1948 NFL CHAMPIONSHIP

Sunday, December 19, 1948, at Philadelphia
 Shibe Park. Attendance - 28,864

A heavy snow that blanketed the field at Shibe Park made for near-impossible playing conditions in which chains were not able to be used for measurements, the sidelines were marked by ropes tied to stakes, and piles of snow lay feet deep on the sidelines. Neither team could even begin to pass effectively, as the Cardinals, playing without injured quarterback Paul Christman, threw for only 35 yards, and the Eagles' Tommy Thompson was held to only 7.

Turnovers gave both teams chances to score throughout the game, but tough defenses and missed field goals kept the contest scoreless until the fourth quarter. In the final minute of the third period, Elmer Angsman fumbled at his 17-yard line, and Frank (Bucko) Kilroy recovered for the Eagles. Bosh Pritchard ran to the 11 on the final play of the quarter, and the fourth period opened with runs by Joe Muha and Thompson, giving Philadelphia a first down at the 5. Steve Van Buren, who powered to 98 yards on the day, then brought the Eagles their first victory in an NFL Championship Game by bulling five yards for the game's only touchdown.
