

ADAM BERRY
ASSISTANT GENERAL MANAGER

NFL Experience: 4th Year (4th with Eagles)
 College: Princeton Hometown: Bel Air, MD

SUPER BOWL CHAMPION: 2024 (LIX)

Adam Berry, who enters his fourth season with the Philadelphia Eagles, was elevated to assistant general manager during the 2026 offseason. Prior to his current post, he served as vice president of football operations and strategy during the 2024-25 campaigns.

He was originally hired as the director of football operations and strategy in 2023 after a 14-year tenure (2009-23) at Goldman Sachs, where he last served as a managing director and the head of U.S. loan trading.

In his current role, Berry’s responsibilities include pro and college player evaluation, salary cap and resource allocation strategy, contract negotiation/structuring, integrating analytics into roster management, and player development.

A native of Bel Air, MD, Berry played collegiately as a wide receiver at Princeton, where he was voted a team captain as a senior. He graduated cum laude from Princeton and received a bachelor’s degree in economics while minoring in political economy and African American studies.

CAREER TIMELINE
Years	Team	Position
2026-	Philadelphia Eagles	Assistant General Manager
2024-25	Philadelphia Eagles	V.P. of Football Operations & Strategy
2023	Philadelphia Eagles	Dir. of Football Operations & Strategy