

CASPIAN
SVENSON

PRO SCOUT

NFL Experience: 2nd Year (2nd with Eagles)

College: Duke Hometown: Bellevue, WA

Caspian Svenson enters his second season with the Philadelphia Eagles after being elevated to pro scout during the 2026 offseason. In his role, he monitors and evaluates NFL rosters, assists with advance scouting reports, facilitates pre-draft visits and helps carry out day-to-day football operations.

Svenson originally joined the team as a scouting associate during the 2025 campaign when the Eagles captured its second consecutive NFC East Championship title, the first repeat winner in the division in over two decades.

Before the Eagles, Svenson was a student recruiting assistant for Duke’s football program (2021-25) evaluating high school and transfer portal players, building film cut-ups and hosting the on-campus experience for recruits.

Svenson studied at Duke University where he earned a bachelor’s degree in computer science and psychology (IDM), with a minor in history.

A native of Bellevue, WA, Svenson prepped at Bellevue High School.
