CHARLES WALLS

DIRECTOR OF PLAYER PERSONNEL

NFL Experience: 10th Year (1st with Eagles)
College: Old Dominion Hometown: Virginia Beach, VA

Charles Walls was hired by the Philadelphia Eagles as director of player personnel during the 2022 offseason.

Prior to joining the Eagles, Walls spent time as a national scout for the Cleveland Browns (2020-22), where he was the primary crosschecker for college football's top prospects throughout the United States.

From 2013-20, Walls was a member of the Green Bay Packers' scouting department. After being hired as an intern in 2013, Walls advanced through the ranks as a scouting assistant (2014) and NFS scout (2015-17) before he eventually took over the Southwest region as an area scout in 2017.

Walls attended Old Dominion, where he played offensive line and also served as a student assistant/offensive quality control coach (2010-11) and as a defensive graduate assistant coach (2012). He graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in sports management and received his master's degree in public administration.

Walls gained additional professional experience in the summer of 2013 working as a constituent-services intern at the U.S. Congressional office of Randy Forbes. He helped manage the district office's federal cases and acted as a liaison between district constituents and Congressman Forbes.
