, as a rookie, on how to move and drop and your fundamentals and techniques and the different coverages that he’s got to take care of, and the run-fit responsibilities,” Reid said in April in reference of the lessons Gay had to learn later than usual last season. “When you’re not hands-on, it’s hard to walk through those things.”

Gay’s career began with no rookie minicamp repetitions, no voluntary OTAs repetitions and no minicamp repetitions.

“You miss out on 100-plus reps,” Gay said in December. “Repetition is big in today’s league.”

As a rookie, Gay played just 267 defensive snaps, which which was just 25 percent. One way to measure Gay’s growth this season is by how often Spagnuolo keeps him on the field on second- and third-down plays. Gay recorded just 96 combined snaps in such situations last year, according to Trumedia and Pro Football Focus. That statistic should rise since Gay is expected to replace linebacker Damien Wilson (230 snaps on second- and third-down plays), an eight-year veteran who joined the Jacksonville Jaguars via free agency.

Ken Flajole, the Chiefs’ new outside linebackers assistant, described Gay, who is listed at 6-foot-1 and 243 pounds, as a bigger, more athletic defensive back.

“This game is the ability to play in space and move,” Flajole said earlier this month. “Offenses do such a great job of spreading the field, both horizontally and vertically, that the old days, where you used to have a linebacker that weighed 250 (pounds), and all you wanted him to do was come downhill and blow up a fullback on a lead play, that doesn’t happen very often. Teams are rarely in two-back sets. Most of the teams are in 11-personnel where they’ve got three wide (receivers).

“The linebackers have to be able to move, they have to be able to cover, and you’ve got to be able to take matchups on tight ends and running backs and play man-to-man. The physical description of those players has changed dramatically over the course of my (22-year) career.”

When the Chiefs selected Gay in the second round if the 2020 NFL Draft after he excelled in college at Mississippi State; he had the highest coverage grade of any linebacker in the draft class, according to Pro Football Focus, surrendering just 183 yards in 294 coverage snaps.

“I can only get better at it,” Gay said. “That’s the good thing.”

But Gay’s first assignment after the Chiefs’ loss in Super Bowl LV was to have a full recovery after he needed surgery in late January to repair the torn meniscus in his left knee.

In the Chiefs’ regular-season finale against the Los Angeles Chargers, Gay sustained a a sprained ankle when he collided with linebacker Darius Harris while attempting to tackle tight end Donald Parham Jr. The injury forced Gay to miss the rest of the game, and he never appeared in the postseason, missing out on the valuable experience of performing on the sport’s biggest stage.

Four months following the surgery, Gay was cleared to participated in the Chiefs’ on-field workouts after rigorous rehabs sessions with Julie Frymyer, the team’s assistant athletic trainer.

“I don’t even know if it was at practice or just walking around after,” Gay said of his knee injury. “During this offseason period, with this training staff, we’ve been working nonstop, me and Julie. All her help that she has, it’s been a real grind. That’s why I’m here today 100 percent.”

Prior to his injury, the Chiefs were successful in the intricate task of how they wanted to develop Gay through an uncommon rookie season. Spagnuolo made sure Gay wasn't thrust into being a starter sooner than his development suggested. Gay was allowed to learn the Chiefs' complex scheme at a reasonable pace, all while being mentored by several veterans, the most prominent being starting middle linebacker Anthony Hitchens.

In 16 games, Gay produced 37 tackles, three tackles for loss, three pass breakups, one sack and one forced fumble. His most productive month was December, a positive sign that his athleticism and understanding of the Chiefs' playbook were starting to synchronize.

His best snap in the Chiefs' win over the Miami Dolphins in Week 14 occurred when the opposing offense attempted a trick play early in the second quarter, as wide receiver Lynn Bowden Jr. looked to throw a pass to quarterback Tua Tagovailoa on the perimeter. Gay recognized the Dolphins' plan and executed three impressive tasks in the course of six seconds: He retreated to cover the middle of the field, closed the running angle for a scrambling Bowden and tackled him, limiting the Dolphins to just a 2-yard gain.

In 12 snaps in the Chiefs' win over the New Orleans Saints in Week 15, Gay didn't appear to make any mistakes with his assignments. His final snap — and his only one in the fourth quarter — was his best. Gay stayed with tight end Jared Cook in man-to-man coverage before diving to record a perfectly timed pass breakup.

Against the Atlanta Falcons a week later, the Chiefs were without Hitchens (COVID-19 list) and Wilson (knee contusion). Gay recorded a team-high nine tackles. Early in the fourth quarter, Gay forced receiver Brandon Powell to fumble in the red zone, a turnover that proved critical in the Chiefs' comeback victory.

While Gay's injury paused his progression, the Chiefs supported him by using one of their second-round picks in this year's draft to select rookie linebacker Nick Bolton. Gay predicted on his Twitter account that the Chiefs were selecting Bolton and to express his approval of the team's decision. Bolton and Gay have been friends for the past four years since they met at a recruiting camp at Mississippi State.

"We talk every day," Gay said of Bolton. "We both are still fresh in this thing, so I teach him the (NFL) game as much as I can because I'm still learning from guys like Hitchens and Ben (Niemann) and Dorian (O'Daniel). We continue to stay close. It's a good connection we have."

The Chiefs are eager to pair Gay and Bolton, who is listed at 5-foot-11 and 237 pounds, for multiple years. The two defenders in the middle of Spagnuolo's defense, who have sideline-to-sideline speed, could help strengthen an already above-average unit.

"Let's not forget: Willie Gay didn't have any preseason games last year," Spagnuolo said earlier this month. "Nick will get a benefit of that this year. We're going to try to find ways to get them on the field "It might take a little while. The volume of the defense is probably catching up with both of them right now. We've asked Willie to play two different spots: Sam and Will."

Gay is optimistic that all of the reps he's getting this offseason will increase his production, both his defensive snaps and his statistics.

"With this extra time we have in OTAs," Gay said, "it's only going to help."

Super Bowl champion and pandemic orderly Laurent Duvernay-Tardif: Be bigger than your sport

Laurent Duvernay-Tardif, as told to Charlotte Gibson

July 7, 2021

ESPN

In July 2020, Kansas City Chiefs offensive lineman Laurent Duvernay-Tardif became the first NFL player to opt out of the 2020 NFL season. Duvernay-Tardif opted instead to continue his work at a long-term care facility in his hometown of Montreal during the coronavirus pandemic. A medical school graduate from McGill University in Canada, Duvernay-Tardif, 30, started assisting as an orderly shortly after he won Super Bowl LIV with the Chiefs in February 2020. In his opt-out announcement on social media, Duvernay-Tardif called the decision one of the most difficult of his life. Prior to opting out, Duvernay-Tardif had been the Chiefs' starting right guard for the past five seasons, and he played every offensive snap during the team's Super Bowl win over the San Francisco 49ers.

Throughout the pandemic, Duvernay-Tardif continued to train for a return to the football field. In a June minicamp, his starting spot was occupied by a rookie, sixth-round draft pick Trey Smith. In a few weeks, he will have the opportunity at training camp to earn back his job.

Duvernay-Tardif was named the winner of the Muhammad Ali Sports Humanitarian Award Saturday at The ESPYS. He will be honored with finalists Layshia Clarendon, Anthony Rizzo and Titus O'Neil during the Sports Humanitarian Awards on July 12.

In his own words, Duvernay-Tardif describes what it meant to opt out of the 2020 season and why he wants to make an impact beyond the football field.

I'VE ALWAYS TRIED to be the best athlete on the field. But I've also always wanted to be the best human being off the field.

I have no regrets when it comes to opting out of the 2020 NFL season and working on the front lines of the COVID-19 pandemic in a long-term care facility. I knew that my purpose this last year was to use my medical background to care for others. My role wasn't to play football, but instead to be on the front lines of the global pandemic.

I went from winning the Super Bowl with my Chiefs teammates in Miami to celebrating with them during the parade in Kansas City with over one million people to working on the front lines in a long-term care facility.

I don't think what I did was heroic. And some days, at the long-term care facility, what I was doing definitely couldn't be described as heroic.

At the beginning of the pandemic, I wanted to go back and help in a physician's role. I don't have my license to practice yet, so that was impossible to do. But I wanted to help however I could and that ended up being as a nurse/orderly in the facility. Basically, I would do everything my bosses wanted me to do. My duties ranged from feeding people, changing people, administering medicine, just caring for them however I could. I realized that no matter what I was doing, at the end of the day, taking care of someone is not about just treating them at all costs. It's about caring.

I never knew what I was walking into when I got to work each day. It was pretty hectic. Some days, there would be no issues. Other days, you'd get a patient with a runny nose and next thing you know there would be eight patients who tested positive. We had emergency red zones where positive patients would have to reside. It was hard. We lost a lot of patients.

This past year really changed me.

I always saw medicine as a way to cure people. I wanted to send people back home with good news. Working on the front lines and in red zones in the long-term care facility was a new environment for me as a medical professional. I quickly realized that, because of COVID, people were not going to be returning home. And it gave me a different perspective on life. It gave me a different perspective on football. It gave me a different perspective on everything.

I always viewed medicine as a way to help me cope with some of the pressure of sports. When I decided to pursue a career in medicine while playing professional football, I experienced a new level of pressure beyond the field. What I witnessed in the emergency room could directly help me when it came to playing football and being in a high-stress environment. It helped me optimize my performance on the field. But ultimately, working in the medical field helped me define myself as more than a football player.

This past year, I got a different sense of what really matters in life. I saw so much suffering. I saw so much resilience. The healthcare workers displayed resilience like I've never seen before.

You think that playing a team sport makes you a team player? Maybe, but look at people on the front lines, and you will see what it means to be a team player. Every day, the front-line workers had to work as a team if they wanted to survive the pandemic.

Duvernay-Tardif wants to cast a spotlight on other front-line healthcare workers who stepped up during the pandemic. "They are the real heroes," he says.

When I first opted out of the 2020 season, I needed some time for myself. I didn't have a chance to really talk about my decision with my teammates beyond what I tweeted in July 2020. As much as I wanted to get into all of it, I actually had to focus on the work in the long-term care facility. But in the middle of the season, I started reaching out to teammates. I still felt like I was part of the team. It felt like that connection to the Chiefs never left, despite being more than 1,000 miles away. Football is in my DNA. That's never leaving, even if I'm on the front lines.

During the winter, as the team was approaching playoffs, that's when I really wanted to play football. I remember really feeling like even though I was far away in another country, I was still part of the Chiefs. And I wanted to continue to be part of the Chiefs.

Due to COVID-19, fitness centers were closed in Montreal. I decided to build a weight room on the balcony of my apartment to stay in shape and be ready for anything. I put all my emphasis and my focus into strictly training. I've actually never trained like that before, but I feel stronger and faster and healthier than ever. I would train multiple times a week, despite how cold it would be or how tired I would be, because I knew that I wanted to stay in football shape, but I also needed something to ground me. I trained to stay grounded and take my mind away from what I was experiencing on the front lines.

Just as training allowed me to stay grounded, watching the Chiefs play every week helped me stay grounded. It provided a release from the pandemic. During one of the toughest times, I was able to watch the Chiefs play on TV. It provided a source of entertainment during a really dark time. And I don't think I'm alone in feeling like sports brought us together during this pandemic. Sports is a connective tissue of our society. When I would watch the Chiefs play on TV, I remember feeling a sense of hope. Hope that society was going to return back to normal at some point.

But it wasn't just watching the Chiefs play on TV. It was going into work on Monday morning, after working a Sunday night shift, and watching the replays with my patients.

Some patients were big football fans, and I knew that when I woke them up in the morning to give them their medication, we would talk about last night's game and watch replays. Even though I would be completely covered up in my scrubs, visor, mask, there would be an intimate connection there because of football. Sharing moments like that reminded me that I was there for a purpose. It also reminded me that I wasn't there to just treat patients, but I was there to care for patients. Taking that time to connect made a difference -- for not only them, but for me, too. Many of my patients weren't going to return home. They weren't going to receive cures for their diseases. I wanted to make sure that I did anything to bring some positivity to their lives. And if some days that meant talking football, then that's a great thing.

About a month after Super Bowl LV, I stopped working in the long-term care facility. I wanted to get back to working out full time and getting ready for Chiefs minicamp practices. I know the odds of me not being able to come back to play on the Chiefs. I know that being away for a year is basically like being injured for a whole season. Nothing is guaranteed. There's always pressure. There's always competition. It's a risk that I took, but I'm comfortable with it. And when I decided that I would stop working in the long-term care facility, I knew that I needed to give myself the best opportunity to come back stronger than ever before.

When I showed up to minicamp in June, I was anxious. I was nervous to see if it was still going to feel like home. But the minute I showed up, I couldn't help but think about how good it felt to be back. More than that, though, I couldn't help but think about how privileged I was to be back. It is a privilege to be able to walk on the football field. And my experience on the front lines allowed me to feel that sense of privilege. It gave me a new perspective on everything related to football.

My teammates and coaches played a huge role in making me feel welcome again. In the first huddle of minicamp practice, coach Andy Reid yelled out, "Hey Doc, welcome back!" That little sentence meant everything to me. The acknowledgment. It felt so special to get back out there.

When I first called Coach Reid to tell him that I was opting out of the 2020 season, he told me he completely understood and supported me. Of course, he was surprised. But I never felt like I didn't have his support. And that support lifted a tremendous amount of weight off my shoulders last year. Returning to the field and hearing him say, "Hey Doc," is part of the reason why I'm returning and why I'm doing everything I can to be a starter.

Before being drafted, in 2014, Coach Reid was the only coach that I encountered that understood the importance of medical school in my life. He knew I needed to pursue medicine to reach a balance on and off the field. A lot of people doubted me. A lot of people couldn't understand how I was going to balance medical school and professional football. But Coach Reid never doubted me. If it was not for him, there's no way I would've been able to go back every offseason and report late every year for the past seven years in order to graduate. He helped me every step of the way. He helped get me to where I am today.

Even though he was in another country and more than a thousand miles away from Kansas City, Duvernay-Tardif said he always felt like he was part of the Chiefs.

As a professional athlete, my responsibility has been to be the best football player that I can be when I step onto the field. But at the end of the day, for me, what matters most is to be able to use that platform to promote something bigger than just our sport.

When I decided to opt out and return to the front lines, I wanted to show the next generation of student-athletes that it's possible to be bigger than your sport. It's important to showcase the impact that education can have on your career and life. It's important to showcase that balance is necessary. That you are more than your sport and you are capable of making an impact beyond the field or court.

In 2016, I started the LDT Foundation. The purpose was to promote balance between sports, education and arts. The goal is to help students find their passions and pursue those passions at the highest level while still being well-rounded.

IN MY OWN LIFE, I don't know what's next. But I know that I'm going to always pursue medicine, public health and philanthropy. No matter what happens in my professional football career, I will always be using my platform to promote those things.

In a few weeks, I'll fly back to Kansas City for training camp. I wouldn't be able to return to the field if it wasn't for healthcare workers. I don't like to be called a hero because I don't think I was a hero for opting out. But I do think that if I can shed a light on the actual heroes that I worked with every single day on the front lines, then I did part of my job.

It's been almost a year since I decided to opt out, and I am grateful for the recognition and applause that I receive for returning to the front lines. But when I am being elevated, I want to elevate all of the other front-line and healthcare workers who didn't receive public recognition and applause. They are the real heroes. They put everything on the line in order to care for other people and protect our society. I followed their sacrifices. I may get the spotlight, especially as I attempt to return to the field, but they really deserve it.

Laurent Duvernay-Tardif Named Recipient of the Muhammad Ali Sports Humanitarian Award

Duvernay-Tardif was announced as the receipt of the award during the ESPYs on Saturday

The man put his life on hold, forgoing his starting role on the reigning Super Bowl champions in order to help those who he'd never met. He walked away from the glory of an NFL Sunday for endless hours filled with heartache, all in the hopes of making a difference where he could.

Kansas City Chiefs' guard Laurent Duvernay-Tardif is an impressive athlete, but the decision that he made around a year ago this time goes beyond his aptitude on the field and demonstrates the character that makes the man we call "LDT" an outstanding human being.

Nobody asked for him to put his football career on hold and to utilize his medical degree in the battle against COVID-19 – he simply just believed that it was the right thing to do – and it's for that very reason that Duvernay-Tardif was named the recipient of the Muhammad Ali Sports Humanitarian Award on Saturday at the ESPYs.

The honor, which is part of the Sports Humanitarian Awards, is given to an athlete whose continuous, demonstrated leadership and care has created a measured positive impact on their community through sports.

Duvernay-Tardif certainly fits the bill, as he spent the past year at a long-term care facility in his native Montreal caring for those battling COVID-19.

"Sometimes I was a nurse, sometimes I was an orderly and sometimes I was a resident. I was basically helping where help was needed. It was tough - we lost a lot of patients - and we know that long-term care facilities were pretty badly affected," Duvernay-Tardif explained during minicamp last month. "I don't regret my decision. I think I was in the right place at the right moment, and I was able to put my medical training to use."

Duvernay-Tardif is now back with the Chiefs as they prepare for the 2021 campaign, but his decision – and its impact on those in need – will not soon be forgotten. This award only further solidifies that.

Rookie TE Noah Gray on Chiefs Camp: "There's a Standard Here and I'm Trying to Uphold It"

Gray has impressed so far throughout the Chiefs' offseason training program

Patrick Mahomes scanned the field during a 7-on-7 period at training camp on Saturday, surveying his options before firing a dart to rookie tight end Noah Gray, who plucked the ball out of the sky and turned up field for a sizable gain.

It was another entry in what's become a familiar connection during the Chiefs' offseason program, as Gray has repeatedly made plays in practice ever since Kansas City drafted him in the fifth round back in May. The former Duke standout has impressed on a regular basis, and now with the rookie portion of training camp underway, he's looking to continue working on his skills ahead of the 2021 campaign.

"There were things during [Organized Team Activities] that I was asked to work on and that I need to continue to build on - things like route-running and blocking," Gray explained on Saturday. "We haven't put the pads on yet, but when the blocking comes, that's something that's going to need to continue to progress. There's also a lot of things in terms of route-running that I still need to get better at, so I'm just asking questions."

It certainly helps, too, that Gray is coming into camp with the foundation established earlier this summer – a luxury that last year's rookies weren't afforded due to the virtual nature of the 2020 offseason.

"OTAs were really a blessing for us – I don't know how the rookies last year did it," Gray said. "Going through that just really helped from a knowledge standpoint and understanding the basic concepts that this offense asks you to know. It was a huge help from that perspective."

And he seemed to make an impression in the process, earning praise from Mahomes during OTAs last month for not only his athleticism, but also his awareness on the field when plays broke down.

"Noah has been really good – I think he has a veteran-type skillset where he knows how to get himself open even if it's not exactly what the play is designed to do," Mahomes said in early June. "He knows how to get his eyes back and how to get on the quarterback's timing."

That's significant commendation coming from the 2019 NFL MVP, but Gray remains focused as ever on improving his game despite some early success at practice.

"It's a blessing that he thinks that of me, but I also understand that I need to come out here and keep grinding, keep hitting the playbook and keep practicing hard," Gray said. "From a mentality standpoint, it just means that I need to keep doing the things that I know that I can do. It's great that a teammate thinks that of me, but to be able to come out here and be the best teammate that I can be, that's what means the most to me."

One of those teammates is of course fellow tight end Travis Kelce, whose career is on pace to go down as one of the greatest ever at the position. Kelce is the only tight end in league history to ever tally five consecutive 1,000-yard seasons, and his 1,416 receiving yards in 2020 were the most ever by a tight end.

The 31-year-old Kelce is the gold standard at the position, and according to Gray, his advice has proven invaluable over the last several months.

"It's tremendous. Like I said on draft day, I don't think there's anywhere else I'd rather be in the country," Gray said. "To be able to learn under Travis Kelce is a blessing. To come out here and to be able to gain that knowledge from him and to learn from him every day and to be able to visualize and watch him on the field, that's been something that's been extremely key to me coming out and being able to execute my assignments."

It's still very early in the process and the Chiefs have yet to practice in pads this offseason, but the initial returns have certainly been impressive. It's now up to Gray to maintain that strong start into the dog days of camp, and based on his remarks so far, he seems more than up for the challenge.

"We have a standard here, and I'm just trying to uphold that," Gray said. "I knew that coming in and I knew that as soon as I was drafted. It's a credit to my teammates for getting me up to speed on that and [continuing] it out here on the practice field."

Sporting KC: Mahomes' ownership stake reflects his passion for the club, city

James Dornbrook

July 28, 2021

Kansas City Business Journal

Sporting Kansas City hasn't added a new owner to its exclusive club since it acquired the team from Lamar Hunt in 2006, but the opportunity to bring Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes on board was too good to pass up.

Mahomes bought a minority stake in Sporting Kansas City on Tuesday for an undisclosed amount. He joins an ownership group called Sporting Club that includes Cliff Illig, the Neal Patterson family, Greg Maday, Pat Curran and Robb Heineman.

Sporting KC President Jake Reid said it's too soon to really say what kind of involvement Mahomes will have in the club, though nobody expects his ownership responsibilities to get in the way of playing football.

"He's at training camp right now, and we all want him to be very focused on football and winning Super Bowls," Reid told the Kansas City Business Journal. "So his day job will continue to be the focal point of his energy, as it should be, but we'll engage with him and ensure he's in the loop on all things Sporting Kansas City. Ultimately, over time, we'll see what he wants his level of involvement to be."

Reid said Mahomes has attended dozens of Sporting games since he came to Kansas City and has been a soccer fan for many years. The passion he has shown for the club and the sport was the biggest reason the owners made a decision to allow him to buy a stake. In addition, they saw that Kansas City means more to Mahomes than just a place where he plays football.

"From the ownership side, we've gained someone who is passionate about our sport and this city," Reid said. "For us, those are the two most important things. His personal brand that he built with his success in such a short period of time in the NFL — and what we hope will be a very long career with many more Super Bowl wins — certainly will also reflect great on our club. I think having him in and around the club and the sport is a huge positive not just for Sporting, but for all of us in Kansas City."

Reid cited Kansas City's effort to land the World Cup as just one example where Mahomes could play a key role simply by lending his fame to the effort.

Mahomes also can provide a big boost to the locker room for Sporting KC.

"Professional athletes all relate to the commitment to their craft and the work ethic that goes behind that," Reid said. "Our players can see what he's done, and his commitment to be great resonates with our guys because that's what they're trying to do as well. So any time you see someone at the top of their respective sport there is certainly mutual respect. Our guys have that for Patrick, and I think vice versa as well."

The Offseason Education of Patrick Mahomes

No one thinks the Chiefs lost the Super Bowl because of Mahomes, but the star passer looked at the tape and saw ways he could improve. Kansas City is getting better this offseason—and has a plan to reclaim the NFL's throne.

Kevin Clark

August 11, 2021

The Ringer

The best quarterback in football watched the worst game of his career twice.

He was looking for something to learn from, because that's sorta just what he does, and he found it. "Sometimes," Patrick Mahomes told me, "when I get hit early, I don't trust staying in the pocket and going through my reads."

"I kind of get back to that backyard-style football a little bit too much. And you could definitely see that in the Super Bowl. I mean, there were times that pockets were clean and I was still scrambling," Mahomes continued.

It's been six months since the Super Bowl, a 31-9 Buccaneers win, and Mahomes and I are standing on the side of a practice field on a ludicrously hot Missouri afternoon to talk about what he's gleaned since that night. The short answer is a lot. I came to St. Joseph, Missouri, to find out what comes next for the Chiefs. The answer is everything.

No serious person thinks the Chiefs lost the Super Bowl because of Mahomes. But that is almost the point: He's learning from it anyway. He is an MVP, a three-time Pro Bowl selection, and a Super Bowl champion whose team has made two Super Bowls and an AFC title game in his three seasons as a starter. He has united with coach Andy Reid to build one of the most impressive and sustainable offenses in league history. Part of what was so startling about the final game of the season was that in three years, Mahomes had developed a style of play that was almost always perfect. He was John Wick with a pencil or Kevin Durant with a burner Twitter account. All he needed for his entire career was a football and he could make magic happen. Statistically, the Super Bowl was the worst game of his career; it was the first game in his NFL life he lost by more than one score. But the story of the game was the Bucs' fast defense speeding past a banged-up, makeshift Chiefs offensive line. The enduring image of February's loss was Mahomes parallel to the ground, throwing a pretty good pass after getting tripped up in the backfield. In short, he wasn't himself because he didn't have the time to be. Mahomes was pressured 29 times—a Super Bowl record—and ran a total of 497 yards behind the line of scrimmage to avoid the Bucs' pass rush. Todd Bowles's defense accomplished that despite blitzing far less than usual, and it worked because the Bucs front was able to put near constant pressure on Mahomes while the defensive backs and linebackers did their jobs behind them.

“I think it’s pretty obvious to say how we needed to get better and the path we needed to take to get better. It was probably pretty clear to most football fans, even if you don’t work for the Chiefs,” general manager Brett Veach told me of the offseason. “You’re literally on the bus on the way back from the Super Bowl thinking ‘How are we going to get this done?’” The path, obviously, was fixing the offensive line. In the Super Bowl, the team was without longtime starters Eric Fisher (tore his Achilles in the AFC title game), Mitchell Schwartz (back injury), and Laurent Duvernay-Tardif (a medical school graduate who opted out of the season and returned to the medical field). Veach, one of the best problem solvers in the sport, solved this one quickly once Fisher and Schwartz were both released. Veach traded for Ravens tackle Orlando Brown, signed Joe Thuney, drafted Creed Humphrey in the second round, and lured Kyle Long out of retirement. Mahomes will be playing behind an entirely different line this year. This is the story of how the 2021 Chiefs have spent the past six months learning the lessons of that night in Tampa.

Those next steps, obviously, extend to the August practice after which I met with Mahomes, and he detailed exactly how he’s building off of what he saw on tape. He continued his thought on playing too much “backyard football” that night. “So,” Mahomes said, “I’ve been going back [working] on that. Making sure that I trust the guys around me and trust the pocket, make the read within the pocket and not try to make the big play happen.”

This tendency to, as Mahomes puts it, stop trusting his reads after hits, is something he’s said he’s always focused on fixing, but he said he noticed it particularly in that February game. Now comes fixing it. “Days like today,” he said, “we have long drive drills. We’re going 15 and 16 plays in a row of stepping up in the pocket and making the right reads and not just relying on scrambling and making all these different throws. That’s just stuff that comes with repetition and a lot of hard work that I’ve tried to put in every single year.”

One interesting part of Mahomes’s constant education process is his close study of other quarterbacks. (He mentioned this habit to the NFL Network’s Kurt Warner earlier in camp.) When we chatted, I wanted to get as nerdy as possible with Mahomes and figure out exactly what he’s watching—and borrowing—from the league’s other quarterbacks. I was not disappointed. One thing that impresses me about Mahomes is his willingness to borrow from anything. He once told me that his warmup routine is borrowed from baseball. Mahomes told me this week he watches a combination of All-22 and other types of film to study. In other eras, such game film would be harder to access whenever you want it. “The best thing about today is that you can find all the different sources that you need and then I talk to those guys,” he said.

I went through the list. Aaron Rodgers? “I think the biggest thing with Aaron is you see how he’s evolved throughout his game. It’s kind of like what I’m talking about, where he used to scramble a lot more, make all the different throws, and now he can just completely dice you up through the pocket,” Mahomes said. “And then when those opportunities come and he starts scrambling, he makes the throws, and he can still do all that stuff. So I really watch that.”

And Tom Brady? “Brady, same thing. I mean, dicing them up within the pocket. But the way he’s able to move within the pocket and find those lanes and still make those big-time throws downfield is something that I think I need to get better at and something that I need to continue to grow with," Mahomes said. "And so that's definitely one thing I take from him."

What about Josh Allen? "I think the biggest thing with Josh is, I mean, he does a lot of stuff similar to what I do as far as being able to work throughout the pocket and be able to make plays with his legs, but be able to scramble and kind of elongate plays and make different throws," Mahomes said. "That whole offense in general is a great, great offense to watch and all the different schemes that they do and how they have success. It was definitely a good game to watch."

Mahomes said he seeks out advice from Rodgers and Brady, among others. "I think people don't realize all us guys talk. I talk to Aaron, I talk to Tom and they're willing to give me advice," he said. "I'm still a young guy in this league. I'm still trying to learn how to continue to have success every single year and so being able to talk like that with the guys is definitely a good thing."

Mahomes is 25 years old. Last year, he signed a 10-year deal worth $450 million. There are very few future scenarios in which he is not the game's best passer so long as he's healthy and protected. I asked Mahomes about the mental side of it, how long it took him to start moving forward from last season. He said the loss stayed with him for a "week or two. And you kind of just move on, and that's just the beauty of football is every single year, the year starts over no matter if you win or lose the Super Bowl. So we got a brand-new year, brand-new team, and we're ready to go out there and make a run at it." You hear that sort of thing a lot around Chiefs camp.

Veach said he did not learn anything about Mahomes that night he did not already know: He knew, for instance, that Mahomes would be a ferocious competitor even when getting chased in the backfield of a game that was out of reach in the fourth quarter. Mahomes, mind you, was playing with a turf toe injury. "I don't think people realized how bad that toe was," Veach said, noting that after Mahomes had surgery to fix the injury, doctors marveled that he played in the type of pain he must have had. "So it was the combination of knowing he was playing hurt, with the fact that we were shorthanded. It was tough to watch. Tough to stomach. Like a scene in a movie where the car is going off a cliff."

Veach is one of the best GMs in football, in large part because he is the perfect general manager to pair with a franchise quarterback: He knows how to be "all in" every year and get the quarterback exactly what he needs. If you think all 32 GMs would have been able to overhaul that offensive line that quickly, then you haven't met every NFL GM. Veach, Reid, and Mahomes play an equal role in the next steps for the franchise and so far, everyone's doing their job.

Veach has become obsessed with Formula 1 racing. He supports Red Bull Racing and its main driver, Max Verstappen, because he was impressed with him during the Netflix series, Formula 1: Drive to Survive, and because the team reminded him of something. "I was up late one night and I put it on and I got hooked. It's amazing. And I tell all the guys who don't follow it: 'Lewis Hamilton: Tom Brady. Max Verstappen: Pat Mahomes.' And that's how I kind of look at it." For the uninitiated, Hamilton is a seven-time champion and a global icon, while Verstappen is the young king of the sport. Both are unquestionably the two best drivers at the moment and are fighting for the 2021 championship. Veach talked about why he liked the sport: All of the small edges combine to make big differences. It is quite easy to see why a detail-oriented general manager like Veach fell for Formula 1.

But in the case of the Chiefs, this was not about fixing 0.01 seconds of speed, this was about fixing a problem everyone with a television could see. Terrible injury luck led to an uncharacteristic performance and a sinking feeling in the stomach of basically everyone in the organization. “It was such a unique experience—the magnitude of the game, the Super Bowl, and not just that we lost, but how we lost,” Veach said. “We’ve lost games over the years. But we’ve always had a chance to win those games, and we always would’ve liked to have a play back here and there. Whether it be the AFC championship game that we lost to New England, or the Rams game that was a shootout, or, I mean, all types of scenarios. That was probably the first time and I don’t know how long—years—that we just weren’t in the game.”

Veach said it was hard to get the game out of his mind “not just from an evaluation standpoint, but an emotional standpoint.”

He jokes that if someone had told him before the season that the team would go 14-2, have the best record in franchise history, and win the AFC title game, there’s no way he wouldn’t find it an unbelievable accomplishment. “But the way we lost, you had this feeling that … ” Veach said before pausing. “You felt like you were the worst team in the league after that.”

Veach thinks that no matter how you evaluate the season—whether through the prism of that one game or through the entire year—the answer is to get younger on the offensive line. The team has a chance to start two rookies opening week in Humphrey, a second-round pick, and Trey Smith, a sixth-rounder. Veach and I have talked before about how they maximize their roster, which Veach has built since he became general manager in 2017 working alongside Reid. Part of the thing that impressed me in my time around the Chiefs is the chemistry within all facets of the organization. “I think it’s everyone’s responsibility to just look in the mirror,” Veach said. “And I think that’s why we’re successful. I think we’re all real with each other. And we all understand that we’re in this to get better. After a game like that, it’s easy to point fingers. But that wasn’t our mindset, our mindset was ‘Let’s work together to get better.’ And whether that be Pat and his play, the players, the coaches, game planning and the personnel department, we’re always on the same page and work together to figure this out.” Building a roster a year after signing Mahomes to the biggest deal in history comes with “the stuff that I think you would assume,” Veach said. That means less aggression in free agency, more patience to find the exact right fit for a player, making sure everyone you bring in fits “schematically and culturally,” and of course using the draft, in which players are on significantly smaller contracts for at least four years.

I asked Mahomes a similar question: Are you scouting yourself from the 2020 season or the Super Bowl? “I look at every game pretty much the same,” he said. “I go through the whole entire season, we go through the whole entire scheme eval[uation], and we just figure out what we did good and what we did bad. And I mean, we did a lot of good last year, I think we get lost in that with how we played in the Super Bowl. And so we take from that and try to learn ways to get better and try to find a way to win at this next year.”

The topic turned, of course, to golf, which Mahomes loves because, well, he’s an NFL quarterback. He played when he was younger, and his dad played, of course, being an MLB pitcher. In his first NFL offseason, he realized how much free time he had and he didn’t want to “sit around playing video games. So I started golfing a lot and kind of fell in love with the grind of trying to get better.”

That last part sounds familiar. The 2021 Chiefs are getting better, and that started six months ago.

No Stranger to Being the Underdog, Khalen Saunders Embraces Comeback Opportunity

Saunders, whose second season in Kansas City was essentially lost due to injury, has been making an impression at practice

It was simply a case of bad luck for defensive tackle Khalen Saunders last season when the former third-round pick, who had just compiled a solid rookie campaign, dislocated his elbow in the Chiefs' opening contest against Houston.

The injury essentially ended his second professional season before it even had an opportunity to get started, but now healthy and a full year removed from that unfortunate night against the Texans, Saunders has quickly reminded everyone what he can do with a strong training camp.

"It has a lot to do with confidence," Saunders said on Monday. "I don't think the scheme is something I really struggle with - I've always been pretty good about learning and picking up a defense - it's just about being comfortable. I knew coming into this year that I kind of had to re-introduce myself, so that's been my focus this whole offseason and leading into this preseason."

That mentality is a product of a difficult season that included only three appearances for Saunders, whose elbow injury placed one of his greatest skillsets at a disadvantage.

"It was very frustrating for me because upper body strength and the ability to move guys around is my biggest attribute," Saunders explained. "It was hard because I'm already an undersized defensive tackle, and using my hands is a big part of my game. That's how I keep those longer guys off me. [I wasn't comfortable] striking people with my left elbow, so it was a setback."

Fortunately, Saunders' injury didn't need surgery. It was just about taking the time to heal while staying mentally focused on the bigger picture at hand. That required patience, but he eventually had a chance to play significant snaps in Kansas City's regular-season finale against Los Angeles, providing the kindling for a strong offseason program and training camp in the months that followed.

"It's been great to see. I'd say he's had the best training camp he's had since he's been with us," said Run Game Coordinator / Defensive Line Coach Brendan Daly. "I'm pleased with the way he's working - he's expanded his role. One of the things that jumps out to me about Khalen is that he's one of the smartest guys in the room. He understands adjustments, the calls, and the schemes. [He has] a very, very high football IQ, which is impressive to me."

And if you ask Saunders, this is just a continuation of what he started as a rookie in 2019 when the six-foot-tall, 324-pound defensive tackle appeared in 12 games and recorded more than 300 snaps. He views this season as a metaphorical junior year in the professional ranks, and just because his sophomore campaign was lost due to injury, that didn't stop his growth as a player.

"I've always been this [kind of player]. I don't think there was any on/off switch. I just think that I got hurt in the first game of the season and I didn't have a chance to show growth from my rookie year to my second season," Saunders said. "Now, you're getting a super load of last year and this year's improvement."

That was apparent throughout training camp, ultimately earning Saunders an opportunity to start last weekend's preseason tilt against the Arizona Cardinals. Of course, this was just an exhibition game and the results don't count in the standings, but the decision was an affirmation that the third-year defensive tackle was making an impression.

"The workload is never too much for me, regardless of what it is. Just being able to start and get a reward out of the work I've put in, it's a great feeling," Saunders said. "One thing I will say though, and my teammates and coaches know this, is that I know I'm a rotational guy in this defense, but I'm always going to play my part to the best of my ability…Starting is a blessing, but I'm always a team-first guy and I've always been that way. I think that helps with the cohesion of the defensive line and it helps us trust one another."

It's an admirable mindset and one that also has its roots in the Chiefs' culture as a whole. In fact, Saunders recalled his experience as a rookie and how he was treated – specifically by fellow defensive linemen Chris Jones and Frank Clark – while illustrating what makes this locker room so unique.

"I have a lot of friends in the league, and they talk about how rookies get treated [elsewhere]," Saunders said. "Ever since I came here, they never treated me like a rookie. They treated me like a guy they'd need later in the season to win a championship. That's what I felt."

The former Western Illinois standout helped the Chiefs accomplish that exact goal during his rookie year, and while his second season didn't go the way he would have hoped, Saunders isn't deterred by what amounted to a temporary setback.

In fact, he embraces it.

"That's been a part of my story this whole time. Before the injury and after the injury, I've always been an underrated player," Saunders said. "I've always had to go above and beyond as opposed to the guys coming from the FBS schools, so it's nothing new to me. It's familiar territory for me to be underrated and to just go out and prove what I already know myself to be."

Jody Fortson on His Long Journey to the Chiefs' 53-Man Roster: "I Just Kept Working"

Fortson made the roster on Tuesday after being cut in each of the last two offseasons

Chiefs.com

This is a familiar time of year for Chiefs' tight end Jody Fortson, whose dream of playing in the National Football League has temporarily ended following training camp in each of the last two offseasons.

It's a brutal reality that annually informs hundreds of individuals from across the league that they didn't make the final cut as rosters trim down to 53 players, and something that Fortson has experienced twice in his pursuit of being a professional football player.

This is simply the way it is for those on the roster bubble, and it's why many players choose to move on with their lives while others continue chasing the dream. Fortson is a member of the latter, as he arrived at One Arrowhead Drive back in May with the focus of a player who would not be denied. He maintained that drive through training camp and the preseason, and while the annual reality of roster cuts arrived once again on Tuesday, the familiar disappointment did not.

Fortson is a member of the Chiefs' initial 53-man roster to begin the upcoming campaign, and as it turns out, it was quarterback Patrick Mahomes who broke the news to him.

"I was in the weight room, and Patrick came up to me and said, 'Congratulations for all your hard work man, I'm proud of you,'" Fortson said. "It really didn't hit me, so I asked what he was talking about. He was like, 'You're on the team.'"

Fortson – a big-bodied pass-catcher out of Valdosta State University – began this journey with a successful tryout in the summer of 2019. The 6-foot-6, 230-pound wide receiver made the switch to tight end upon signing his original deal with the Chiefs before moving back to wide receiver the following summer, and then back again to tight end this past offseason.

He's been a popular player in that time with his impressive frame and aptitude for the highlight-reel play, but Fortson has routinely been the odd man out when it came down to decision time. That's why Tuesday's news – which rewarded a brilliant showing this summer that included six grabs for 60 yards in the preseason – was so significant for the 25-year-old pass-catcher.

"I've put a lot of time into this and there were a lot of days that I didn't think this would come, but I had to stay true to it. I just kept working, and here we are," Fortson said. "I know there's so much more work to do, but I was told to take my small victories as well and cherish them. It's been a long road."

A long road indeed, but one in which Fortson has navigated with the spirit of a player who believed in what he could do all along. It's a mentality that stood out to Chiefs' Head Coach Andy Reid.

"He busts his tail and he's earned the right to have made that cut. It's been his attitude all the way through – just a positive attitude and [the mindset of a guy] fighting for a spot. That's been the one common denominator that's gotten him to this point," Reid said. "It was a matter of becoming more consistent and growing in the size part of it. Remember, he was a junior college quarterback, then a receiver and then a tight end, so he's kind of gone through a gamut of positions there."

Fortson's experience at different positions could lend to Coach Reid's creativity, too. He's proven he can play tight end at the professional level, but he also possesses the athleticism to play wide receiver if needed. In fact, according to Pro Football Focus, Fortson logged 15 snaps in the slot and 14 snaps out wide during the preseason.

Additionally, when it comes to Fortson's abilities at tight end, the Chiefs found the end zone through the air against Minnesota while utilizing an offensive formation that featured four tight ends. To contextualize just how unique that was, that kind of scheme was only used a grand total of 11 times – with only two pass attempts – last season across the NFL.

The point is that Fortson is more than just a good story, he has the tools to be a chess piece offensively who can create mismatches for the opposition. Of course, he's ready for whatever the coaching staff throws his way.

"If they needed me to go out there and play longsnapper, I could go out there and do it," Fortson said jokingly. "Wherever they need me to play, that's where I'll be."

Fortson's ascension to the active roster goes beyond his efforts on offense though, as players in his position – especially pass-catchers looking to fill out the roster – must contribute on special teams. It's why Fortson approached Assistant Head Coach / Special Teams Coordinator Dave Toub for advice prior to last season.

"He told me that I needed to be more dominant and that I needed to go out there with an even hungrier mindset, so I didn't leave any stone unturned. I didn't take any plays off, I approached everything like it was a game rep," Fortson explained. "I messed up here and there, but everything was fast, and everything was precise. I was intentional with everything that I did."

Fortson logged the most special teams' snaps of any player in the Chiefs' initial preseason matchup against San Francisco, and according to PFF's metrics, no player fared better. He finished the preseason with 29 total snaps on special teams – the second most on the squad – and the best overall PFF grade among players with significant snaps.

"He came in my office and asked what he needed to do, so I laid it out for him," said Toub, who mentioned Fortson when asked to name a player who raised their stock on special teams this summer. "I'm so excited about him because he's done it. He's put himself in a position to be successful."

It all culminated in Fortson's arrival on the 53-man roster this week, marking an achievement years in the making. A story that began with a tryout player from a small school without a set position continued on Tuesday with the validation of a roster spot, but this journey is far from over.

"I don't have the mindset that I've made it. This is a step in the right direction, but this isn't the dream. This isn't my end goal. I have dreams, and I have plans to see them through. This is just the beginning and I'm just getting started," Fortson said. "We were already dangerous before I was [on the active roster], but I think we just got a little bit more dangerous."

Chiefs CB L’Jarius Sneed launches Big Brothers Big Sisters initiatives

KSHB

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City Chiefs cornerback L’Jarius Sneed has partnered with Big Brothers Big Sisters Kansas City as an official spokesperson.

The organization announced the launch of “Turn the Corner with L’Jarius Sneed” and the "L'Jarius Sneed Dreambuilders Fund" on Thursday.

Recent Stories from kshb.com

The program “is a brand-new city-wide fundraising and recruitment effort to make an impact on our community through football” presented by Adams Cable Equipment.

Donors are invited to pledge money for every turnover the Chiefs create during the 2021 season.

Individuals who pledge $3.80 or more per turnover will receive a signed 8-inch-by-10-inch Chiefs photo, while gifts of $13.80 or more per turnover earn a autographed Chiefs mini helmet and people who donate $38 or more per turnover receive a signed replica Sneed jersey.

Kansas City has averaged 24 turnovers during the last three seasons, including Sneed’s three interceptions in nine games as a rookie last year.

“The children of Kansas City are our future,” said Sneed. “They’re the next generation of game-changers, trail blazers, and difference makers. I’m proud to support an organization that is empowering and defending the potential of children in Kansas City.”

Sneed hopes to raise at least $25,000 for Big Brothers Big Sisters Kansas City through the “Turn the Corner” program, which will be used to further the organization's local mission.

As part of the announcement, Sneed also announced the launch of the "Dreambuilders Fund," which aims to remove financial barriers that keep some children in Big Brothers Big Sisters from participating in activities they enjoy.

“Whether it’s sports equipment, music instruments, or a prom dress or tuxedo, a financial need can often keep kids from doing the things they love most ...,” a press release announcing the Dreambuilders Fund said. “Through the program, Littles and families will be able to directly request access to funds through BBBSKC to help cover the costs for items like new shoes, sports camp fees, and more.”

Kansas City Royals outfielder Hunter Dozier also currently serves as an official Big Brothers Big Sisters Kansas City spokesperson.

Roger Espinoza, Eric Hosmer and Eric Berry also previously served as spokesmen.

(Creed Humphrey)

Before Chiefs, Creed Humphrey's ascending path was propelled by years of wrestling

Nate Taylor

September 7, 2021

The Athletic

Deep into the Chiefs' training camp, on a day in St. Joseph, Mo., in which the heat was sweltering and the humidity was as thick as syrup, the strongest men on the team were engrossed by Creed Humphrey.

The Chiefs' rookie center went into his stance and gripped the ball in his left hand. Across from Humphrey was Tershawn Wharton, a second-year defensive tackle known for his impressive quickness and power. One-on-one repetitions between an offensive lineman and a defensive lineman is a drill that often favors the defender since he has the increased space to unleash his pass-rush moves. When Humphrey snapped the ball, Wharton began with a speed rush. Humphrey's smooth footwork, however, allowed him to stay in front of Wharton. Shifting from speed to power, Wharton tried to push Humphrey backward. Once that strategy failed, Wharton did a rip move, putting his left arm under Humphrey's left arm. The repetition ended with a surprise. Humphrey, with his rare upper-body strength, shoved Wharton to the ground.

In unison, several teammates and fans voiced the same word: "Ooooooooh!"

Listed at 6-foot-4 and 320 pounds, Humphrey stonewalled more teammates in the one-on-one drill, including Jarran Reed and Derrick Nnadi, defensive tackles who weigh more than 300 pounds, throughout camp. Among all the others, that drill most reminds Humphrey of the sport he loved first: wrestling.

Similar to other NFL players, Humphrey, 22, believes that his wrestling career, which spanned almost half of his life, provided the necessary building blocks for him to reach the NFL.

"You're getting super competitive, it's just you against another person and you've got to be able to win," Humphrey said. "I take that same mentality out here to the football field every day. Just an understanding of leverage, that's a huge thing, especially inside on the offensive line, how to move a body without (the defender) wanting to get moved. That's been a big help from wrestling."

The Chiefs selected Humphrey in the second round of the draft in April, and his excellent performances in camp and rapid learning of the playbook have thrilled everyone in the organization. Humphrey excelled in preseason games, too. He didn't commit any major mistakes, and he displayed his unique combination of athleticism and polished blocking. Many of Humphrey's hand-placement techniques when engaging a defender were first groomed as a grappler.

When the Chiefs open their season Sunday against the Cleveland Browns, Humphrey is expected to be one of three rookie starters along the team's new offensive line. Humphrey will be responsible for communicating pre-snap blocking adjustments to his fellow linemen and protecting superstar quarterback Patrick Mahomes. Whatever challenges Humphrey encounters this season — and he anticipates there will be several — he plans to rely on the lessons he learned as a wrestler, which helped him improve as a competitor.

"Really the biggest thing, I think, is the mental toughness that you get with wrestling," he said. "You're out there in a wrestling room that's 120 degrees every day, cutting weight and not really being able to eat much, trying to make (your weight class).

"It can really drain a person mentally. But you've got to be able to persevere through that. Mental toughness was a big thing for me. I took that from wrestling and translated it onto the football field."

Growing up in Shawnee, Okla., Humphrey was on the mats inside the training room at Shawnee High as soon as he could wear a singlet.

He began learning wrestling moves when he was four years old. One of the first photos of Humphrey, as a boy, was taken of him in Shawnee's wrestling room. Wearing a black singlet, white knee pads and black shoes, Humphrey looked directly into the camera, without smiling, and showed his grappling hands while in a stance, as if he was ready to begin a match at that exact moment.

The man who first taught Humphrey the sport was his father Chad, a three-time All-American wrestler at the University of Central Oklahoma. One of Humphrey's first opponents was Gage, his older brother who became an all-state wrestler in high school. And yes, even Humphrey's grandparents helped organize the Shawnee Takedown Club, the town's youth wrestling program.

"He really just instilled the mentality into me of a wrestler," Humphrey said of his father. "Not a lot of people start at four years old. I've always had a really competitive mindset because of that."

Early on in his time on the mats, Humphrey was not the best grappler. The issue, Humphrey said, was that he simply needed to be tougher. After losing a match as a third-grader, Humphrey told his father that he wasn't confident he could get better. Humphrey considered quitting, perhaps to try another sport. Chad, through passionate conversations, convinced Humphrey to keep wrestling through at least the eighth grade.

Toughness for Humphrey began to increase as he learned more moves. Larry James, Shawnee High School's former wrestling coach and a member of the school's state championship team in 1986, watched Humphrey's progression occur faster than most young wrestlers. As Chad's former teammate in high school, James provided additional advice and coaching to Humphrey, who began to gain confidence with each victory.

"I'd say fourth grade probably was when I figured out I was going to be stronger than most people I went against," Humphrey said. "I was more athletic than most people I went against, too. That's when I started winning a ton of tournaments."

Most Saturdays in the fall involved Humphrey doing two activities: winning matches and watching the Oklahoma Sooners.

With Oklahoma's campus about an hour from Shawnee, Humphrey attended many of the Sooners' games with his family. Different from his father, Humphrey's dream was to have his family cheer for him at Oklahoma Memorial Stadium as a member of the Sooners. In the eighth grade, Humphrey switched from wrestling to football — and his feats on the gridiron were sudden and astonishing. He started as an oversized fullback who ran over defenders, either on short-yardage plays or two-point conversions. As a sophomore, Humphrey had grown into a 6-foot-4, 295-pound tight end.

"His hands were great and he scored two touchdowns that year," Billy Brown, Shawnee High's former football coach, said of Humphrey. "He was such a big body that you couldn't cover him. We would take him to seven-on-seven stuff just because he wanted to play."

College coaches also noticed Humphrey because he began showing his blocking skills as a center and tackle, whether it was in games or during summer recruiting camps.

Observing Humphrey's blocking highlights in 2015 is similar to watching an angry bouncer at a nightclub. He drove multiple defensive linemen 15 yards backward, each play ending with him recording a pancake. Defensive backs were often blocked off the field and onto the sidelines. And whenever the Shawnee Wolves passed the ball, the defender who started the play engaged with Humphrey rarely came close to pressuring the quarterback.

"He knew how to get after people," Brown said. "He worked his ass off, and he maxed out his God-given abilities."

At that time, Humphrey gained his hard-working reputation — and admiration from James and Brown — because he was practicing with the wrestling team and conducting his own weightlifting workouts in the morning before the football team's practices.

"Staying inside (with your hands) in wrestling is a big (phrase)," James said. "In football, you've got to stay inside (your opponent's chest) or you're going to get a holding penalty. If not, you're liable to get thrown. That gets transferred over from the football field to wrestling."

Following his junior football season, Humphrey realized that winter could be his final opportunity to join Shawnee's wrestling team. Humphrey, who had a perfect 4.0 GPA, knew then that he could attend college on a football scholarship in January 2017 if he graduated from high school a semester earlier than usual. Throughout his 35 years of coaching, Brown always encouraged his linemen to participate in wrestling to better understand proper techniques to gain leverage. James also needed a heavyweight on his wrestling team.

Humphrey lost weight to get under 285 pounds, Oklahoma's heavyweight limit, and began winning matches in early January, the midway point of the season. He defeated opponents with his outstanding strength, and he surprised many of them by being left-handed. He was quick enough to take down opponents and often too quick to be taken down. Most of Humphrey's matches didn't go the full three periods because he pinned many of his opponents.

"It's hard to describe how quick his feet were, how they moved," James said of Humphrey. "His footwork was unbelievable. He was so smart and coachable.

"I kept telling everybody, 'I've got the best heavyweight in the state.'"

At the time, everyone except James thought the best heavyweight wrestler was Griffin Qualls. A senior from Coweta High, Qualls was seeking to win his third consecutive state championship. Similar to Humphrey, Qualls grew up in Oklahoma and began wrestling at an early age (five).

“How I remember people is by their last name,” Qualls said. “I hadn’t heard the Humphrey name out of Shawnee.”

Qualls was introduced to Humphrey by Parker Weavel, his cousin who was a 195-pound wrestler from Tahlequah High. Humphrey’s breakout performance occurred at Carl Albert High in Midwest City, Okla., an annual tournament that often features most of the state’s best wrestlers. The previous year, Qualls won the heavyweight title over Keegan Pride from Altus High. With Coweta not competing in the tournament this time around, Qualls assumed Pride would be the champion. Weavel informed Qualls of the results.

Qualls then asked Weavel to describe the winner.

“They sent me a picture of him,” Qualls said of Humphrey. “They were sitting down at the bottom of the bleachers and he was getting warmed up. He was just standing there with his knuckles turned to the ground, his fist balled up, looking just swole as ever. And I’m like, ‘Who the fuck is this guy?!’”

Qualls wasn’t the only person who had that thought. In the tournament, Humphrey dominated a wrestler from Del City High, flipping his opponent on his back and pinning him in the first period. Humphrey’s move was so swift and so effective that it stunned Nick Warehime, Del City’s athletic director.

Warehime walked over to James to ask a simple question: “Who is that kid?”

“Oh, that’s Creed Humphrey,” James responded.

“Does he play football?!”

“Yeah.”

“What did he make on his ACT?”

At that moment, Humphrey, who had just come off the mat, told Warehime he earned a 32.

“I mean, Warehime just about went crazy,” James said.

Warehime grabbed his smartphone and called Derek, his son who was the offensive line assistant at Houston.

“Hey, you’ve got to come see this kid!” Warehime told his son. “He wrestles, he plays football and he made 32 on his ACT. Offer him a scholarship!”

Indeed, Houston was one of the first Division I programs, along with Tulsa and Memphis, to offer Humphrey a football scholarship. After the tournament, though, most people involved in wrestling in Oklahoma wanted to see a compelling match between Qualls and Humphrey. Qualls thought his first chance was going to be in early February 2016, when Coweta hosted Shawnee. Humphrey, however, was attending a football recruiting camp.

A few weeks later, at the dual team state tournament, Qualls and Humphrey saw one another for the first time. Shawnee didn't qualify for the tournament, but Humphrey observed Qualls' techniques and strategy.

"We knew Griffin was a good wrestler," James said. "We wanted one shot at him at the (individual) state finals. We didn't want to let him make adjustments on us."

Humphrey pinned TJ Singleton from Carl Albert to qualify for the state tournament, he defeated Pride a second time to win the West regional title and he scored an early takedown to beat Montana Phillips from MacArthur High — who later became a two-time state champion — in the semifinals.

The much-anticipated heavyweight state final between Qualls and Humphrey was held Feb. 27, 2016, in Oklahoma City. Humphrey entered the match with a 19-0 record. Qualls was 40-2.

"That was a doozy," Qualls said. "I remember the game plan that we had. Literally the words in my head were, 'Fuck that.' Once my head hit Creed's shoulder, I was like, 'Yeah, we're going to have to figure this out. That was 30 seconds into the match."

Qualls' first strategy was to pull Humphrey closer to him, as a setup to grab one of his legs for a takedown. Humphrey's feet, though, were too fast. Much of the match, Humphrey said, was a technical battle between him and Qualls, as both struggled to gain an advantage.

Humphrey took a 1-0 lead early in the second period when he escaped Qualls from the bottom position. In the third period, Qualls tied the match 1-1 when he did the same.

"If those guys wrestled 10 times, it's probably 5-5," James said. "I think Griffin would say the same thing."

During the match, James and his assistant, Jason Merrill, told Humphrey to try a different technique. Humphrey, in top position, drove into Qualls from the side to keep him flat on the mat.

"He made the adjustment just like that," James said of Humphrey. "It was unbelievable. That's when I told everybody, 'That guy is the smartest guy I've ever coached.' We hadn't really had time to work on it. It looked like he had been doing it for 100 years."

In the overtime tiebreaker, Qualls won the coin toss and chose to start the first of two 30-second periods on bottom. He escaped for a 2-1 lead. In the second 30-second period, Humphrey needed to escape to at least push the match to a deciding 30-second ride out. But Humphrey couldn't escape.

"Up to that point, he was the strongest dude I had ever wrestled," Qualls said of Humphrey. "I remember me not being able to keep his elbow down to his body. He could just do a shoulder workout with all of my strength. It was me maybe wanting it a little bit more because Creed saw the bigger picture about playing on Sundays."

The grueling battle was further illustrated in the medal presentation. Qualls, who didn't smile while donning the gold medal atop the podium, was just relieved to win his third consecutive state title. On the second-place step of the podium, Humphrey was still taller than Qualls, who is 5-foot-11.

Although he was disappointed with the outcome, Humphrey knew the match, and his final wrestling season, was going to be beneficial to his football career.

“It was a fun match, a really tiring match,” Humphrey said. “After the match, I went and got a ton of food. That’s the best part I remember the most, not having to cut weight anymore.”

A few weeks later, Qualls became friends with Humphrey, the competitors following one another on social media platforms. Qualls then began watching highlights of Humphrey in pads, which left him, a former left guard on Coweta’s team, astonished by the domination from one play to the next.

“Uh yeah, that boy Creed, man,” Qualls said. “As tame as he was on the wrestling mat, no, that dude was obliterating people, one-handed pushing people over.”

Nick Saban, the illustrious coach at Alabama, offered Humphrey a scholarship less than two months after that final wrestling match. As Saban recruited Humphrey, who was the third-ranked center in the country, he asked Brown, Shawnee’s football coach, a question that often reveals an athlete’s character: What would you change?

“I honestly couldn’t think of anything,” Brown said of Humphrey. “He was a leader, smart and talented. He definitely put the time in. It’s like, ‘Damn, nothing.'”

In Humphrey’s senior season, the Shawnee Wolves struggled, finishing with a 5-6 record. But Humphrey was still the best player on the field. He earned All-State honors after improving his already impressive blocking techniques. In addition to Alabama, several other colleges — Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A&M, Oklahoma State and Kansas State — offered him a scholarship, as most coaches noticed that he rarely made a mistake or missed an assignment.

Humphrey explained to coaches that wrestling helped his hip flexibility and increased his knowledge on how to counterattack defensive linemen.

“Getting the leverage was really second nature for me when I really started to learn the technical aspects of offensive line play,” he said. “I was able to translate a lot of stuff more fluidly than I probably could have before, just understanding how to position my body in the right way. It was a huge help for me.”

Fulfilling his dream, Humphrey began attending classes at Oklahoma in January 2017. Bill Bedenbaugh, Oklahoma’s co-offensive coordinator and offensive line coach, felt Humphrey could’ve started for the Sooners as a true freshman because he was advanced both physically and mentally for his age. Instead, he redshirted in 2017. But in 2018, Humphrey became the starting center, supplanting redshirt senior Jonathan Alvarez. He helped his fellow linemen win the Joe Moore Award, an annual honor in college football given to the best offensive line.

“I knew dang near after a couple of practices this dude had a chance to be special,” Bedenbaugh said of Humphrey. “I’ve never had a wrestler that was a bad player. Even when he got in bad positions, he could get out of them.”

Humphrey’s highlights in college were distinguishable. He continued to win his one-on-one matchups in a 2018 game against Alabama despite losing his helmet during a play. Linebackers were often smothered by Humphrey’s blocks. Against Texas in 2019, Oklahoma scored its game-winning touchdown on a running play in which Humphrey created the running lane near the goal line.

In 37 starts, Humphrey didn't allow a sack and surrendered just two quarterback hits, according to Pro Football Focus. He was honored as the Big 12 Offensive Lineman of the Year as both a sophomore and junior.

The Chiefs were thrilled to be able to select Humphrey with the No. 63 pick in the draft because they knew his college experience included him blocking for star quarterbacks in Kyler Murray (the former No. 1 pick and Arizona Cardinals' starter) and Jalen Hurts (the Philadelphia Eagles' starter). Humphrey cried when he learned he was going to be playing with Mahomes, an MVP winner and a Super Bowl champion.

"He's not a dude that shows a ton of emotion, but he was as excited as I've ever heard him," Bedenbaugh said of Humphrey. "How could you not be? You're close to home, you're playing for a team that won a Super Bowl, played in the Super Bowl two consecutive years and you're with a Hall of Fame head coach (in Andy Reid). He went to the best spot he could possibly go to."

Once again, as he did at Shawnee High and the University of Oklahoma, Humphrey began his NFL career exceeding expectations.

Humphrey has wowed the Chiefs over the past four months with his intelligence, athleticism, confidence, consistency and leadership skills. Reviewing the Chiefs' exhibition games, Reid marveled at how well Humphrey executed screen plays, where he was required to flash his mobility and timing when blocking a defender on the perimeter. In 44 pass-blocking snaps in the preseason, Humphrey didn't surrender a single pressure, according to Pro Football Focus.

"Creed is incredible, man," said left tackle Orlando Brown, who was Humphrey's teammate in college. "My last year at OU, he was coming in as a freshman. He learned the system fast, he's very competitive and he loves football. I think those three things are definitely going to help him excel. He has All-Pro, Pro Bowl potential."

While eager to make his NFL debut, Humphrey is grateful the first sport he loved influenced his success in his favorite sport. And Humphrey has already promised to continue his family's tradition: He will introduce his future children to wrestling.

A promise to his father: Why Orlando Brown left the Baltimore Ravens for the Kansas City Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. -- Former NFL offensive lineman Jammal Brown received a call last season from good friend Orlando Brown Jr. in the moments after Orlando's team, the Baltimore Ravens, beat the Washington Football Team.

Orlando Brown had played in 53 NFL games to that point as an offensive lineman, including two in the playoffs. But this one was special.

"He called me and he was crying," said Jammal Brown, no relation to Orlando. "He just said, 'I got to play left tackle.'"

The emotions poured out that afternoon because in Orlando Brown's world, left tackle isn't just a position but the position. That spot was the dream of his father, longtime NFL offensive tackle Orlando Brown Sr., who died at 40 of diabetic ketoacidosis when Orlando Jr. was in high school in 2011.

The Ravens traded Brown last spring to the Kansas City Chiefs, where he will get the chance to be the left tackle for the long term. That's something Baltimore wouldn't give him. The Ravens have their long-term left tackle in Ronnie Stanley, and Brown played on the left side only because Stanley was injured last season.

Things come full circle for Brown on Sunday night, when the Chiefs and Ravens meet in Baltimore (8:20 p.m. ET, NBC).

The promise

Orlando Brown Sr. played 129 NFL games over nine seasons with the Ravens and Cleveland Browns, all as a right tackle. But he didn't want that path for his son.

He preferred that Orlando Jr. play left tackle, the glamour position of the offensive line (if there is one), because that's the player who protects a right-handed quarterback's back side.

His father was passionate about Brown playing the left side, so passionate that he wouldn't have it when Orlando Jr.'s coach as a freshman in high school planned to play him at another offensive line position.

He told the coach his son was a left tackle, and if he didn't play there, he wouldn't play anywhere on offense. So Orlando Jr., a future Pro Bowler at offensive tackle, was a defensive tackle that season.

"Something he made me promise him was that I was going to be a left tackle and that I was going to play in this league for 10-plus years and be a Hall of Famer," Orlando Jr. said. "My dad understood the magnitude of [being a left tackle], often being the captain of the offensive line, often being one of the better players on offense. It was just kind of ingrained in me at a young age and ... it was a dream and goal I set for myself in this league.

"I grew up with my father playing in this league ... as a right tackle. In my household, if you weren't playing left tackle, I won't say he disowned you but he kind of talked back to you. Growing up, my dad would tell me straight up, 'Hey, study Tony Boselli, watch his game, watch Anthony Munoz, watch all these guys, watch Bryant McKinnie.' He would tell me, 'Don't watch my film.' Obviously I did because he was my father but he would tell me, 'Look at the left tackle.'"

Zeus and Baby Zeus

Orlando Sr. was by all accounts a good player, though he had no Pro Bowls or All-Pro selections to show for it. His career is best remembered for two things, one being accidentally hit in the eye with a penalty flag thrown by an official in a 1999 game.

The other was his size. Brown was big enough to stand out even in a profession filled with large players. At 6-foot-7 and 360 pounds, he was big enough to acquire the nickname of Zeus from his teammates.

He would occasionally bring Orlando Jr. to practice, and as his son grew, it was apparent he would become big like his father. His dad's teammates nicknamed Orlando Jr. Baby Zeus.

It was also apparent Orlando Jr. would become a football player.

"Orlando learned everything he knew about football from his father," said Mira Brown, Orlando Jr.'s mother. "He learned how to get into a stance from his father. He was getting into a stance since he was 2 years old."

Orlando Sr. had high standards for his son. Jammal Brown said Orlando Sr. once walked out of a high school game when his son wasn't using his strength and size to dominate his opponent the way he believed he should.

"His dad was the type of guy who was like, 'If you're not going out there to be an animal on the field because you're the biggest guy, then I don't want you playing,'" Jammal Brown said. "His dad was like, 'You're the biggest kid out there so don't be the most timid kid out there.' His dad didn't want to see it. But then Orlando turns into this monster and so he wishes his dad was alive to see this.

"That's what keeps Orlando going. Being able to get to the NFL and be a Pro Bowl player, be known as an aggressive blocker. Those are all the things he wanted to prove to his dad."

From tragedy to draft day

His father died unexpectedly, but that didn't deter Orlando Jr.'s determination to carry out his wishes. At 15 years old, he spoke at his father's funeral and told everyone he would keep his word to his dad. He would take care of his mother and two younger brothers, and he would do it by playing football.

He finished high school and played in college at Oklahoma, where he started 40 games, all at left tackle. He was almost his father's size -- the Chiefs list him today at 6-8 and 345 pounds -- and appeared headed for a high draft slot.

Then he tested poorly in almost every drill at the 2018 NFL scouting combine. His 40 time of 5.85 was the slowest of any player that year. His vertical jump and broad jump were the lowest among all combine participants. He had 14 reps on the bench press, lowest among offensive linemen and fewer than some wide receivers and cornerbacks.

He was drafted by his hometown Ravens, one of his father's former teams. But it didn't happen until the third round. Since Brown didn't have the quick feet and other athletic skills considered necessary for an NFL left tackle, the Ravens had no plans to play him there. He would instead be a right tackle.

"What a blessing for Orlando Jr. to be drafted by the Ravens," Mira Brown said. "For him to have that opportunity to actually walk in his father's foosteps in a city where he was born, Orlando Sr. would have been ecstatic. The Ravens had been our family for 25 years."

The union between the Ravens and Orlando Brown's son also stirred some memories for the father's former offensive line teammates. They had a tradition of gathering for one Ravens game each season, and they would always remember the one starter from the group who was no longer with them.

"When the Ravens drafted him, that was probably when everything came full circle," said former Ravens guard Edwin Mulitalo, who played with Orlando Sr. "All of a sudden, I felt the chills. I remember thinking that God works in mysterious ways.

"Zeus was a commanding force. When he walked into the room, you couldn't help but see him. When Orlando Jr. put that jersey on for the first time and that helmet and you saw him playing for the Ravens, it gave you a flush of memories."

Leaving Baltimore

Brown played well enough at right tackle to be a Pro Bowler in 2019. He also made the Pro Bowl team last year, when he split his season between the two positions.

But it wasn't enough for Brown, who wanted to be the left tackle on a full-time basis. When the Ravens signed Stanley to a long-term contract extension last year, Brown knew if he was going to fulfill his father's dreams, it wasn't going to be with the Ravens.

"He didn't want to believe that at first," Jammal Brown said. "He went to high school near Baltimore. His dad played there. He got a lot of love there. He was on a winning team. His friends were there. It was a perfect situation for him, other than that he wanted to play left tackle.

"But to do those things his dad wanted him to do, the things he told his dad he was going to do, he was going to have to leave."

Brown requested the Ravens trade him to a team willing to play him on the left side. Enter the Chiefs, who were searching for a left tackle after releasing the long-time incumbent, Eric Fisher.

They tried to sign veteran free-agent Trent Williams but came up short. They weren't thrilled with many of their other free-agent options or those in the draft.

After some internal discussion about whether Brown could adequately handle the responsibility of protecting quarterback Patrick Mahomes from the left side, they determined he could.

"Orlando is one of those guys where it doesn't always look pretty but once he gets his hands on you, it's hard to do anything," Chiefs general manager Brett Veach said. "He's so big, so massive. These defensive linemen, they get tired quickly. It's frustrating when you're a defensive lineman and you can't bull rush. Then you start dancing and playing games and then the ball is out. Point A to Point B is the best way to win in the pass rush in our league. He can shut that down."

'The worst athlete in the NFL'

Brown readily acknowledged he's not a classic fit at left tackle in a passing offense like the Chiefs have, saying, "I'm the worst athlete at left tackle, by far." But he also said that doesn't mean he won't excel at the position.

"The offensive line positions are positions that can be manipulated," he said. "Often times, you have men who are undersized who can play at a high level. A lot of times you have guys who are really big and super athletic who can play at a high level. Then you have guys like me, the worst athlete in the NFL, with the ability to stay between his man and the quarterback. All of that comes down to understanding my pros and cons and working with and around those. There are tricks and techniques I can use to take advantage of other guys."

Jammal Brown, who played tackle for seven NFL seasons for New Orleans and Washington and twice reached the Pro Bowl, said, "He plays the best way he can play. He doesn't go out there and try to have quick feet because he doesn't have quick feet. He understands his size and his reach and that if a guy has to go through him, Orlando wins. If a guy tries to run around him, he makes the guy run way around. He understands that and that's how he plays the game. That's why he can be a successful left tackle in a passing offense when most guys who put up his numbers and have his type of build and shape, they put them at right tackle.

"He feels he's a better player at left tackle. He's left-handed. When you can get your strongest hand on a guy first, you feel you can control a guy better. Me playing left tackle in the NFL and being right-handed, I totally get it and understand it."

Now it's up to Brown to take advantage and make his stay at left tackle a long one. Those close to him are counting on him being successful.

They know the motivation behind it.

"Orlando [Sr.] would be proud but I can see him getting after Orlando Jr. to be more physical," Mulitalo said. "That was always the main thing with Orlando. He was always telling me, 'Let's drive these fools into the ground.' The physicality was his whole game. He would have told his son, 'Stop being so soft' even if he was doing a great job.

"But now he's validating all of Zeus' work. It wasn't that he provided food on the table or all the material things. It was that he provided the mentality to work. That's why he would be so proud, because his kid is working and achieving those goals."
